Fullmoon Day of Taboung, a day of religious significance

Myanmar people are well known for their generosity and it is their lovely custom to make donations and do meritorious deeds on days of special significance. Today, the fullmoon day of Taboung in Myanmar lunar calendar, is a day of religious significance. In Myanmar, it is one of the occasions set aside for doing meritorious deeds, especially offering of alms and provisions to the monks.

It is on this day that hundreds of monks receive provisions donated by thousands of the laity so that they may be able to conveniently carry out religious tasks such as learning Pariyatti and practising Patipatti. Here it is to be noticed that the term “receive” means the act of receiving the offerings that enables the Buddhist faithful to do such offerings. The relationship between the donor and the recipient is unique, for without the recipient there can be no donor and vice versa. It must, of necessity, apply to all donors and recipients, for those who are involved in the propagation of a faith are committed to their mission. If they have to go round in search of alms and provisions all the time, the effectiveness of their mission would be diminished, or they may not be as fully capable of carrying it out.

This is the reason why the laity, individually, or in groups, or organizations, or as government departments, organize alms offering ceremonies so that those in missionary service may enable the wellwishers to donate and thus gain merits. The government organizes some of these alms-offering ceremonies almost always and also subsidizes missions and homes for the aged and the needy.

Today, the fullmoon day of Taboung, religious titles are presented to monks, nuns and lay persons on a grand scale. Indeed it is a remarkable contribution towards promotion and lay persons on a grand scale. Indeed it is a remarkable contribution towards promotion and propagation of Buddha Sasana.

We firmly believe that all the Buddhist devotees, having reflected wisely the attributes of the Buddha, will be able to enjoy physical and mental well-being through making donations, keeping precepts, dispensing Metta and practising meditation.

China-Russia strategic partnership at all-time high

Moscow, 11 March — Relations between China and Russia have been enjoying a strong momentum in recent years and have reached an unprecedented high level, Liu Guchang, China’s Ambassador to Russia, said on Thursday.

Liu made the remarks ahead of Russian President Vladimir Putin’s visit to Beijing this month.

Speaking to reporters in Moscow, he said the growth of Sino-Russian ties not only safeguards the national interests of both countries but contributes to global peace, stability and development.

President Putin’s visit to China, during which he will together with Chinese President Hu Jintao, attend the opening ceremony of the Year of Russia, is the most significant event in bilateral ties this year,” Liu said.

Liu added that the two cultural events of the Year of China and the Year of Russia will serve as a strong boost to the strategic partnership between the two countries.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry said on Thursday that Putin would pay a state visit to China on 21-22 March.

The ambassador said the bilateral economic and trade ties are “moving on a fast track”, saying the forms of cooperation are diversifying and areas expanding. Liu noted progress in joint work in the oil and gas sector.

Russian oil shipments via railway to China have been increasing steadily and Russia’s environmental authorities have cleared the planned oil pipeline that will reach China, he said.

“The Year of Russia will reach China, he said.

GM recalls about 900,000 pickup trucks

Washington, 11 March — General Motors Corp said on Friday it is recalling about 900,000 pickup trucks worldwide to fix tailgate cables that can corrode and break when loads are placed on them.

The recall involves 1999-2000 models of the Chevrolet Silverado and GMC Sierra trucks. GM said there have been 84 injuries, most of them minor scrapes and bumps, but no crashes or deaths linked to the problem.

GM, the world’s No 1 automaker, said the galvanized, braided-steel support cables that keep the tailgates in place can corrode or fracture over time because of moisture seeping through cracks in the plastic sheathing of the cable or entering between the cable’s metal strands.

The automaker had recalled about 4 million 2000-2004 pickups worldwide in March 2004 because the tailgates could break without warning. The recall involved a broader range of vehicles, including the Chevrolet Silverado, GMC Sierra, Chevrolet Avalanche and Cadillac Escalade EXT trucks.

