Philippines to get 350mln euros new investment from Spain

MANILA, 1 July — The Philippines is expected to acquire at least 350 million euros of fresh investments from Spain, while President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo paid a working visit to Madrid, a report reaching here quoted Trade Secretary Peter Favila as saying on Friday.

The promised investments were guaranteed by bilateral agreements signed in Madrid, as a result of Arroyo’s visit to Spain, the Trade Secretary said.

Meanwhile, he told reporters that Filipino businessmen and their Spanish counterparts were still “finalizing” other agreements for possible investments besides the 350 million euros in the country, according to a report by the Philippine Star on its website.

The investments will focus on the fields of infrastructure, especially tourism facilities, power plants, sea port construction and commerce establishments, Favila said.

He added that various areas of investments were discussed such as information technology, mining, defence system and technology, waste management, water treatment, tourism and even traffic systems.

President Arroyo was on his trip to Spain, leading a delegation which mainly consists of trade and tourism officials.

During Arroyo’s visit, Spanish officials and businessmen however raised concerns over the inefficiency of the bureaucracy and the inadequacy of infrastructure in the Philippines, which they said were discouraging foreign investments from pouring into the country, according to another report by the Philippine Star on Friday.

Blair loses popular lead for first time

LONDON, 1 July — A poll in Britain revealed on Friday that Prime Minister Tony Blair is less popular than his main rival for the first time in 12 years.

Blair also suffered more bad news on the electoral front, with results from by-elections for two vacant parliamentary seats yielding a poor showing for his Labour Party.

Pollsters YouGov, in a survey commissioned by the Daily Telegraph newspaper, found 30 per cent of Britons thought new Conservative Party leader David Cameron would make the best prime minister, against 28 per cent who preferred Blair. The Telegraph said it was the first time any of five successive Conservative leaders had been preferred to Blair since Blair took the helm of the Labour Party in 1994 as opposition leader under Conservative Prime Minister John Major. In the Welsh District of Blaenau Gwent, independent Dai Davies defeated a Labour candidate for Parliament, thwarting Labour’s hopes of winning back one of its heartland seats, which Blair’s party lost at the last election last year.

Three US mountain climbers die in Peruvian Andes

LIMA, 1 July — Three United States citizens were reported dead on Friday, after the bodies were discovered at the bottom of a 500-metre ravine in the Peruvian Andes, Peru’s National Police said on Friday. A group of Spanish climbers following their route found their bodies and alerted the High Mountain Police, who took several days to recover the bodies because of the corpses’ inaccessible location. —MNA/Xinhua

Scientists research how to squeeze more oil out of natural reserves

LONDON, 1 July — Creating artificial seismic waves, similar to those that occur during an earthquake, could help squeeze more oil from natural reservoirs, scientists said on Wednesday.

They discovered that in addition to sending tremors that knock down buildings, earthquakes greatly increase the permeability of rocks to transmit fluids including oil.

“Shaking increases permeability,” Emily Brodsky, an assistant professor of Earth Sciences at the University of California, Santa Cruz, said in an interview. “Permeability governs how fluid flows through rock, whether it’s water or oil, so this has practical implications for oil extraction,” she added.

Brodsky and her colleagues, who reported their research in the journal Nature, also found that the amount of permeability is directly related to the amplitude of the shaking. “Potentially if you could increase permeability you could greatly increase the available oil you could tap out of a reserve,” she explained.

One way of doing that, in principle, is by mimicking the effects of an earthquake but scientists do not understand the physics well enough, or how to tune the vibrations, to increase the flow of oil.

One possibility would be to use vibroseis trucks that shake the ground to take a type of X-ray of the Earth to find out the structure of rocks and where the oil is located.

“If we understood the physics of the permeability enhancement well enough, the vibration could be tuned to increase with the flow of oil,” Brodsky added.

The scientists made their discovery after studying 20 years of data of water seeping in and out of wells during seven earthquakes in an area of California. — MNA/Reuters

China’s Lenovo enters Thai consumer “IT” market

BANGKOK, 1 July — Lenovo announced on Friday its official launch of consumer digital products into Thai market, based on which the biggest IT state enterprise of China is to expand its share all around the global IT market under the brand “Lenovo”.

