Rice trading expected to increase in coming fiscal year

YANGON, 23 Jan — Myanmar will expand exporting of rice to markets in the European Union, Japan and Africa in addition to China in the coming fiscal year, according to the Myanmar Rice Federation.

The Myanmar Rice Federation released a statement saying that as China is the largest rice market at Myanmar, nine public companies have been chosen to have permits to export rice. However, these companies will start exportation in late April, chief executive officer U Nay Lin Zin of the federation told reporters.

The chosen companies are: Myanmar Agricultural Economy Public Corporation, FPR Company of Myanmar Rice Merchants Association, Myanmar Rice Mill of Myanmar Rice Millers’ Association, Golden Land East Asia of Republic of the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Bayintnaung brokers, Mandalay rice dealers, companies formed with Muse rice dealers, Ayeyawady and Rakhine Rice Company.

“While trying to get permission to export rice to China, Myanmar companies send rice to the markets in EU, Japan and Africa. Thanks to efforts of the government in giving more priority to development of small- and medium-scale enterprises, local entrepreneurs can manage manufacturing of high-quality products. At present, the federation is seeking market promotion so as to increase the export of rice from 1.5 million tons to about 2.5 million tons,” the CEO said.

China Certification & Inspection Group will come to Myanmar for checking the quality of products to be imported to China’s market by the end of January.

“After checking quality of products and whether they are pest free, officials will import rice,” the official, adding that it means a market for rice.

Recovery plans for environmental degradation explained in Amyotha Hluttaw

NAY PYI TAW, 23 Jan — The Amyotha Hluttaw (Upper House) session here on Friday saw a question arise as to plans for the recovery of environmental degradation caused by some ministries.

U Aye Myint Maung, Deputy Minister for Environmental Conservation and Forestry, responded that cautious efforts are under way to minimize serious damage to the environment through supervisions at all levels.

The ministry has instructed mining companies to refill open pits with top soil from exploration sites and grow perennial trees and shady trees in order to maintain ecosystems. According to the deputy minister, permission for mine closure requires an approval from local government, which will inspect activities of land re-mediation and reclamation carried out by extractive companies in areas concerned.

“Legal actions are being taken against mine sites being operated without permission,” he said.

As to another question of how PTTEP, a Thai oil company, received permission to drill for oil in the Bay of Bengal in Kaymag Region, the deputy minister said that the Thailand’s oil company is carrying out oil drilling in cooperation with the Ministry of Energy for national interests on the basis of mutual benefits. He added the oil firm recompensed over K617,449 million for 4.88 acres of land affected by their project.

An MP from Rakhine State welcomed the bill, saying that it protects freedom of worship and forced religious conversion, and is compatible with human rights.—MNA

Myanmar still relies on imported western medicine

By Khairng Thanda Lwin

YANGON, 23 Jan—Myanmar’s imported percentage of western medicine products would remain unchanged this year, according to Dr Win Sithu, Chairman of Myanmar Pharmaceutical and Medical Equipment Entrepreneurs Association (MPMEEA).

Myanmar imported about 85% of western medicines from foreign countries and the number of drug importers has been increasing year by year. Over 50% of imports come from India that remains a main medicine exporter to Myanmar, followed by Thailand and China, he added.

Approximately 98% of medical equipment is also imported from big foreign countries such as the United States, European countries and Japan.

Currently, the country’s medicine manufacturing sector is still weak. Foreign countries show their interest to improve this sector, Dr Win Sithu said.

He continued to say that consumption of vitamins and minerals in the country is growing year by year, and local entrepreneurs also have future plans to establish a public company to promote the medicine production.

“To find more business opportunities as well as promote public awareness, the association will organize the second health expo at Tatmadaw convention hall in Yangon from 5 to 7 February,” said Dr Thwin Nwe Soe, vice chairman of MPMEEA.

The three-day event also aimed at enabling people to understand state-of-the-art medical technology and exchanging knowledge through a network of medicine importers.

More than 40 pharmaceutical distributors will display their products through over 100 booths, with the organizer expecting more than 5,000 people to come to the fair.

Items to be displayed at the expo are western medicine, hospital and medical equipment and local and foreign health care services. It also covers health talks and entertainment programmes.

The Myanmar Pharmaceutical and Medical Equipment Entrepreneurs Association said first expo was held in 2013 and it plans to conduct an expo every two year.

The vice president said that the Ministry of Cooperatives has introduced a system that enables rural farmers to pay for agricultural machinery in installments, which he noted helps them save time, money and energy.

The cooperative system demands concerted cooperation of individual members in enjoying higher socioeconomic status, with the vice president saying that cooperative success will ease their reliance on the government and enhance their lifestyle, thereby contributing to public and national interests.

He pointed out the need to copy the examples of successful cooperative activities in other countries as part of reducing poverty and strengthening national economy.

Japan seizes no clues in hostage crisis after ‘deadline’

SYDNEY, 23 Jan — Australia asked Indonesia to rethink death penalty for two drug offenders.