GM spokesman Alan Adler said the vehicles covered by the new recall had different materials used in the support cables and involved fewer complaints. He said the automaker decided to issue the recall after “an exhaustive investigation.” — Internet

Venezuela derides US human rights report

Caracas (Venezuela), 11 March — Venezuela derided on Thursday a US State Department report that said President Hugo Chavez’s government had violated human rights, calling the document “toilet paper”.

The response from Caracas followed weeks of verbal jousting between the United States and Venezuela after both governments expelled diplomats in one of their worst disputes since left-winger Chavez came to office seven years ago.

“These reports are just toilet paper, exactly that, toilet paper, because US State Department officials have no authority to judge any country in the world.”

Venezuelan Vice-President Jose Vicente Rangel told reporters.

“If any country or any government violates human rights and is a centre of corruption, it’s the US Government,” he said. — MNA/Reuters

Syria ignores US sanction on its bank

Damascus, 11 March — Syria on Friday brushed aside the US decision to sever ties with the state-owned Commercial Bank of Syria (CBS).

The US Treasury Department on Thursday barred American financial institutions from opening or maintaining an account for or on behalf of CBS because the bank “has been used by terrorists” to move funds and has laundered money from the “illicit sale of Iraqi oil”.

In a statement to the official SANA news agency, CBS Director General Dureid Dorgham said the US decision “was taken for political reasons to affect Syria” without “logical evidence”. Dorgham pointed out that it has been a “binding decision” to the US banks even before the official announcement.

Meanwhile, he expressed confidence in some other friendly banks which had rejected the US decision to sanction the Syrian bank, noting that these banks would not submit to it. — MNA/Xinhua

Chinese political advisers refute
US human rights criticism

BEIJING, 11 March — Chinese political advisers in their annual full meeting here slashed on Friday a US State Department report criticizing human rights conditions in China, calling it “totally unfounded”, “ideology-oriented” and “a fresh example of Washington’s double standards on human rights”.

“The United States, a self-proclaimed ‘human rights judge’, has once again pointed its fingers at others while totally ignoring its own problems,” said Zhao Qibing, a member of the 10th National Committee of the Chinese People’s Political Consultative Conference (CPPCC), China’s top advisory body, at a panel discussion on Friday.

The Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for 2005, issued by Washington on Wednesday and involving more than 190 countries and regions including China, are full of “arbitrary charges and unreasonable words”, said Zhao, former minister in charge of the human rights record of the United States since 1997. The latest version of the report, the seventh in a row over the past year, was published on Thursday.—MNA/Xinhua

Landmine kills 26 on way to wedding in Pakistan

QUETTA (Pakistan), 11 March — Twenty-six people travelling to a wedding in southwest Pakistan were killed on Friday when their vehicle hit a landmine near Pakistan’s main natural gas fields.

The blast happened in Dera Bugti District of Baluchistan Province.

Provincial government spokesman Razia Bugti blamed autonomy-seeking militants for planting the mine.

“Most of the dead are women and children. Seven people were injured,” Bugti said.

Baluch militants have waged a low-level insurgency for greater control over gas and other resources for decades, but have intensified attacks on government installations and infrastructure, including gas pipelines, over the past year.

The wedding party was travelling on a trailer being pulled by a tractor. Bugti said militants were known to have planted mines in the area and security forces had been trying to clear them.

The violence in the province, which borders Afghanistan and Iran, is another pressing security problem for President Pervez Musharraf, whose forces are also battling Islamist militants in tribal areas on the Afghan border to the north of Baluchistan.

There has been no evidence or claim of any cooperation between the al-Qaeda-linked Islamist rebels and the Baluch nationalists, analysts say.—MNA/Reuters

Hungry Michigan wolves turning on each other

TRAVERSE CITY, 11 March — Gnawing leisurely on the remains of a moose carcass, the wolf pack’s alpha male seemed unaware that mortal danger was coming ever closer.

Suddenly the eight-member rival pack burst into view. The alpha scrabbled to his feet, but too late. Howling and barking, the enemy chased him down and mercilessly attacked, killing the helpless victim within a couple of minutes.

It’s not unusual for the gray wolves on Isle Royale National Park to target each other, said John Vucetich, a Michigan Tech University wildlife biologist who witnessed the carnage from an airplane in January. But the rival pack’s brazen invasion of another’s territory was a sign — the wolves are hungry.