The first four flagship products from Lenovo to hit Thai market are flash drives, MP3 players, digital cameras and web cameras, which made their debut on a large trade fair in central Bangkok Friday. Liu Hong, assistant vice-president of Lenovo group, told Xinhua that this is just the first step of a range of market-expanding efforts Lenovo aims to launch in the following days.

Lenovo has authorized ICC International, the biggest distributor in Thailand, as its sole distributor in Thailand, Cambodia and Laos.

US finds stolen laptop containing data of 26.5 mln veterans

WASHINGTON, 1 July — The US Government said on Thursday that it has recovered a stolen laptop that contains data of as much as 26.5 million veterans and other military personal.

Secretary of Veteran Affairs Jim Nicholson said in a statement that initial forensics tests by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) indicate the data on the laptop has not been improperly accessed.

In a separate statement, the FBI said there is no evidence that anyone accessed social security numbers and other data on the equipment. However, there is no mentioning in the two statements about how the laptop was recovered.

On 22 May, the Veterans Affairs Department announced that a laptop was stolen earlier that month from the home of an employee of the department and that it contained names, birth dates and social security numbers for as many as 26.5 million veterans who were discharged after 1975 or submitted benefit claims. The employee, who brought the data home without authorization, was fired later.

Initially the department thought that all of the 26.5 million people affected in the case were veterans, but a database comparison revealed that the lost data also included the bulk of active-duty military services, as well as more than 1 million members of the National Guard and reserves. — MNA/Xinhua

Briton gets 24 years for double murder in Singapore

SINGAPORE, 1 July — A British businessman who strangled his driver and killed the driver’s girlfriend, was jailed for 24 years in Singapore on Thursday, escaping the death penalty under an earlier extradition deal. Michael McCrea, 48, was accused of murdering the two Singaporeans, whose decomposed bodies were found in the boot of an abandoned car at a Singapore shopping centre in January 2002.

High Court Judge Choo Han Teck sentenced McCrea to 20 years on two charges of manslaughter and four years for destroying evidence. McCrea and his girlfriend, Audrey Ong, were also found guilty of trying to hide evidence.

The wicker chest holding them ‘shoddily’ was spattered with candle wax, while the woman was found alongside withered roses. A romantic note and champagne glass were also in the car. McCrea pleaded guilty to two counts of manslaughter. — MNA/Reuters

‘Shop for the elderly’ opens in Japan

AWAJI (Japan), 2 July — A convenience store chain in Japan has opened outlets tailored for the elderly, featuring wider aisles, larger price labels and a chill out space.

The model store on Awaji Island opened today.

Japanese convenience stores used to target customers in their 20s to 30s, but sales have been sluggish because of tougher competition and the rapidly aging society.

The company, Lawson, which hopes to cultivate a new customer base, plans to open more model stores across Japan by the autumn.

The Awaji store has a calming brown sign, a departure from Lawson’s trademark blue, and features a rest space and an array of items targeting the elderly.

The rest space is equipped with tables and a liquid crystal display television, in addition to massage chairs, so that customers can freely eat, drink and have conversations while shopping.

During a pilot programme last year in Kawanishi, steps such as installing blood pressure monitors and enlarging price labels turned out to be so popular that they led to a 50 per cent increase in store sales. — Internet

Vietnam wants to boost friendly, cooperative ties with China

HANOI, 1 July — Vietnam and China should promote their friendly and cooperative relations between the two parties, states and peoples, a Vietnamese minister said here Friday.

Vietnam and China, which have traditional friendship, are not only close but also are close friends. Minister of Public Security Le Hong Anh said while meeting with Hu Qianwen, Chinese Ambassador to Vietnam.

The two countries should organize more delegations to visit each other to share experiences, and promote culture and sports exchanges, Anh said. The minister highly appreciated China’s assistance to Vietnam in the wartime and its national construction, saying that China has contributed to victories of Vietnam.

In response, the Chinese Ambassador said China attaches importance to developing the friendly and cooperative relations with Vietnam.

The ambassador conveyed to Anh the invitation of Chinese Minister of Public Security Zhou Yongkang for a visit to China in September.

