COOL & COLORFUL

By the end of this month, it'll all be different — so very different. There won't be an election and all the wind that's come with it. The colors on the branches will mostly be on the ground, the warm days less frequent and basketball season, which this year promises to be a curious one, officially commenced.

We lurch into the month via All Hallow's Eve, and by the end of it we're deep into feasting season and plunging headlong toward the end of a semester, planning for travel and/or company and the frenzy of approaching holidays. Before you surrender your calendar to the inevitable that all entails, we invite you to take a little time to wonder at the changes around you. In this week's paper, for instance, Flora columnist Ken Moore points out a particularly nice specimen to visit during the change of seasons. On Page 5, we also offer a few choice rides and walks in which to take in the leaves. And, as always, we peppered the issue with hundreds of shows and events to add a little light and life to the rapidly lengthening evening hours.

IT'S ALIVE!

Seems appropriate to use a seasonal exclamation borrowed from Dr. Frankenstein to express the general delight and surprise that the Varsity Theatre is being reanimated and could open by late November. (See Page 3 of this week's Citizen for more details on the turnaround for this much-missed venue.) The quickening of the new Varsity mirrors the subtle yet definite signs of life in the downtown economy. Several new spots have opened up, filling some rather obvious and long-running GAPS in storefronts. And while many remain worried about the liveliness of downtown (we have one friend who refers to the south side of the 100 block of East Franklin Street as "Death Row"), the addition of new retail and restaurants and evidence that major projects are moving forward seems to indicate that we are on the other side of the downturn that put so many plans and dreams on hold. In a few years, we could see a much different picture in downtown Chapel Hill and Carrboro — from a new, expanded Kidzu atop the Wallace Parking Deck to a new home for Cat's Cradle and an upfit to The ArtsCenter. Toss in projects along the stretch between them, like 140 West Franklin and a rebuilt and redesigned University Square, and you have the makings of a new day for the heart of both towns. These changes will not come about without controversy and conflict. As the old joke "How many Chapel Hillians does it take to change a light bulb?" goes, there indeed will be many waxing poetic about how great the old light bulb was. And as the creature that the university, local governments and entrepreneurs have cobbled together comes to life, we expect some villagers will be fearful and a few to reach for their pitchforks and torches. But if done right, expect a good many more to return and join in reifying a dear old friend.

Eat good food. Take care of the earth. Keep it local.

At Weaver Street Market, these have never been half-hearted slogans — our core values have driven our decisions and practices since our co-op began in 1988.

TOURING THE ARTS IN ORANGE COUNTY

The Orange County Artists Guild will hold its 15th annual open studio tour on Nov. 7-8 and again on Nov 14-15, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the Saturdays and noon to 5 p.m. on the Sundays. There also will be an opening reception with exhibitions this Friday at the ArtsCenter from 5 to 7 p.m.

This event offers an opportunity to get to know some of our own local artists and to see not only their art, but their methods. Browsers and buyers both are welcome. Visitors will be able to inquire about commissions for larger pieces, serials, portraits and installations. In many cases, artists allow prospective buyers to take a work home for a few days on approval.

The Orange County Open Studio Tour was begun in 1995, when Monnda Welch, a fine-jewelry maker, wanted to introduce the community to the faces behind the county's artists. Since then, the Open Studio Tour has been funded by artist member fees and donations from the community.

Featured this year will be a variety of mediums, including painting, photography, prints, ceramics, along with metal sculpture, jewelry, wood and glass. Some artists make their own paper, weave cloth and work with appliques and other fabric crafts, while others carve from stone and wood.

One of the more popular aspects of the Open Studio Tour is the opportunity to see the context in which the artist works. Just as a home may reflect the personality of those who live in it, the studios reflect the temperaments and personalities of the artists. For many, it makes the art come to life. For others, the tour offers a source of inspiration. And the craftsmen themselves enjoy the chance to talk to people and demonstrate the means by which they create.

Visit openstudiotour.com to see the OCAG Gallery pages with more works by a particular artist. For a list of all participating 2009 artists, visit ibiblio.org/ocag/events.php — S.E. Pohlig

HUES ALL AROUND

Early November is the traditional time for peak fall color season in the Piedmont. Whether it's for the gallery tour, a jaunt to Chatham or just a trip to the interstate, there are a few dozen roads that will take you both to your destination and through some of the Piedmont's prettiest countryside at the height of fall color.