“The wolves struggle through a food shortage is to try and usurp territory from their neighbours,” Vucetich said. He and fellow researcher Rolf Peterson estimated the moose population at 450 in winter, down from 540 last year. Only four years ago, they totalled an abundant 1,100 in the national park, located in northwestern Lake Superior and accessible only by boat or airplane.

British soldier quits Army, accuses US troops of illegal tactics in Iraq

LONDON, 11 March — An elite British soldier has revealed that he quit the Army after refusing to fight in Iraq anymore on moral grounds because of the “illegal” tactics used by US troops on the ground.

Ben Griffin, a member of the Special Air Service (SAS) described in an interview with The Sunday Telegraph the experiences that led him to end his impressive army career after just three months in Baghdad.

The 28-year-old, who was discharged last June, is believed to be the first SAS soldier to refuse to go into combat and to quit the Army on moral grounds.

“I saw a lot of things in Baghdad that were illegal or just wrong,” Griffin told the weekly newspaper in his first interview since leaving the SAS.

“I knew, so others must have known, that this was not the way to conduct operations if you wanted to win the hearts and minds of the local population. “And if you can’t win the hearts and minds of the people, you can’t win the war.”

Griffin, who worked in the SAS’s counter-terrorist team, recalled joint operations to tackle insurgents with his American counterparts.

“We would radio back to our headquarters that we were not going to detain those people,” he said, “We were going to kill them.”

PUTIN TO VISIT CHINA ON 21 MARCH

BEIJING, 11 March — Russian President Vladimir Putin will make a state visit to China from 21 March, with meetings expected to focus on energy deals and consolidating bilateral cooperation, the Chinese Foreign Ministry said on Thursday.

“Both sides will sign a series of agreements on cooperation, including energy cooperation, which is an important element in our mutual cooperation,” ministry spokesman Qin Gang told a regular news conference.

Relations between Beijing and Moscow, once bitter rivals for influence in the Communist world, have warmed in recent years. Putin’s two-day visit marks the launch of a “Year of Russia” in China, with a series of cultural programmes and visits by Russian officials and business groups designed to cement ties.

Chinese President Hu Jintao has worked hard to cultivate Putin, visiting Russia three times since becoming leader in 2003.

EIRETREA ACCUSES US OF HYPOCRISY ON HUMAN RIGHTS

ASMARA, 11 March — Eritrea accused Washington on Saturday of hypocrisy over the release of the annual US human rights report, saying in the wake of a diplomatic stalemate it had no moral grounds to criticize other nations.

The US administration has no legal or moral ground to point its fingers at other countries on human rights issues or to act as a self-appointed court,” Information Minister Ali Abdu said on Saturday.

“The US administration has no legal or moral ground to point its fingers at other countries on human rights issues or to act as a self-appointed court,” Information Minister Ali Abdu said on Saturday.

As far as Eritrea is concerned, this is ridiculous ... and at a time when we are reading the gruesome reports from Abu Ghraib and Guantanamo Bay,” he told Reuters, referring to charges of human rights abuses committed in US-run prisons. The US rights report, released on Wednesday, accused Eritrea of harsh and sometimes lethal treatment of military deserters and draft evaders.

Eritrea and Ethiopia, which fought a 1998-2000 war that killed 70,000 people, have been locked in a dispute over the demarcation of their shared border since an independent commission awarded the border town of Badme to Eritrea in 2002.

Despite an agreement from both sides that they would abide by the commission’s ruling, Ethiopia rejected the decision.

The diplomatic stalemate has created military tension along the 1,000-km (600-mile) border. Eritrea — whose population is only one-twentieth the size of Ethiopia’s — has become one of the most militarized countries in the world.

However, the robber was unable to lock the safe properly and the 54-year-old diamond polisher was able to free himself not long after the robber had left.

Canada’s lost, lonely whale feared killed by boat

VANCOUVER, 10 March — A lonely killer whale that became the object of a well-publicized tug-of-war between biologists and Natives on Canada’s Pacific Coast was feared dead on Friday.