The Chinese ministry has decided to grant non-refundable aid of 1.5 million yuan (187,500 US dollars) worth of equipment to the Vietnamese ministry, he said.

Crocs shoes making great strides

Columbus (Ohio), 30 June — It was on a winter trip to Denver that Amanda Walker discovered the funky-looking footwear that would boost her body-care business.

The temperature 85 degrees and her feet tired, she was persuaded by locals to try Crocs. She thought the clog-like, rubber-like shoes were hideous but quickly got hooked on their comfort.

And, she decided, she just had to carry them at her store, Heavenly Bath, Body & More.

The bulky clog with a strap along the heel and holes across the top and around the toes is winning consumers over with its versatility and comfort. Food service and factory workers, hair stylists and hospital personnel buy them for comfort. Boaters and swimmers buy them for function. And some just think they’re fun.

“It’s unbelievable how popular they are,” said Walker, who sells an average of 16 pairs of the colourful shoes each week at her store in suburban Cincinnati and said they account for more than half of her business.

“I’ve definitely lived off Crocs for a while,” she said. “You get a shipment in and ‘poof’ they’re gone.”

Crocs, which got its name because the shoes are water-friendly and tough, now lends its cartoon crocodile logo to more than a dozen styles. There are flip flops, slides, a calf-high boot, a hiking shoe and a Mary Jane that’s set to hit stores this fall. They come in 20 colours — from chocolate and sea blue to lime and fuchsia — and prices range from about $30 to $60.—INTERNET

US soldiers investigated in Iraqi family’s killing

WASHINGTON, 1 July — The US military launched a criminal investigation into whether US soldiers killed a family of four Iraqi civilians in their home south of Baghdad, officials said on Friday.

A preliminary military inquiry into the incident found sufficient reason to move to a formal criminal investigation, the military said in a statement released in Baghdad.

It is the latest in a series of investigations in which US troops are suspected in the killings of civilians. Army Major-General James Thurman, the top US commander in the Baghdad area, asked the Army’s Criminal Investigation Command to look into the incident in the area of Mahmudiyah, south of the capital, the military said.

The investigation began on June 24, one day after two soldiers reported alleged involvement by other US soldiers in the deaths.

Last week, 12 US troops were charged with murder in the deaths of Iraqi civilians in two separate incidents. In addition, another criminal investigation is continuing into the suspected role of US Marines in killing 24 unarmed Iraqi civilians in the western town of Haditha last November.

China encourages companies to expand investment in Laos

BEIJING, 1 July — Premier Wen Jiabao on Thursday said China encourages companies to increase investment in Laos, and will help Laos introduce its export commodities to China.

Wen made the remarks during a meeting with the general secretary of the Central Committee of the Lao People’s Revolutionary Party and Lao President Choummaly Sayasone.

“China is highly concerned about Laos’ development,” Wen said, noting that China is ready to help Laos devise management training programmes, to support the development of Laos’ infrastructure, and to continue providing assistance to Laos for its social and economic development.

Wen said that with the joint efforts of both nations, China and Laos will achieve more fruits in bilateral cooperation in various fields, and the China-Laos relations would be lifted to a higher level.

Expressing satisfaction on the current development of China-Laos relations, Choummaly said Laos is ready to work with China to increase the mutually-beneficial cooperation in various fields, and to push for the development of traditional friendship between the two countries.

Chinese Vice-President Zeng Qinghong also met with Choummaly on Thursday, saying that to promote China-Laos friendly cooperative relations is an unwavering policy of the Communist Party of China and the Chinese Government.

Cancer causing protein may heal Alzheimers

HOUSTON, 1 July — Researchers have found that a protein known for driving the growth of cancer also plays a surprising role in restoring the ability of neurons to regenerate, making it an important target for addressing spinal cord damage or neurological diseases like Alzheimers.

“The finding suggests that the same process this protein uses for proliferating cancer could also potentially be used to regrow axons that are damaged in spinal cord injuries or neurological diseases,” said lead study author Antonio Iavarone, associate professor of neurology and pathology at Columbia University Medical Center’s Institute for Cancer Genetics.