If you're headed up to Hillsborough or to jump on I-85, try Orange Grove Road or pick up Old N.C. 86 in Calvander. If you're going to Pittsboro, consider the Jones Ferry Road/Hamlet Chapel Road route.

For a lovely side trip that ends up on the front porch of an ice cream parlor, we recommend heading out Dairyland Road to Maple View Farms.

If you want to see the colors up close, here are a couple of events coming up you may want to add to your calendar:

- Fall Color Hike — A guided walk through the Oconeechee Mountain State Natural Area in Hillsborough. The walk is on Saturday, Nov. 7, starting at 1 p.m. Visit ncparks.gov/Visit/parks/ocmo/main.php for more information
- Peak of Autumn Hike — A guided hike through the Pennys Bend Nature Preserve. Remnant prairies and rare plants along with mature forests with spectacular color are on display. The walk, sponsored by the N.C. Botanical Garden, is on Saturday, Nov. 7 from 1 to 4 p.m. The fee is $8 with directions and information available when you pre-register by calling 962-0522.

EATER'S GUIDE FOR NOVEMBER

KEEPING THE FARMERS' MARKETS STRAIGHT

This is that time of year when our local farmers' markets make a shift in hours. If you're like The Eater, you might find it a bit confusing to keep up with the new hours, times and, in some cases, locations.

In Carrboro, the Wednesday market ended last week. The hours for the Saturday market change with the Nov. 7 market to 9 a.m. to noon.

In Chatham, there are a lot of changes this month.

The Carolina Brewery market ends this weekend, with Saturday, Oct. 31 the last day of the season.

The Farmers' Market at Farrington continues on Tuesdays from 4 to 7 p.m. through Nov. 30 and the Pittsboro Farmers' Market, which runs from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. on Thursdays, continues through November at the Chatham County Fairgrounds.

The South Estes Farmers' Market hours remain 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays and 3 to 6 p.m. on Tuesdays through November. In December, the market switches to Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. Unlike last year, the market plans to not move indoors for the winter and will stay put at its outdoor spot near A Southern Season.

In Hillsborough, the Eno River Market continues to operate Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon at the Public Market House and is featuring a crafts showcase through the holiday season.

While we're on the subject of farmers' markets, please note that the Carrboro Farmers' Market is holding its seventh annual Thanksgiving Market, Tuesday, Nov. 24 from 3 to 6 p.m. The market will feature more than 25 vendors to help you get ready for the holiday. You'll find an array of items, from cheeses for appetizers to vegetables for side dishes to pre-ordered, pastured heritage-breed turkeys to cranberry relish and the pie for dessert.

Elsewhere on the turkey beat, please keep your eyes peeled for pre-order information on turkeys. Cliff's, Weaver Street and Whole Foods, as well as the aforementioned farmers, all take pre-orders to help you guarantee you'll get the size and quality bird you're after.

be open from noon until 8 p.m. and are offering three courses with all the fixings for $27.95 per person. Reservations by phone only, at 929-2263.

The Farrington House Country Inn and Restaurant was voted the ninth best small U.S. hotel by the readers of Condé Nast Traveler in its 2009 Readers' Choice Awards. The awards appear in the November issue (on newsstands Oct. 20). This year, 25,008 readers voted on more than 10,000 properties and destinations. The survey included a new category, Small Hotels (under 50 rooms) in the United States. N.C. spots also in the top 25 are The Swag (rated #2) in Waynesville and Old Edwards Inn (#21) in Highlands.

Tyler's Restaurant & Taproom was honored in the 2009 American Graphic Design Awards, when its dine-in menu received the Awards Certificate of Excellence. This competition, which is judged by the editors of Graphic Design USA magazine, honors outstanding new creative work in more than 20 categories, including print, packaging and interactive.

November is National Raisin Bread Month, World Vegan Month and National Peanut Butter Lover's Month. The Eater recommends celebrating this confluence of celebrations on Nov. 3, which is National Sandwich Day, with a vegan PB&J.

If you're planning to go out for Thanksgiving, you might want to start looking over your options now, as tables for the finer meals start to book up pretty quickly once people notice that the calendar says November.

HALLOWEEN (AND HALLOWEEN EVE) FESTIVITIES

Eve Ball Halloween costume party: Oct. 30 at the Carolina Inn from 8 to midnight. Music, dancing, costume contest and a dessert bar. What more could you ask for? $25 at the door and $60 without a costume. Proceeds go to benefit the Eve Marie Carson Scholarship at UNC.