Officials said the orca, nicknamed Luna by scientists, appeared to have been hit by the propellers of an ocean tugboat in Nootka Sound, off Vancouver Island, where it had lived since 2001 after getting separated from its family pod.

The young male whale, which often played with boats in an apparent search for companionship, may have miscalculated the tug’s power and was pulled into the blades, a

Tremor kills man, injures 16 in Pakistani Kashmir

ISLAMABAD, 11 March — An aftershock measuring 5.2 killed one man and injured 16 other people in Pakistan-held Kashmir on Friday, five months after a huge earthquake devastated northern Pakistan, officials said.

The 8 October quake killed 73,000 people, but a massive relief effort and mild weather have prevented a feared second-wave of deaths among millions of survivors living in the open during the normally harsh Himalayan winter.

Friday’s aftershock was felt in North West Frontier Province, Punjab and Kashmir, according to the Meteorological Department.

One man was killed when a wall collapsed on top of him in Mirpur, a southern district in Pakistani Kashmir that was largely unaffected by the original quake.

“Many people are still jumping out of their homes and got hurt,” said Khalid Chohan, a superintendent of police in Mirpur, adding that several houses were damaged by the tremor.

Brazil leading effort to boost ethanol use

SAO PAULO, 10 March — In an agroindustrial complex ringed by fields of 12-foot-high sugarcane, a giant mechanical claw dumps stalks by the tons into an even larger crushing machine.

Here’s where the renewable fuel used to power seven of every 10 new Brazilian cars gets its start.

Sugary slurry flows into a row of gleaming stainless steel distilling tanks, transforming cane harvested only hours earlier by machete-wielding farm labourers into ethanol, the alternative fuel now promoted by President George Bush to end what he calls America’s addiction to imported oil.

While Bush set 2025 as the target date for replacing three-fourths of the oil imported from the Middle East with American ethanol, Brazil already satisfies nearly half of its domestic passenger vehicle fuel demand with ethanol.

Food and danger of toxic chemical

Now, the world has witnessed development in various spheres with growing world population. So, man has to innovate constantly to fulfill the requirement to meet the increasing population. In order to ensure food security, man has transformed the conventional agricultural and livestock breeding methods into modern ones and used specific inputs in these sectors.

The inputs include chemicals such as anti-fungus, pesticides, weed killers, urea and fertilizers used for boosting agricultural and livestock breeding production, rapid growth and seasoning foods. Use of these substances boosts production and enhances growth of the produce.

However, there is a saying in Myanmar that urges moderation in everything. Nowadays, a wide variety of chemicals are used indiscriminately without limitation. Unsystematic use of such substances is harmful to man.

I would like to present a true story that took place about 30 years ago. At the time, I was a health assistant in the Yayzin Dam Project. Paddy, sugarcane and vegetables were grown around Yayzin. One day, my wife prepared a dish of water cress. She also prepared a dish of boiled fish, bean and water cress for our nine-month-old son. About an hour after we had had our lunch, our son got sick and began to vomit. We applied lotion on his stomach and took him to a hospital. At the hospital, his vomit was tested to find out the cause. The result showed “endrin seen”. The cause of such vomiting was the pesticide endrin.

Today in Myanmar, some prefer vegetables and fruits bigger and brighter than normal. For instance, consumers prefer bamboo shoot, chili powder and turmeric power with bright colours to those with original colours. Therefore, such products are dyed very bright for sale.

And bigger-than-normal fruits grown with the use of various types of fertilizers are more attractive. Recently, I accompanied my wife to the market. At a fruit shop, I noticed a big papaya. I examined it and found that it was still green, so I put it aside. Then, the shop assistant said to me, “Uncle, do you think it is still green? It will be ripe this evening. I can do it right if you want to have it this afternoon. Look!”

She dipped a tiny stick into a bottle of chemical liquid and touched it on the papaya at three or four different places, and said to us, “This chemical liquid is very effective. It can make any fruits ripe immediately”.