The proteins known as Id proteins are abundant in the cells of different types of cancer, including brain, breast cancer and pediatric tumours and were known to promote tumour growth and aid the spread of cancer.

While searching for ways to attack Id’s cancer-causing properties, Iavarone and Anna Lasorella, assistant professor of pediatrics and pathology at the Institute, discovered the neuron-healing properties of Id proteins.

Their initial findings, published in The Nature, are significant for potential cancer therapies. The researchers found that an enzyme inside normal cells — called APC usually degrades Id proteins soon after they are produced, but cancerous cells show a very high level of Id proteins.

This suggests that reintroducing the APC enzyme into cancer cells could eliminate the proteins and arrest the growth of tumor cells, something that researchers will now investigate.

Among neurons, however, Iavarone and Lasorella examined the Id protein potential for promoting growth, rather than arresting it.

The researchers wanted to use the power of Id proteins to stimulate growth of axons — the structures on neurons responsible for transmitting electrical signals also in the brain and spinal cord.

But to do that, they needed to overcome the problem of the APC enzyme, which degrades the protein in normal cells. So they constructed a “super” Id protein that would resist degradation from the APC enzyme, allowing it to promote axonal growth.

Normally neurons cannot regenerate damaged axons because of the presence of myelin, a substance that surrounds the axons, but the degradation-resistant ‘super’ Id protein was able to promote axon growth even in the presence of myelin.

Iavarone added that there is no chance that such a therapy would cause cancer in the brain or spinal cord.

Baghdad attacks higher since security crackdown

WASHINGTON, 1 July — Guerilla attacks in Baghdad have risen despite a recent security crackdown that added thousands of troops and new checkpoints to the streets of Iraq’s capital, a US commander said on Friday.

HONOURING MYANMAR WOMEN’S DAY-2006:

Myanmar women preserving fine traditions

Aye Thandar Thein

Women make up more than 50 per cent of the population of Myanmar. Form time immemorial, Myanmar women have stood on their dignity with aptitude. Being strongly equipped with nationalist fervour and patriotic spirit, they have demonstrated brilliant performances in the interests of the nation and the people.

The Myanmar women who played an equal role with men in the anti-colonialist struggles and national liberation movements, the women who made supreme sacrifices in the interests of the motherland, and the women who showed their literary talents went down in the history of the nation.

By nature, Myanmar women are polite, gentle, considerate and kind and they value loving-kindness and truthfulness. Brought up under the religious teachings, they, since their childhood days, follow codes of conduct and instructions of elders. In addition, they observe codes of conduct while caring for their husbands and children. They share household duties with their husbands.

Myanmar women apply knowledge, education and skills they have learnt, to contribute towards the education, health, economic, social, administrative, literary and cultural sectors of the nation, sharing duties with men.

In some nations, due to racial discrimination, women cannot enjoy equal rights in marriage, divorce, inheritance and pursuit of education. In Myanmar, women do not need to ask for equal rights since they already enjoy human rights fully. Form birth to death, Myanmar women can lead an independent life with their abilities. They preserve their lineage. Myanmar women can lead an independent life with their abilities. They preserve their lineage. Myanmar women enjoy human rights fully. Form birth to death, Myanmar women can lead an independent life with their abilities.

The government encourages Myanmar women who have acquired a good reputation for their outstanding performances and dignity and raises their role.

The Myanmar National Committee for Women’s Affairs was reconstituted as the Myanmar Women’s Affairs Federation on 20 December 2003 so as to effectively speed up implementation of the tasks for promotion of the role of women and to secure the lives of women.

The MWAF has laid down seven objectives—
- to enhance the role of women in the building of a peaceful, modern and developed nation
- to protect the rights of women
- to ensure the economic, health, education and general welfare of women and to provide measures for their security
- to instill and foster in Myanmar women a greater appreciation for their national, cultural heritage and customs
- to systematically protect women from violence and provide means for rehabilitation where necessary
- to diminish and finally eliminate trafficking in women and children as a national task
- to collaborate with international as well as local organizations, to ensure the rights of women in accordance with the traditions and customs of the ethnic groups.