Tokyo, 23 Jan — Japan has faced a desperate struggle to win the release of two men held hostage by the Islamic State militant group amid no signs of positive development after a perceived 72-hour deadline for paying a $200 million ransom that the hostages expired on Friday afternoon.

“The situation remains extremely severe, and we just continue to do what we have to do for them to be released as early as possible,” Chief Cabinet Secretary Yoshihide Suga said at a Press conference on Friday held about an hour after the deadline.

“Our stance of contributing to the international fight against terrorism remains unchanged,” the top government spokesman said.

Asked if there has been any contact from the hostages, he instance about a possible extension of the deadline, Suga said, “Nothing in particular,” while declining to give details of the ongoing diplomatic efforts.

He also refused to comment on media reports that the Islamic State is set to issue a statement sometime soon and that a warning has been posted online that the countdown has been heightened.

A man claiming to be an Islamic State member threatened in an online video message Tuesday to kill the two — Kenji Goto, 47, and Haruna Yukawa, 42 from Jakarta, while Nigeria summoned the Indonesian ambassador in Abuja to protest against the execution of their citizens.

Abbot said he and Foreign Minister Julie Bishop had made direct representations to their Indonesian counterparts and “are continuing to make every possible effort through the most effective channels” to stop the execution of Myuran Sukumaran and Andrew Chan.

It was not immediately clear when the executions of Sukumaran, 33, and Chan, 31, might take place.

Bishop said earlier this week she would not rule out recalling the Australian ambassador should the executions be carried out.

“This is an unbelievably difficult time for the families of these young men,” Abbot said. “I spoke with both families today and will ensure the government continues to support them.”

Indonesia has a record of imposing severe penalties for drug trafficking, summing executions in 2013 after a five-year gap.

Relations between Indonesia and Australia hit a low in late 2013 after reports that Australia had spied on top Indonesian officials, including then-president Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono.

Indonesia froze military and intelligence cooperation with Australia and restored relations in May 2014.

Abbot said the government would make no further public comment on the case in the interests of the convicted men.

Bangkok, 23 Jan — Thailand’s junta-appointed National Legislative Assembly on Friday voted to impeach former Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra over a controversial rice policy that her government supported, while banning her from politics for five years.

Yingluck had denied the charges against her during impeachment proceedings that started 9 January, saying she had governed the country honestly, transparently and justly, in compliance with the Constitution, laws and regulations, being unseat by a Constitutional Court ruling in May last year.

It was argued in the assembly proceedings that the then ruling Thai party’s flagship rice-pledging policy brought a huge debt to the nation.

Under the rice policy, farmers could pledge their rice crops in return for payment, but critics say the plan was riddled with corruption and was offering farmers payments in excess of international market prices for rice, which caused the government to run up huge bills.

They say the Yingluck government neglected taking action despite acknowledging the loss and allowed the rice-subsidy program to continue, causing Thailand’s financial situation to deteriorate. — Kyodo News

N Korea seeks Russia’s help to improve electric power lines

Seoul, 23 Jan — South Korean President Park Geun-hye has met with the ruling Saenuri Party’s floor leader, Lee Wan Koo, as new prime minister, according to sources.

The new prime minister is not considered as a key figure in the leadership as executive power is largely concentrated in the president. The outgoing prime minister has resigned over the government’s handling of a ferry sinking that has left more than 300 people, mostly teenagers on a school excursion, dead or missing.

The capital’s Sewol ship in April last year resulted in a storm of criticism against the government for its bungling of rescue and search efforts in the initial stage of the maritime disaster.

Despite having tendered his resignation, Chung continued to retain the premiership after the president’s nominees failed to obtain a parliamentary approval.

In recent months, North Korea and Russia have been promoting bilateral ties.

North Korea’s ambassador to Russia, Choe Ryong Hae, a high-ranking member of the North’s ruling Workers’ Party’s senior leadership, visited Russia in November as an envoy of leader Kim Jong Un. He met with President Vladimir Putin and handed him a personal message from the North Korean leader.

Two days later, after holding talks with Choe, Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov told reporters they confirmed the two countries’ readiness to have contacts at all levels, including the highest one at mutually convenient times.

A spat of high-level exchanges in recent months between Pyongyang and Moscow has fueled speculation that Russia will be Kim’s choice for his first overseas trip since taking office nearly three years ago.

Lavrov said on Wednesday that an invitation to attend the 70th anniversary celebrations of the Soviet Union’s victory over Nazi Germany received a “positive” response from North Korea, news reports said.

France takes battle against radical Islam into schools

PARIS, 23 Jan — France announced new measures on Thursday aimed at helping schools combat radical Islam, racism and anti-Semitism in reaction to deadly Islamist attacks two weeks ago. The moves include more teacher training and civics and ethics education in the country’s secular curricula, come after dozens of schools complained of pupils refusing to join a 8 January nationwide minute of silence for the victims.

French symbols such as the flag and national anthem will be explicitly celebrated and one day, 9 December, set aside as a “Day of Secularism”. Poor pupils will receive more grants and efforts will be made to make school intakes more socially diverse.