I had heard of such chemicals but never seen it. That was the first time I experienced that and was used to grow such crops”.

“I do not mean so”.

“Oh, I am confused”.

“No, you are not. I mean radish or long bean can be grown overnight”.

While I was taken aback, she continued to say, “Supposing, radish, long bean and beans and pulses are going to be sold in the market, they are wrapped up with a piece of jute cloth that is wet with urea liquid for a night. In the morning, they have grown twice. A sale assistant shared me with this method”. I was surprised again. In reality, fertilizers are a compound of nitrogen. If so, the vegetables absorb phosphorus, sodium, potassium, manganese and ammonia. As soon as such vegetables are consumed, the poisonous chemicals get into the stomach. Ammonia belongs to nitrogen group. It is poisonous, so it is drained together with urine. Urine has bad smell due to ammonia content. If such fertilizers get directly into the stomach, brain, stomach, liver and kidney are damaged.

Therefore, preventive measures are to be taken against the use of such chemicals. But, it will be found it difficult to expose unscrupulous persons who use toxic chemicals. Sellers respond to the demand of customers. So, all the customers are to be aware of the dangers of the vegetables and fruits carrying pesticides and fertilizers and to avoid buying them. If so, sellers will not sell such vegetables and fruits. Thus, the entire people are to be aware of such harmful vegetables and fruits.

Russian FM calls for international meeting on Iran

MOSCOW, 11 March— Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov has called for an international meeting which will include Russia, China, the European trio and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) to resolve Iran’s nuclear issue.

Speaking in an interview on Russian television, transcripts of which were posted on its Foreign Ministry’s website Friday, Lavrov described the situation surrounding the dispute over Iran’s nuclear programme as “critical... But it does not mean that now everybody has to go to the Security Council and start to make calls and threats and fulfill such threats,” Lavrov said.

It only means that we all have to get together again to find a new consensus regarding our strategy at the current stage,” he said. “We are ready for that.”

On Thursday, a day after the IAEA wrapped up its meeting in Vienna with discussions on IAEA chief Mohamed ElBaradei’s latest report on Iran’s nuclear programme, Russia urged Iran to consider the outcome of the meeting and cooperate fully with the UN nuclear watchdog.

The Iran nuclear standoff escalated after Tehran resumed nuclear fuel research in January, which prompted the IAEA decision last month to report its case to the UN Security Council.

The Court of Appeal ruled on Thursday that Ata Takatori was unlawfully imprisoned in August 1992, after arriving in Nassau from Osaka, Japan, and being granted permission to stay in the Bahamas for one week.

UN emergency fund opens with half needed pledges

UNITED NATIONS, 11 March— The United Nations’ new global emergency fund began work on Thursday with slightly more than half the $500 million US dollars its director had hoped for.

The first grants from the Central Emergency Fund went to drought-stricken northeastern Africa and western Ivory Coast, where angry mobs recently burned down UN aid offices. The dollar amounts of the grants were not given.

The fund opened for business with pledges totaling just $266 million US dollars from 36 donor governments, Canada, Australia, Spain and the United States were among countries announcing pledges at the launch.

The goal had been to raise $500 million US dollars, but UN Emergency Relief Coordinator Jan Egeland said the response nonetheless amounted to “a big step forward” as the sole source of emergency funds had previously been a UN standby loan facility of just $50 million US dollars.

But international relief group Oxfam has argued the fund would need one billion US dollars to ensure an adequate UN response.

“The fund will make us quicker, more flexible and predictable” in dealing with both man-made humanitarian disasters like the crisis in Sudan’s western Darfur region and with natural disasters like the 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami, Egeland said.

He had asked for the fund after the tsunami, and the 191-nation UN General Assembly approved it last December.

The idea is to give the world body the ability to quickly send emergency supplies to an affected area without having to wait for international donors to send checks or make good on pledges.

The money in the fund would be continually replenished as contributions later poured in for each individual disaster. Some 11 million people face famine in the Horn of Africa due to a long drought in the region, with Kenya, Ethiopia and Somalia the hardest-hit countries.— MNA/Reuters
Calcium deficit common during pregnancy, lactation

NEW YORK, 11 March — Women who have habitually low levels of calcium in their diet undergo significant changes in bone calcium turnover during pregnancy and lactation, according to the results of a new study.