The MWAF (Central) formed women’s affairs organizations at state/division, ward and village levels to improve the lives of women.

In collaboration with congenial departments in its drive for the improvement of the lives of the women and prevention of violence against women, the MWAF is stepping up holding of educative talks and counselling the women who are facing social problems. It also yearly organizes costumes shows so that young Myanmar women would value and prefer to wear domestic modest costumes.

In addition, it is contributing towards public welfare tasks such as conducting various courses, providing cash assistance for needy children for educational purpose, providing teaching and learning aids to schools for the blind and schools for the deaf and dumb, providing medicines for the patients, collectively donating blood, carrying out sanitation tasks, and participation in the environmental conservation campaigns.

Like members of the Myanmar Women’s Affairs Federation, the member intellectuals and organisations are working towards the improvement of the lives of women.

The mass of Myanmar women are urged to be united as a strong national force with fine traditions and high calibre and to be harmonious with the government, the people and the Tatmadaw in the drive for speedy transition to a peaceful, modern and developed nation.

Proud Woman

* Mata Pita, Mother and Father
'Tis said since ancient times
But in those words, a clue is found
Distinct and memorable
Father is preceded by Mother.

* Woman who assumes role of Mother
Has possessed high pride
“Not just guiling words
Are the weaker gender...
Don’t look for prettier one and leave
And the weaker gender…”

There’s no need to entreat thus
These days, in the new century
Woman though tender
With new strength on Myanmar land
Not a step behind, will show capability
These Myanmar women.

Be you Myanmar, you love
Your land, eternally cherishing it.
There’s no gender discrimination
Each with her own strength and capability
That she may possess
To work in the interest of Myanmar
Women’s Federation was formed
Myanmar woman, Myanmar blood
To be respected and proud of

* O..., Myanmar woman, Myanmar blood
Maintain your cultured movements
Love your kin and lineage
Look not for your interest but your land’s
See the difference between host and guest
Where’s your future interest, where’s what spoils it.
Get the enemy that’ll destroy your race
And annihilate them
Then only winsome Myanmar’s women
Who possess Myanmar traits
Will truly be worthy of Being Myanmar’s beloved daughters.

32 countries to take part in Thai Royal Flora Expo

BANGKOK, 2 July — Thirty-two countries will participate in Thailand’s three-month-long Royal Flora Expo 2006, at which more than 2,000 rare species of tropical plants and flowers will be on display, caretaker Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra announced Saturday.

In his first radio address to the public after a four-month absence, Thaksin said monarchs from several countries, including Crown Prince Jigme Khesar Namgyel Wangchuck of Bhutan, will preside over their countries’ opening of representative plants’ exhibitions at the flower and plant exposition.

NASA postpones launch of space shuttle in Florida

CAPE CANAVERAL (Florida), 2 July — NASA postponed the launch of space shuttle Discovery on Saturday due to thunderstorms and the possibility of lightning in the area of the Florida launch pad.

The US space agency will try again on Sunday to launch a mission whose failure could ground the US shuttle fleet permanently and leave the International Space Station unfinished.

Discovery’s mission is meant to test repairs to the fuel tank, carry much-needed equipment and supplies to the space station and make repairs to the $100-billion-or-dollar orbiting outpost.

Cleric says Iran will not talk over atomic rights

TEHERAN, 1 July — Iran will not hold talks over its right to nuclear technology despite growing Western pressure, an influential cleric said on Friday. “Iran will certainly not discuss its obvious right to nuclear technology.” Ahmad Khattami told worshippers at Friday prayers in Teheran.

He was speaking a day after the Group of Eight industrialized nations told Iran to give a “clear and substantive response” next week to a proposal containing incentives for Iran to halt work that could produce nuclear weapons or face UN Security Council sanctions.

Khattami, who is a member of the Assembly of Experts — a clerical body that supervises Iran’s Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei — reiterated that any talks to resolve Iran’s nuclear issue should be on Iranian terms.

Russia denies transfer of missile technology to Iran

MOSCOW, 1 July — There has never been an agreement on the transfer of Russian missile technology to Iran, Defence Minister Sergei Ivanov said on Friday.

