From Mayor Mark Chilton

Hello and welcome to Carrboro, aka The Paris of the Piedmont. Whether you are looking for a place to spend the day, or somewhere to call home, you will find it here. We are proud to be a diverse, vibrant community with a wireless downtown, free bus fares, biking and walking trails, a Cybrary, two libraries, our own radio station, a wide variety of shopping venues and great places to eat, from cafés to fine dining.

The Carrboro Farmers' Market is recognized as the best in North Carolina, with many of its farmers nationally known for their trend-setting organic practices. Meet old friends or make new ones at Weaver Street Market or Johnny's, where locally grown goods are sold, helping to preserve local farms and strengthen the local economy. Both venues offer live weekly music when the weather is warm (see page 14).

There are numerous opportunities to experience the arts, many within walking distance of each other (www.walkcarrboro.com). Visit receptions at local galleries during the 2ndFriday ArtWalk and meet the artists. Check out a band at the world famous Cat's Cradle, or visit The ArtsCenter, a fixture of downtown Carrboro that offers a wide variety of classes, concerts, theatrical productions and exhibits. Catch a show at the internationally acclaimed DSI Comedy Theater, which produces the nation's largest annual comedy festival and offers classes and performances for all ages. Carrboro hosts annual music, film and poetry festivals. This year, the first annual Carrboro Community Art Project was launched to coincide with Carrboro Day (see page 18).

Carrboro is a place that embraces new ideas. On Sunday, March 21, 2010, we experienced our first Crop Mob: a voluntary collaborative effort of neighbors helping neighbors to assist local food lovers/growers with various farm and garden projects. About 100 people in three different locations around Carrboro worked at duties ranging from blueberry planting and raised-bed assembling to greenhouse constructing and sheet mulching, offering them hands-on experience and invaluable lessons about growing food.

Our many volunteer groups and advisory boards work to promote community pride and enhance the active, engaging lifestyle that gives us our own special identity, reflecting and enhancing Carrboro's vision to become a sustainable society through community involvement and support (see page 33).

The Chapel Hill-Carrboro City Schools' newly formed Sustainability Committee is invested in reducing energy usage, increasing the level of recycling, revising and developing sustainability policies and developing awareness across our entire district. This policy has resulted in school construction projects being built with sustainable elements such as solar power, day-lighting, water reclamation and low-flow devices, green roofs and energy management systems in many new projects and designs. Carrboro High School opened in August 2007 as the first LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) Silver Certified high school in North Carolina and is registered with the U.S. Green Building Council (see page 29).

Carrboro Greenspace is a public space organization whose goal is to develop sustainable ways of living. It holds community outdoor cinema events featuring entertaining, controversial, food-related political movies and documentaries.

With a garbage truck, utility truck and backhoe running on bio-diesel, we're rolling towards a promising future.

Best wishes,
Mark Chilton
Mayor

Trains still rumble down these downtown tracks.

A Brief History of Carrboro

The Carrboro we know today sprang up from humble beginnings. In 1882, University of North Carolina officials wanted to establish rail service for students matriculating through Carolina's hallowed halls. They decided to locate the rail spur away from the bucolic campus in an area affectionately known as West Of (as in West of Chapel Hill). The moniker was later adapted to West End before being changed to Lloydville when Tom Lloyd built his Alberta Cotton Mill.

Transportation and commerce helped the settlement grow, and by 1911 it was incorporated. Locals renamed the town Venable in honor of the university's then-president, Francis Preston Venable. The name didn't stick, however. Julian Carr bought the Alberta Mill and the town's name was again changed. We've been called Carrboro since 1914. Textile mills dominated the local economy until the early 1960s, when the last mill closed. At that time, about 2,000 people called Carrboro home.

Unlike many towns that lose their main economic drivers, Carrboro survived and today is home to more than 17,000 residents. Despite the eight-fold increase in population, Carrboro still retains its small-town flavor. Independent businesses continue to thrive as in days of old, and the original business district remains the center of commerce and community. Home to a vibrant creative class, the town is affectionately known as The Paris of the Piedmont. This guide showcases much of what makes Carrboro a great place to live, work and play.