Hillsborough's Haunted Walk: Oct. 30. Tours begin at 7 p.m., and you can catch one every half hour ending at 8:30. The hour-long tour will take visitors through the town's colonial streets, past homes, churches and cemeteries believed to be haunted. $10 for adults and $5 for children.

Piedmont Youth Orchestra at the Carrboro Farmers' Market: Oct. 31. There'll be a few scary tunes mingled in the set during this special concert at the Farmers' Market. The orchestra features a third-senior-grade string orchestra, a middle- and high-school chamber ensemble, and a middle- and high-school wind ensemble. The concert starts at 9:30 a.m. at Carrboro Town Commons. Shoppers and vendors are encouraged to dress for the occasion.

Chapel Hill's Homegrown Halloween: Oct. 31, Franklin Street. The town is sticking with last year's strategy of downsizing and a midnight curfew. Plan to get to Franklin by 11 p.m. if you want to see the best costumes. Bars won't let patrons in past 1 a.m., and it's probably not the best idea to go if you're costume is of the bulky variety.

Carrboro Halloween Carnival: Oct. 31 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the Carrboro Town Commons. A family-friendly Halloween celebration before the college kids take over the streets.

Halloween Carnival at East Chapel Hill High: Oct. 31 from noon to 3 p.m. in the Café Commons. Tickets are $.25 each and will get you access to a cakewalk, haunted house, face painting, etc.

War of the Worlds: Oct. 31. Want to stay in and avoid the crowds? N.C. State's student-run radio station, WKNC 88.1, will broadcast a live, local adaptation of the Mercury Theater's production of H.G. Wells' War of the Worlds from 7 to 8 p.m. The drama will be performed live, and has been updated to include Raleigh locations and will be set in the present day.

PUTTING RUMORS TO REST

BY VICKY DICKSON

Ella Swain and her beloved "Genl" must finally be resting in peace, now that their legacy is no longer besmirched by the rumors that have dogged the Southern belle and her Yankee husband for almost 150 years. It's all thanks to Undaunted Heart, a new book by Suzy Barile, which tells the story of the Chapel Hill marriage of the daughter of UNC president David Swain and Union Gen. Smith Atkins, shortly after the end of the Civil War. And it's an enthralling tale.

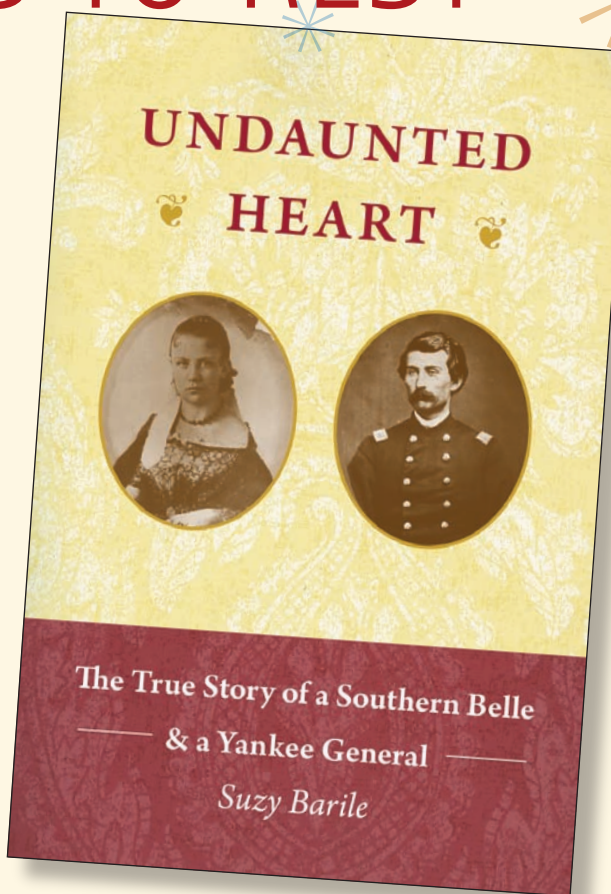

Barile, great-great granddaughter of the couple, has wanted to tell their story ever since 1991, when she found two packets of letters among her late mother's effects. The letters were written by Ella Swain and other members of her family, and in them Barile found evidence that would help her dispute the vicious stories circulating about Ella and the general: that they fled North with jewelry and silver belonging to other Chapel Hillians, that Ella was disowned by her family, that UNC's closure in 1870 was due to the marriage.