“In the state area, there was not and there is not any cooperation with Iran in the sphere of missile technology,” Ivanov said at a news conference dedicated to the presentation of the White Book on non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction.

“Over the past five to six years, the problems of missile technology leaks have been always discussed in our dialogue with the United States. Russia has repeatedly said that our stance is crystal clear,” Ivanov said.

Ivanov said that the United States “has understood the groundlessness of such accusations addressed to Russia; just for this reason, it has lifted a number of restrictions in relation to Roskosmos (the Russian Federal Space Agency).”

Ivanov commented on a recent report by The Washington Post alleging that Iranian missile specialists had been trained at Russia’s Samara Aerospace University.

“We have checked this information just in case and made sure that this is a canard,” he said.

According to Ivanov, all possible channels of sensitive technology leaks from Russia have been shut down.— MNA/Xinhua

Russia successfully launches ballistic missile

MOSCOW, 1 July— The Russian Northern Fleet’s nuclear-powered submarine on Friday successfully launched a ballistic missile from the Barents Sea in combat training, Navy Press Service said.

The RSM-54 missile was fired from the submarine at 10:25 Moscow Time (0625 GMT) from the Barents Sea in the direction of the Kara testing range on the Kamchatka Peninsula, the Press service said.

"The missile’s warhead arrived at the range exactly at the planned time," it said. "The successful launch confirmed the high readiness of the maritime strategic nuclear forces and the efficiency of the tactical control system," the Press release said.

The first was launched on 26 May, when the Northern Fleet shot into space a Kompas-2 satellite on the carrier rocket Strela.

US, Russian scientists develop genetically modified tomatoes

LONDON, 1 July— Russian and US researchers have developed genetically modified tomatoes that contain an edible vaccine that could challenge HIV and the Hepatitis B virus (HBV) in humans.

Researchers at Russia’s Siberian Institute of Plant Physiology and Biochemistry used the soil bacterium Agro-bacterium tumefaciens to shuttle a synthetic combination of HIV and HBV DNA fragments into tomato plants. These include fragments of genes for various HIV proteins and the gene for an HBV protein called HBV surface antigen, according to a report on the New Scientist website on Thursday.

The tomato plants then manufacture the proteins and, like the oral polio vaccine, when the tomatoes are eaten, these proteins prompt the body to create antibodies against the viruses. Mice fed a solution containing the tomatoes in powdered form developed high levels of antibodies in their blood to both viruses, the researchers said.

The vaccine does not need to be refrigerated or injected, which are big advantages in poor countries, the report said, quoting researcher Rose Hammond of the US Agricultural Department which is collaborating with the Russian researchers. The aim is to create affordable vaccines for HIV and the HBV that could be easily grown and processed in the countries where they are most needed. If the tomato-based vaccines work in humans, they could be given in tablet form, since giving people the tomatoes directly would make it difficult to control how much protein they received, the researchers said.— MNA/Xinhua

Famed theatre director Lloyd Richards dies

NEW YORK, 1 July— Lloyd Richards, the Tony Award-winning director and educator who brought August Wilson’s works to the stage and directed the famed 1959 Broadway production of “A Raisin in the Sun”, has died in New York.

Richards, who was believed to be 87, died on Thursday after a brief illness that sent him to the hospital, officials of the O’Neill Theatre Centre told Playbill.com on Friday.

Broadway honored Richards by dimming marquees lights on Friday.

The Toronto-born Richards, who grew up in Detroit, was also a stalwart of regional theatre and was long active in the academic community, where he was known for his ability to nurture playwrights.

He served as artistic director of the National Playwrights Conference at the O’Neill Centre for 32 years, was dean of the Yale School of Drama and artistic director of the Yale Repertory Theatre. Richards won the 1987 Tony for his direction of Wilson’s “Fences”.

His partnership with Wilson, an award-winning playwright whose work focused on the lives of Black Americans, led to six Broadway productions, including “Seven Guitars”, “Joe Turner’s Come and Gone”: “Ma Rainey’s Black Bottom”; “Two Trains Running” and “The Piano Lesson”.— MNA/Xinhua

Jennifer Lopez’s thighs tell-all book, for now

LOS ANGELES, 1 July— Jennifer Lopez’s first husband has agreed not to publish intimate details or criticism of the actress-singer while they try to settle a lawsuit over his planned tell-all book, court documents showed on Friday.