A Better Local Economy

Bill Soeters, UPS Store owner and ESC chair

Carrboro has been a center of commerce for more than 100 years. Over the decades, it has evolved from a textile manufacturing hub into a hive of sustainable business activity. Town leaders have always devoted significant resources and effort in creating a strong local economy, most recently focusing on Carrboro-based businesses.

In early 2010, the Local Living Economy Task Force presented recommendations for how the Town could maintain and strengthen our home-grown market. And the ongoing Economic Sustainability Commission (ESC) continues to guide Town leaders in making business and development decisions that positively impact the community.

Chaired by Bill Soeters of the UPS Store, the ESC assesses applicants for the town's Revolving Loan Fund. Started with federal grant money in 1986, the Fund makes loans to Carrboro-based for-profit and non-profit entities to start or expand. The program has helped several small businesses get off the ground and become going concerns. Weaver Street Market was the first grantee. Other recipients include The Carrboro Citizen newspaper and The Beehive Salon.

The committee also reviews the economic impact of all development requests submitted to the Town. Members consider how each project effects residents, jobs, the environment and tax revenues, and make recommendations to the Board of Aldermen.

Sustainable by Design

Carrboro's quality of life is attractive to many small office/home office business owners and entrepreneurs. "I have lived in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro area my whole life, and I've always loved downtown Carrboro," says Ruth Newnam, owner of Carrboro Massage Therapy (www.carrboromassagetherapy.com). "I can walk to work, to yoga, to several stores, the Farmers' Market, downtown Chapel Hill, my daughter's preschool and her future elementary school."

Rhonda Goolsby moved from Atlanta to the Pacifica Cohousing community, where she runs Green Sky Sustainable Design (www.greenskyinc.com). The company provides consultation, design, installation and maintenance of land- and roofscapes for residential and commercial clients. (For a list of local landscape professionals, see page 55).

"Carrboro is a progressive town that is supportive of the type of business I operate," she says. "Perhaps [it] is a vortex that draws folks that are sensitive to the need to create a culture that nurtures and supports doing the right thing by leaving the planet better than we found it. There's definitely a draw to consciousness here."

There's also a critical mass of skilled trades people here. "One of the things I love about Carrboro is that it still has several working trades, which are an earlier form of sustainable business," says Tim Peck, owner of Peck and Artisans/Running Water Plumbing Co. (peckandartisans.net). "Carrboro supports these types of businesses which makes it easier to get started. As more modern sustainable businesses open they will support each other, too." (For a list of local trades people see page 42).

Carrboro's commitment to sustainability extends to housing, as well. "Given the triple challenges of a difficult economy, dependence on foreign oil and global warming, now is the perfect time for a development that is affordable and energy independent – minimizing carbon emissions without compromising quality of life," says local developer Trip Overholt. He and David Bell are developing Veridia, a sustainable neighborhood planned for Old Fayetteville Road near McDougle School.

Designed by local architect Giles Blunden, Veridia will meet Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Neighborhood Development criteria. A 100-kilowatt photovoltaic solar array will offset the neighborhood's electrical use, and each home will have a solar-thermal system to provide the majority hot water requirements. Rainwater harvested from roofs will be captured in underground cisterns to be reused for landscaping, which will use native plants. The two- and three-bedroom homes will be priced between $260,000 and $299,000. Overholt and Bell hope to receive approval for the project in 2010 with construction beginning in 2011.

More to Come

These assets combine to make Carrboro ripe for business owners who care about social, economic and environmental sustainability.

“The growing awareness of environmental degradation, polarization of economic development and social inequity presents an opportunity for forward-looking businesses and business leaders,” notes Jessica Thomas, managing director of the Center for Sustainable Enterprise at UNC’s Kenan-Flagler Business School. “Sustainability is an opportunity for innovative business models that align with the diverse interests of society, the environment and shareholders to create a competitive advantage. Carrboro is a hub of innovation and creativity so it’s no surprise to find many sustainable small businesses growing there.”