Dr Janet C King of Children’s Hospital Oakland Research Institute, California, and colleagues examined calcium levels during pregnancy and early lactation in 10 Brazilian women. The average level of dietary calcium was 463 milligrams per day, the researchers report in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

The women were given a form of calcium that could be easily detected as it moved through the body, so bone calcium turnover could be monitored in different compartments. Evaluations were performed during early pregnancy (10 to 12 weeks), late pregnancy (34 to 36 weeks), and early lactation (7 to 8 weeks after birth). A significant increase in the rate of bone calcium deposition was observed from early to late pregnancy, the researchers found.

Compared with early pregnancy, the rates of bone calcium resorption were higher during late pregnancy and early lactation. They also observed a positive relationship between bone calcium turnover and dietary calcium from early pregnancy to early lactation. Dietary levels of calcium and levels of insulin-like growth factor 1 explained 68 to 94 per cent of the variability in bone calcium balance.

Switch to diet soda may help teens shed pounds

NEW YORK, 11 March — A new study shows that adolescents who regularly consume sugar-sweetened soda have no trouble switching to sugar-free soda if provided the opportunity—and making the switch may lead to weight loss, especially among heavier teens. The role of sugar-sweetened beverages in promoting obesity is hotly debated. With this study, “we think there now is a very strong case that sugar-sweetened beverages are playing a strong role in weight gain among adolescents”, Dr David S Ludwig from Children’s Hospital Boston noted in an interview with Reuters Health. The findings also provide additional support for the American Academy of Pediatrics recommendations to limit intake of sugar-sweetened beverages, Ludwig and colleagues note in the journal Pediatrics.

The study involved 103 high school students who regularly drink sugar-sweetened beverages. For 23 weeks, 53 of the teens in the intervention groups were provided with a variety of alternative beverages that did not contain sugar such as bottled water and diet beverages including soft drinks, iced teas, lemonades and punches. The beverages were delivered right to their homes. The other 50 control teens received no intervention.

All of the teenagers completed the study. Consumption of sugar-sweetened beverages fell by 82 per cent in the intervention group but did not change in the control group. — MNA/Reuters

French assist Laos in rehabilitating world heritage site

HANOI, 11 March — France has pledged to offer Laos one million euro (nearly 1.2 million US dollars) to improve the world heritage site of Vat Phou in the next three years.

The fund will be used to conduct a field study into how best to improve the site for tourism, upgrade infrastructure, and train people in charge of conserving and managing the Vat Phou Temple, a world heritage recognized by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), Lao newspaper Vientiane Times reported Friday. Earlier, France helped Laos rehabilitate the ancient capital of Luang Prabang, a world cultural heritage also recognized by the UNESCO. The Vat Phou Temple in northern Champassak Province is of great spiritual significance, since its structures and items displayed there express intense religious conviction and commitment, the report said.

Belgian Cabinet approves proposal to ban forced marriages

BRUSSEL, 11 March — Belgium is to become the world’s second country after Norway to ban forced marriages after the Cabinet approved a legislative proposal from Justice Minister Laurette Onkelinx on Friday.

Currently, forced marriages are combated in the country by laws against physical and mental abuse, rape and threats. However, the government said these laws are insufficient to fully combat forced marriages.

According to the proposal, forced marriages will be punishable with a jail term of one month to two years or maximum fines of 500 to 2,500 euros (one euro equals about 1.2 US dollars). An attempted forced marriage is prosecutable with a jail term of 15 days to a year or a fine of 250 to 1,250 euros. The legislative proposal outlines the right to enter a marriage willingly and gives public prosecution authorities the ability to annul a forced marriage. Currently, only the married partners can apply for an annulment. Forced marriages are not uncommon in Belgium. A survey conducted between December 2003 and June 2004 found that 73.4 per cent of respondents said forced marriages still occur and 23 per cent said they had personally come into contact with the practice. — MNA/Xinhua

Celta lose 2-0 at Espanyol

Madrid, 12 March— Celta Vigo missed their chance to move up into the Champions League places on Saturday when they lost 2-0 away to 10-man Espanyol in the Primera Liga.