A preliminary injunction between the star and her former spouse, Ojani Noa, was signed by a Los Angeles Superior Court judge on Thursday and made public a day later, resulting in the cancellation of a hearing in the case.

Lopez sued Noa in April to stop him from publishing an expose she said would breach a nondisclosure, “non-disparagement” pact between them. She then obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent him from going ahead with the proposed book.

The preliminary injunction signed this week will remain in effect until either the two settle their dispute or a jury trial is held to decide whether the latest court order will remain permanent.

Under the injunction, the Cuban-born Noa is barred from “criticizing, denigrating, casting in a negative light or otherwise disparaging” Lopez. He also may not disclose for financial gain “any private or intimate details” about Lopez or their relationship, the court order stated.

Moreover, Noa may not sell or circulate a manuscript of the book and must retrieve any book materials from anyone who may have possession of them and inform those parties that they, too, are barred from disseminating them.

In the meantime, both sides were directed to try to “resolve their dispute without engaging in further litigation”, the court order states. — MNA/Reuters

Oscars change rules for foreign-language nominees

LOS ANGELES, 1 July— Oscar organizers on Friday unveiled two changes for the 2006 foreign-language category, broadening the group that selects nominees as well as the films that might be considered for the world’s top movie awards.

Sid Ganis, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which gives out the Oscars, said in a statement the changes were “constructive but not earthshaking”.

For moviemakers outside the United States, an Academy Award can give their films global recognition and help boost ticket sales, making nominations of major importance.

The first change broadens the group of Academy members who name nominees. Previously, a set of Los Angeles-based voters would pick a short list from which final nominees were chosen, but now that list will be derived from two phases of voting.— MNA/Reuters

Stiles leads at River Highlands

WASHINGTON, 2 July—Darron Stiles birdied his final hole to steal a one-shot lead after the second round of the Buick Championship at Cromwell, Connecticut on Friday.

The American journeyman fired a four-under-par 66 at the TPC at River Highlands. That left him at eight-under 132 with Peter Lonard, bidding to become Australia’s fifth winner on the PGA Tour this season, alone in second place after a 68.

Stewart Cink shot a flawless 65 to lie a further stroke back in a share of third with fellow Americans Scott Verplank (69), Todd Fischer (68) and Notay Begay III (66). One off the pace overnight after opening with a 66, Stiles offset a birdie at the 13th with a bogey-five back in a share of third with fellow Americans Scott Verplank (69), Todd Fischer (68) and Notay Begay III alone in second place after a 68.

The 33-year-old then stepped up a gear, reeling off three birdies in a row from the par-four first before holing out from 10 feet at the ninth to snatch the overall lead. —MNA/Xinhua

Sorenstam leads at US Women’s Open

WASHINGTON, 2 July—World number one Annika Sorenstam of Sweden fired a 69 to earn a sharing lead in the first round of the US Women’s Open at Newport Country Club in Newport, Rhode Island on Friday.

Sorenstam, after five years of total domination in the women’s game, has just won title this time. But three birdies and a bundle of other opportunities confirmed she could be set for a serious summer run. —MNA/Xinhua

Brazil gripped by sadness after World Cup loss

SAO PAULO (Brazil), 2 July—Tears flowed as disappointment gripped Brazil on Saturday after its star-studded World Cup soccer team suffered a stingy 1-0 defeat to France, ending its hopes of a sixth championship.

“This was the worst thing that could have happened — to lose to France again,” said Fabio Santos, 39, a fan in Sao Paulo.

Brazil, which won the previous World Cup championship in 2002, and is the only country to have won five World Cup titles, considers itself a global soccer super-power.

But it lost to France in the 1998 World Cup final and many Brazilians who had prayed their team would not be jinxed again on Saturday.

Brazil’s team struggled to find its rhythm and a tough French defense quieted Brazilian strikers.

“We’re stranded here crying, feeling immense frustration,” said Ricardo Santos, one of the organizers of the cheering section on a Rio de Janeiro street where some 10,000 people watched the game.