Diane Koistinen, owner of The Beehive on Weaver Street

Why Buy Local Goods & Services?

When you purchase goods and services from Carrboro-based enterprises, you're doing more than supporting a local business. You're creating benefits for the entire community. Here's how:

Cliff Collins owns Cliff's Meat Market downtown.

You keep dollars in our local economy.

For every $100 you spend at a locally owned business, $68 stays in our community. Spend that same $100 at a chain store and only $43 stays local.

You embrace and promote Carrboro's distinctive character.

One-of-a-kind businesses add personality to our town.

You fuel local job creation.

Local businesses create more employment opportunities and higher-wage jobs.

You help the environment.

Shopping closer to home and buying local products conserves energy and resources in the form of fuel and packaging.

You nurture our community.

Non-profit organizations receive an average of 350 percent more support from local businesses than from non-local ones.

You conserve tax dollars.

Buying locally instead of online or outside the county ensures that sales taxes are reinvested here.

You create more choice for consumers.

Supporting locally owned businesses sustains a variety of enterprises catering to many different tastes.

You take advantage of local expertise.

Customer service is better in local businesses because they are owned by people who know our community, are less likely to leave it and are more invested in your satisfaction and success.

You support local entrepreneurs.

Carrboro's entrepreneurial ventures are the foundation of a strong, diversified and sustainable economy.

You contribute to Carrboro's reputation as a destination.

Local support of unique shops, restaurants and entertainment venues enables these enterprises to continue to draw people from around the country to Carrboro.

Chilled Sweet Potato Salad

from Natalie Olson

Makes 3 cups, serves 4

Perfect and cooling for the warm summer months, but hearty enough to be a classic during the fall and winter months as well! Sweet potatoes are available most months out of the year because they can be stored for many months past harvest.

Ingredients

2 cups cubed cooked sweet potatoes
(2 to 3, depending on their size)

1/2 cup chopped green pepper

1/2 cup chopped celery

3 green onions, thinly sliced

1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Dressing

2 tablespoons mayonnaise

1/4 cup plain yogurt

Zest and juice of 1 lemon (about 3 tablespoons)

1/4 teaspoon salt

Procedure

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Pierce the potatoes in several places with a fork. Place them in a single layer in the oven (it's a good idea to put a sheet of foil on the rack below them, to catch any drips) and roast until tender, about 1 hour. Remove from the oven and when cool enough to handle, cut each potato into cubes.

Place cubed, cooked sweet potatoes, green peppers, celery, green onions and walnuts in a small salad bowl. Stir together mayonnaise, yogurt, lemon zest and juice and salt. Combine with the sweet potato mixture and adjust the salt and lemon juice to taste.

Why buy locally grown and prepared food?

When you buy food from local sources, you're not just getting great ingredients.

Ruffin Slater is general manager of Weaver Street Market.

1. You get fresher food.

Food purchased from local farmers is usually picked/processed closer to the time of purchase.

2. You improve air quality.

Buying local reduces the energy burden of trucking, shipping and flying freight.

3. You conserve valuable resources.

Local sourcing reduces dependency on fossil fuels and puts more food-buying dollars in the hands of local producers.

4. You foster genetic diversity.

Local farmers often grow produce and raise animals from heirloom seed and heritage stock that offer healthy and tasty culinary and dietary diversity.

5. You choose quality.

Local producers and restaurateurs are held to a greater standard of accountability than agribusiness conglomerates and chain eateries.

6. You help children learn values.

Supporting family farms sustains a lifestyle that teaches children values such as land stewardship, cooperation and responsibility.

7. You embrace and promote the region's heritage.

Southern Orange County has supported local farms for centuries and these family enterprises contribute to Carrboro's distinctive character.

8. You get to know your neighbors.

Getting your food straight from the source allows you to meet more people and strengthen your ties to the community.