The defeat meant the Galicians, who had won four of their five previous games, remain in fifth place in the table, a point behind Osasuna who host leaders Barcelona on Sunday.

Espanyol took the lead early in the first half when Raul Tamudo steered into the open net after fellow striker Luis Garcia controlled a long pass with his toe and cut the ball back from the byline.

The Catalans, who are coached by former Celta boss Miguel Angel Lotina, looked to have landed themselves in trouble when defender Armando Sa was dismissed from the field for a foul on Adriano.

The final word on the encounter came two minutes into injury time, said Espanyol coach Miguel Angel Lotina.

Adriano ends goal drought as Inter beat Sampdoria

Rome, 12 March— Inter Milan striker Adriano ended a 10-match goal drought when he snatched the winner in a 1-0 victory over Sampdoria on Saturday.

Adriano’s goal, his first since scoring twice in a 3-2 triumph over Cagliari on January 15, left Inter third in Serie A with 62 points, two behind Serie A leaders AC Milan on Wednesday, at least avoided their second successive league setback after losing 2-1 at home to Hamburg SV last weekend.

‘It was very difficult for the team after Wednesday’s defeat and all the criticism that followed,’ said Bayern coach Felix Magath. ‘We played pretty well but lacked confidence and were not dangerous enough in front of goal.’

The champions extended their lead on Werder to nine points courtesy of a spectacular burst from Hertha.

The capital club, who badly needed a win after 13 competitive matches without victory, scored wide at full stretch.

Gallas strike wins London derby for Chelsea

London, 12 March— William Gallas, who struck a long-range shot in stoppage time to earn Chelsea a 2-1 win over Tottenham Hotspur on Saturday, said the victory helped to make amends for the team’s midweek Champions League exit.

The France defender, mobbed by teammates and manager Jose Mourinho in an exultant celebration two minutes into injury time, said it was the best goal he had scored.

The late winner also strengthened Gallas’ case for a new contract after persistent rumours in the British and French media that he might move at the end of the season because he felt undervalued by the Premier League champions.

‘Everybody said something about Chelsea after the (midweek) game in Barcelona and today we showed everyone we have a great team,’ Gallas told reporters.

The win sent Chelsea 18 points clear of second-placed Manchester United and extended their unbeaten league run against London rivals Spurs to 32 games over 16 years.

Mourinho, slammed by the Spanish and British media as a bad loser after the 3-2 aggregate defeat by Barcelona in the first knockout round of the Champions League, did not appear for the regular post-match news conference.—INTERNET

Ronaldo misses penalty as Real, Valencia draw

Madrid, 12 March— Real Madrid had to settle for a 0-0 draw at Valencia in the Primera Liga on Saturday after substitute Ronaldo spurned a golden opportunity to give his side victory when he missed a last-minute penalty.

The Brazilian, who was dropped to the bench by Real coach Juan Ramon Lopez Caro, earned the spot-kick after being fouled by Santiago Canizares but the Valencia goalkeeper atoned for his error when he saved Ronaldo’s low shot.

‘Things aren’t going well at the moment but I can only get out of this situation with enthusiasm and hard work,’ the striker told reporters after the game.

The draw played into the hands of leaders Barcelona, who have an opportunity to extend their nine-point lead at the top when they travel to fourth-placed Osasuna on Sunday.

Barca top the table on 61 points, Valencia and Real have 52 and Osasuna are six further back with 46.

Earlier, Celta Vigo missed their chance to move into the Champions League places when they lost 2-0 at 10-man Espanyol.

The defeat meant the Galicians, who had won four of their last five games, remain fifth a point behind Osasuna.

Real Sociedad eased their relegation worries by taking their first points in five games with a 1-0 win at Deportivo Coruna, whose last victory at the Riazor was three months ago.—MNA/Reuters