Nearby, Julio Gomes, a 30-year-old bank employee, held his weeping girlfriend.

France show class to tame Brazil again

FRANKFURT, 2 July—A France team reminiscent of a previous vintage knocked out holders Brazil 1-0 with a Thierry Henry goal on Saturday to reach the World Cup semifinals.

Striker Henry, left unmarked in the penalty area, volleyed home a free kick from Zinedine Zidane for the winner after 57 minutes.

Les Bleus, who had stunned Brazil 3-0 in the 1998 final, produced a superb performance to set up a match with Portugal on Wednesday in Munich for a place in the July 9 final.

Five-times champions Brazil, who were hoping to reach the World Cup final for the fourth time in succession, looked nervous throughout a game of high quality. France’s win means the great Zidane, who was back to his brilliant best in Frankfort, has not played his last match yet.

The 34-year-old maestro, who will retire after the finals, lived up to the occasion, as did the entire French team.

The finest bunch of players to wear French colours when they were world champions began the finals sluggishly but proved at Brazil’s expense that they are still a formidable outfit.

Brazil showed more initiative in a tight, tactical start dominated by an intense battle for possession and threatened after 11 minutes as Ronaldinho headed a Ronaldinho free kick over.

France, gradually winning more balls in midfield and gaining confidence, dominated their prestigious opponents for most of a frustrating first period with few highlights. —MNA/Reuters

Sorensen leads at US Women’s Open

WASHINGTON, 2 July—World number one Annika Sorenstam of Sweden fired a 69 to earn a sharing lead in the first round of the US Women’s Open at Newport Country Club in Newport, Rhode Island on Friday.

Sorenstam, a winner in 1995 and 1996, joined South Korea’s Pak Se Ri and two Americans, Pat Hurst and teenage amateur Jane Park, on two under par.

One shot back in a group of five was 16-year-old Michelle Wie, while Paula Creamer and Mexican Lorena Ochoa were nicely-placed on 71 on a day when just 16 broke par.

Sorenstam, after five years of total domination in the women’s game, has just won title this time. But three birdies and a bundle of other opportunities confirmed she could be set for a serious summer run. —MNA/Xinhua

Klinsmann the man with the midsas touch

BERLIN, 2 July—It could be beginner’s luck or a natural flair for the job but for the moment at least Germany coach Juergen Klinsmann can do no wrong.

His team squeezed into the World Cup semifinals with a 4-2 victory on penalties against Argentina on Friday after the match finished 1-1 at the end of extra time.

Klinsmann, once again, could take immense personal satisfaction from the result, which takes the hosts through to face Italy for left winger Joe Cole, but England were badly lacking firepower up front.

Portugal Luiz Felipe Scolari, who was behind England’s downfall at the 2002 World Cup for his native Brazil and the same for Portugal at Euro 2004, tried to galvanize his men from the touchline. —MNA/Reuters

Ricardo saves put Portugal through

GELSENKIRCHEN, 2 July—Portuguese goalkeeper Ricardo saved three penalties to give his side a 3-1 penalty shootout win over England in the World Cup quarterfinal on Saturday after a goalless 120 minutes.

Cristiano Ronaldo scored the winning penalty after Ricardo saved penalties from England midfielders Frank Lampard and Steven Gerrard and substitute Jame Carragher.

Portugal now play the winners of the Brazil-France game in the semifinal.

After a closely-contested first half, 21st Century sparked after 62 minutes when England striker Wayne Rooney, only back from a broken foot at these finals and seen as key to their World Cup hopes was red-carded.

Involved in a tussle for possession, Rooney stamped on the groin of defender Ricardo Carvalho virtually in front of Argentine referee Horacio Elizondo.

England were already without captain David Beckham, left sitting in tears with his head in his hands after being sent-off in the 51st minute, seemingly after taking a knock from Nuno Valente.

Nothing went right for Sven-Goran Eriksson’s men, who had a penalty appeal ignored just two minutes earlier when a Beckham cross struck the arm of Valente.

Eriksson reacted to Rooney’s dismissal by bringing on towering striker Peter Crouch.