9. You support responsible land development.

Buying from local producers gives them an economic reason to continue farming, which helps preserve open spaces, wetlands and agricultural corridors.

10. You contribute to Carrboro's reputation as a destination.

Carrboro's foodie culture is regularly celebrated in national publications, but the farmers, producers and restaurants who earn those accolades depend on the continued support of local residents.

Local Food, National Reputation

It's hard to pick up a national newspaper or magazine and not find an article touting Carrboro's food culture. The restaurants (see page 56) in town get their share of ink. But at the center of our culinary universe are the local producers and purveyors who provide eateries and individuals with high-quality, family-farmed ingredients.

The Carrboro Farmers' Market (www.carrborofarmersmarket.com) is one of the oldest farmer-owned and – operated markets, and has been delighting locals and visitors alike for more than 30 years. Recently highlighted by Bon Appétit as one of the top markets in the country, it features an extensive variety of produce, flowers, prepared foods, crafts, meats and cheeses. It also boasts specialty items such as locally raised bison, naturally fermented kimchis and sauerkrauts and fine wines, all produced within a 50-mile radius of Carrboro.

Improving Access to Food

The CFM is a leader in increasing access to sustainably grown, locally produced food for all members of the community. Market vendors accept vouchers from the federal low-income senior and Women, Infants and Children (WIC) programs. They also accept EBT (electronic benefits transfers) cards, the federal programs' debit cards.

Fresh food is always available at the Farmers' Market.

Through its Farmer FoodShare program, started in 2009, fresh local products are collected and distributed to agencies that feed the food insecure. "In its first year, the program raised over 10 tons of locally grown food for people in four counties," says Sarah Blacklin, market manager.

Matt Neal, co-owner of the nationally recognized Neal's Deli on South Greensboro Sreet

"The children look forward every week to seeing what the farmers have put in their grocery bags," notes Katie Greenwood, associate director of TABLE (www.tablenc.org), a Carrboro-based nonprofit that provides food for young people.

Producers benefit, too. "It feels good knowing I can donate extra produce at the end of the day to people who need it most in our area," says Joann Gallagher of Castlemaine Farm (castlemainefarm.blogspot.com).

Sustainable Groceries

Another source of local food is Weaver Street Market (www.weaverstreetmarket.coop), Carrboro's co-op. "[We] offer a range of healthy products at a competitive price to patrons while paying farmers a fair price for their goods to insure the viability of local farming," explains Ruffin Slater, WSM's general manager. Locally produced items include fruits, vegetables, meats and seafood – all produced sustainably. WSM also uses local ingredients in the prepared foods available at its stores and Panzanella restaurant. "We purchase over $3 million a year from local farmers and artisans," Slater notes.

Beyond supporting local producers, WSM strengthens the overall Carrboro economy. "Weaver Street creates $15 million in local economic impact annually because 42 percent of the money spent here is then reinvested in the community," he adds.

Go Local

There's more to buying locally produced foods than just putting a tasty meal on the table. "Because they live and work in the communities they serve, local producers are held to a greater standard of accountability than faceless agribusiness conglomerates," Slater says. "They are more likely to employ sustainable farming practices, engage in humane animal husbandry and work to conserve natural resources."

Adds Blacklin, "You're making conscious decisions to support a food system that's sustainable — that doesn't depend on obscene amounts of oil, government subsidies and preservatives. You're choosing your food rather than letting large scale factories choose it for you. You're supporting farmland preservation, sustainable farming methods and animal rights. And you're doing all this while receiving the freshest, safest, all-local food available."

Local Live Entertainment

Carrboro's full of entertaining activities for all ages and interests. Live music, theatre, comedy and more are served up nightly here in the Seattle of the South as a haven for music and other live entertainment." (See page 53 for a list of bars and clubs). Four venues host the lion's share of live performances:

ArtsCenter

The ArtsCenter serves and supports arts exhibition, education and performance. "It's unusual to have an arts center that supports all three," explains executive director Ed Camp. "We provide the opportunity for all ages to experience art in all its many forms." It's also the largest employer of artists in Orange County. "We take very seriously the role of helping artists make a living," he adds. The venue hosts national touring performers, presents locally written shows and is home to the Youth Performing Arts Conservatory in collaboration with PlayMakers Repertory Company, one of the best theatrical training programs for teens in the state. Check www.artscenterlive.org for current and upcoming shows.