That rumors would arise in Chapel Hill after the couple's engagement is understandable, given the fact that Atkins was part of the force that occupied the town after the war, and given the bitterness that war engenders among the defeated. But the real misfortune is that the rumors managed to obscure the true story of Ella and her general. Luckily for us, Barile has now succeeded in redressing that wrong in her unsentimental account of the bitter Illinois winters; the difficult separation from North Carolina loved ones; and the unrelenting pain at the loss of children, siblings and parents endured by Ella and Smith Atkins. Barile pays homage to their legacy with her portrayal of the abiding love and mutual respect that sustained Ella and the man she called her life's "greatest blessing" throughout their all-too-brief marriage.

Barile received a degree in journalism and mass communication from UNC and, after working in the newspaper business for 25 years, now teaches English and journalism at Wake Tech. Her training is evident in Undaunted Heart, which is well-researched and deftly written and deeply moving. All those with an interest in Chapel Hill, UNC or Civil War history should check it out.

So what's next on Barile's plate? Another of her ancestors is Richard Caswell, first governor of North Carolina following the signing of the Declaration of Independence, and Barile is working on a collection of his letters with another descendant, who's a new-found cousin. It seems history is in the author's blood.

But the real misfortune is that the rumors managed to obscure the true story of Ella and her general.

LIT NOTES

To learn more about Suzy Barile and Undaunted Heart, come to the Bull's Head Bookshop on Wednesday, Dec. 2, at 3:30 p.m. Barile also will appear locally at the American Legion Hut on Legion Road. in Chapel Hill, Tuesday, Dec. 15, at 7 p.m.

Readers who are Tar Heel fans (and who isn't around here?) have a lot to look forward to in November, with Roy Williams' upcoming appearances at McIntyre's at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 3 and the Bull's Head on Nov. 5 (time TBA) to promote Hard Work: My Life On and Off the Court. You also can get your copy of Light Blue Reign signed by author Art Chansky at the Bull's Head at 10 a.m.

on Nov. 7. And if you still hunger for basketball stories, return to the Bull's Head at 3:30 p.m. on Nov. 12 to hear Adam Lucas, Steve Kirschner and Matt Bowers discuss One Fantastic Ride: The Inside story of Carolina Basketball's 2009 Championship Season. Whew!

Finally, we're thrilled at the news that a new, independent bookstore is due to open next to Foster's Market in Chapel Hill in mid-November. Flyleaf Books should prove to be a most welcome addition to our community. Kudos to partners Jamie Fiocco, Land Arnold and Sarah Carr for their vision and initiative!

BARN DANCE

At the recent North Carolina Literary Festival, UNC's Bill Ferris offered a refreshingly unvarnished tour through the world documented in his book, DVD and CD collection Give My Poor Heart Ease: Voices of the Mississippi Blues.

The stories, collected during Ferris' travels in his native lands of the Mississippi Delta, are real, raw, passionate, at times ribald and rough and at others sweeter than tupelo honey.

Ferris, who teaches folklore and is senior associate director of the Center for the Study of the American South, continues the rollout of this collection, which includes a CD of recordings and a DVD of films of many of Poor Heart's featured subjects, with two local events.

MUSIC SPOTLIGHT

On Wednesday, Nov. 11 at 3:30 p.m., Ferris will read from his collection at UNC's Bulls Head Bookshop.

On Friday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m., Ferris will be joined by his wife, Marcie Ferris, author of Matzoh Ball Gumbo: Culinary Tales of the Jewish South, for a joint book signing at the Barn in Fearington Village.

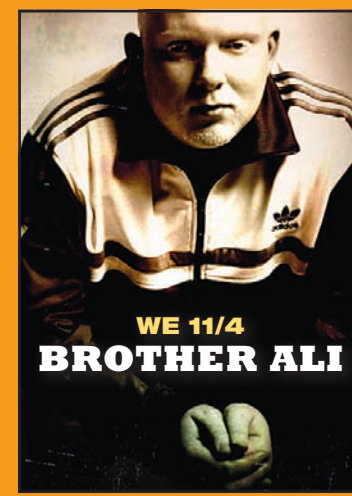

The couple will host the 38th anniversary concert by Chatham's legendary Bluegrass Experience, which features Tommy Edwards, Snuffy Smith, Stan Brown, Mike Aldridge, Al McCanless and Leroy Savage.

The event, presented by Chatham Arts, includes barbecue dinner plates from the BBQ Joint, and Fearington will host a cash bar. Tickets are $13 in advance and $15 at the door. Online tickets and details available at chathamarts.org