Cat's Cradle

Affectionately known as The Cradle, this music venue has been packing music lovers in for more than three decades. 2011 marks the club's 25th year under Frank Heath's ownership. "We present some of the top up-and-coming acts from around the country and even around the world, generally before they have reached the point where they are household names," notes Heath. The stage also hosts local acts both well-known and unknown. The Cradle is considered a premier concert venue and is regularly ranked in local and national lists of best places for live music. "We present a wide variety of music, so on any given evening, you may be surprised by what you see and hear," Heath adds. See www.catscradle.com for a full listing of shows.

DSI Comedy Theater

DSI is one of the top 5 nationally-recognized companies currently producing improv and sketch comedy. It produces live comedy performances weekly, including shows appropriate for families with children of all ages and appearances by touring artists. "Everyone talks about Carrboro as a stop on the way between DC and Atlanta for music and I'm starting to see this for comedy, too," explains founder Zach Ward. "Standup comics who've done Late Night and Late Show are traveling through North Carolina and contacting DSI to book random pickup shows." In addition to performances, DSI offers classes in the art of comedy, sketch comedy, standup and improvisation for all ages. Its annual Comedy Arts Festival is the largest in the country and increases the population of Carrboro by 4 percent during its run. The weekly line-up and course offerings can be found at www.dsicomedytheater.com.

Billy Johnson and Frank Heath, co-owners of Cat's Cradle, in one of the green rooms at the Cat's Cradle on Main Street.

Weaver Street Market

The lawn in front of Weaver Street Market is a popular venue for official and informal performing artists. During warmer months, After Hours on the Lawn (Thursdays from 6-8 p.m.) and the Jazz & More Brunch (Sundays from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.) attract music-loving fans of all ages. A full listing of dates and acts is available at www.weaverstreetmarket.coop under the events tab.

The ArtsCenter hosts classes, performances and exhibits.

The Century Center

Many public events are held at the Century Center, and it's available for rent to citizens for weddings, business meetings, classes, dances, workshops, parties and reunions, too. The 4,000 square-foot Century Hall can be arranged to suit any type of event. For information or reservations, call 918-7365 or visit the office at 100 N. Greensboro St. weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Visual Arts

We love our visual arts, too, and Carrboro's full of talented sculptors, painters, fiber artists and other artistic people. "It's really all about the artists who help form the creative core of our area," says Ed Camp, executive director of the ArtsCenter, which hosts exhibitions and provides art instruction for all ages. "They make the area vibrant and exciting."

Local talents are on display throughout the year at local galleries (see page 35) and eateries like The Open Eye (www.openeyecafe.com) and Acme Food and Beverage Co. (www.acmecarrboro.com)

During warmer weather, the 2ndFriday ArtWalk (www.2ndfridayartwalk.com) presents local and regional artists on display at downtown businesses of all kinds (and in Chapel Hill, too). Check the website for dates and venues.

Busing

Chapel Hill Transit provides fare-free public transportation service in Carrboro, Chapel Hill and UNC. That's right – it's a free ride. Riders can take advantage of real-time schedules, park-and-ride lots and special service to Carolina football and basketball games. Routes, schedules and more information are available at www.chtransit.org, or by calling 969-4900.

Biking

Carrboro became an official Bicycle Friendly Community in 2004. Bike lanes and wide road shoulders make it easy to pedal around, whether you're commuting or taking a leisurely ride. Download a map of maintained bikeways at www.townofcarrboro.org/GIS/downloads/printmap/bikeway.pdf. Need a bike? Consider the Blue Urban Bikes community bicycle loan program run by the ReCYCLery. For more information, including enrollment and location information, visit www.recyclery.org. (Find a full list of bike shops on page 41).

Borrowing

Need a car? Enrolled members can borrow a Zipcar from locations over in Chapel Hill. The closest is at Swain Hall near Cameron Avenue and Columbia Street on the UNC campus. For locations and more information, visit www.zipcar.com/unc/find-cars

library services

Carrboro is home two branches of the Orange County Public Library. (For a list of booksellers, see page 41)

Carrboro Branch Library

McDougle Middle School

900 Old Fayetteville Road
969-3006
www.co.orange.nc.us/library/carrboro.asp

Monday - Thursday: 3:30 p.m. - 8 p.m.

Closed Friday

Saturday: 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Sunday: 1 p.m. - 5 p.m.

In addition to its lending library, the branch offers computer classes and a weekly story time on Saturdays at 10:30 a.m. for ages 1-6. It also features local art exhibits through the Carrboro Branch Library Arts Program. Use of this branch requires a separate library card.

Carrboro Cybrary

Carrboro Century Center

100 N. Greensboro St. 918-7387
www.co.orange.nc.us/library/cybrary.asp
Weekdays: 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.

Closed Saturday and Sunday

The Cybrary is a branch of the Orange County Public Libraries and is located inside the Century Center. The facility has five public computer stations (including assistive technology for people with hearing or visual impairments), numerous newspapers, magazines, books, audio books, a copier and a fax machine.

Carrboro's galleries and shops have something for everyone.

Recycle...

for the life of your community!

Recycle these items at the Curb and Apartment Complexes

Plastic Bottles, Metal Cans, Glass Bottles, Mixed Paper (junk mail, cereal boxes, milk cartons), Newspapers,
Magazines and Phonebooks

Corrugated Cardboard

Most apartment complexes have designated dumpsters. If not, bring cardboard to a drop-off site!
At the curb, boxes must be empty and flattened, no larger than 3'x3'. 10 box limit per collection!

Corrugated cardboard MUST be recycled!

NO plastic bags, please!

If you collect your recycling in a plastic bag, please empty the contents in your recycling container and discard the bag. Plastic bags can be recycled at area grocery stores.

Rigid Plastics

Recycle non-bottle plastics #2 and #5, such as yogurt tubs and buckets, at 24-hour drop-off sites and staffed Solid Waste Convenience Centers.

Recycle Batteries, Motor Oil,
Oil Filters and Antifreeze, Computers, Televisions and other data carrying electronic equipment at Solid Waste Convenience Centers.

Bring Fluorescent Lights, Paint, Pesticides and other chemicals to the Household Hazardous Waste Collection
Monday-Friday 10am-6pm
Saturdays 7:30am-Noon
Orange County Landfill
Eubanks Road, Chapel Hill

Cardboard Boxes are banned from your trash! They must be recycled!

Recycle up to 10 boxes at the curb
Remove and discard any packaging
Flatten all cardboard boxes
Cut down to 3' x 3' or smaller pieces
Stack between, under or inside bins

If you have boxes that are too big or are over the ten piece limit, or you live at an apartment without a cardboard dumpster (do not use blue recycling carts at apartments for cardboard) bring your cardboard to a recycling drop-off site.

Celebrating over 35 years of artistic inspiration in all of its many forms!

Just like the different points of color that emanate from our symbolic piece of art shown in our logo, The ArtsCenter is like an explosion of artistic expression that touches all sorts of inspirational areas ... from arts education to performances to exhibition.

Our goal is to nourish the arts experience in almost any way we can, adding color and texture to the lives of those we seek to inspire. And, most of all, we believe in fun!

Hear a concert. See a show.
Take a class. Enjoy an exhibit.
Experience The ArtsCenter!
Contact us today and see what inspires you.

The ArtsCenter
Always Inspiring.

Remember when shopping was a pleasure, not a chore? When you were on a first name basis with your favorite shopkeepers and could park right in front of their stores? And, when you entered, they knew exactly what you were looking for?

Local, personalized shopping is alive and well at University Square. Come see for yourself.