While millions of French marched to defend freedom of expression after the killings at satirical weekly Charlie Hebdo, others have described its cartoons of the Prophet Mohammad as offensive and rejected the “Je suis Charlie” (I am a French) movement of national unity.

In an unprecedented indictment by a French leader of the country’s failure to integrate large immigrant populations from North Africa and elsewhere, Prime Minister Manuel Valls said this week the aftermath of the attacks demonstrated that a form of “social and ethnic apartheid” existed in France.

“Secularism must be applied everywhere, because that is how everyone will be able to live in peace with each other,” Valls told a news conference.

A thousand educationists will receive training to help teachers deal with pupils’ questions on France’s secular tradition, citizenship, prejudices, with an early-warning system created to identify and deal with worrying behaviour.

Three home-grown gunmen of Algerian and African origin killed 17 people in three days of violence, starting with the attack on the offices of Charlie Hebdo and ending with a siege at a Jewish supermarket in Paris.

Around 200 incidents in which the national minute of silence was disrupted in schools were reported to the education ministry and social media testify to differences among many pupils about the limits of freedom of expression.

Few dispute that many children, notably from immigrant backgrounds, feel outside a French school system once heralded as among the best in the world but now showing some signs of no full consensus on the causes or the remedies.

“There has long been a complaint, on these and kind of problems in the national education system,” said Valerie Marty, president of the national parents association Peep.

Others argue the root cause lies in a “ghettoisation” of immigrant populations in underprivileged zones around big cities.

India, US trying to get nuclear deal over line during Obama trip

NEW DELHI, 23 Jan — India and the United States were trying to narrow differences on nuclear trade on Thursday as French President Barack Obama’s visit, but New Delhi ruled out a change in its liability law that has choked off US investment.

Nuclear commerce worth billions of dollars was meant to be the centerpiece of a new strategic relationship between the United States and India, allowing New Delhi access to nuclear fuel without going up its weapons programme.

But the 2010 Indian nuclear liability law that makes equipment suppliers ultimately responsible for an accident has held back firms including GE-Hitachi, Toshiba’s Westinghouse Electric Company and France’s Areva from proceeding with the construction of reactors.

On Thursday, negotiators from the two governments met for a second day in London to hammer out an accord that Obama and Indian Prime Minister Narenda Modi hope to announce during talks set for Sunday. It followed talks in Vienna and New Delhi.

“Even as we speak our negotiators are working together in a collaborative manner in London. It is the third time they are meeting in approximately 45 days, you can see the element of effort that is going into the nuclear issue,” foreign ministry spokesman Syed Akbaruddin told reporters.

India has offered to set up an insurance pool to indemnify companies which have won the right to construct reactors in the country against liability in the case of a nuclear accident, as a way around the law.

It says the law can’t be changed for lack of political support.

Under the plan readied by state-run reinsurer GIC Re, insurance would be bought by the companies contracted to build the nuclear reactors which would then recoup the cost by charging more for their services.

Alternatively, state-run operator Nuclear Power Corporation of India (NPCIL) would take out insurance on behalf of these companies.

“What is being discussed is how, within the four walls of our legal framework, our legislation, we can provide assurances to our partners in the US of any concerns they may have through their vendors or their lawyers,” Akbaruddin said.

India’s law, written under the shadow of the Bhagol gas disaster, is a deviation from the global norm in which the nuclear operator bears responsibility for an accident, not the equipment providers.

European foreign ministers plead against new Iran sanctions moves

UNITED NATIONS, 23 Jan — Leading European foreign policy officials on Thursday warned that new sanctions legislation against Iran could torpedo efforts to secure a long-term agreement with Teheran to curb its nuclear programme.

The plea, in an opinion piece published in the Washington Post, appeared to be directed at the Republican-controlled US Congress weighing new sanctions, even though the piece did not explicitly mention US lawmakers.

It was by British Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond, French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius, German Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier and European Union foreign policy chief Federica Mogherini.

Some prominent US lawmakers are calling for new sanctions, further pressure Iran to compromise in deadlocked nuclear negotiations with six world powers. That would be a mistake, the Europeans cautioned.

Introducing new hurdles at this critical stage of the negotiations, including through additional nuclear-related sanctions legislation on Iran, would jeopardise our efforts at a critical juncture, they wrote.

While many Iranian officials have said they are prepared to negotiate for the sake of peace, “the US and EU should not give them new arguments”, they wrote.

Negotiators from Iran and six major powers — the United States, Britain, France, Germany, Russia and China — failed to meet a self-imposed deadline in November for an agreement seen as crucial to reducing the risk of a wider Middle East war.

A deal would curb Iran’s nuclear programme in exchange for relief from economic sanctions.

The new deadline for a long-term agreement is 30 June.

“New sanctions at this moment might also fracture the international coalition that has made sanctions so effective so far,” the Europeans said.

“Rather than strengthening our negotiating position, new sanctions legislation at this point would set us back.”

“For the first time we may have a real chance to resolve one of the world’s long-standing security threats — and the chance to do it peacefully,” they wrote. “We can’t let that chance pass us by or do anything to derail our progress.”

US and Iranian negotiators will hold talks about Iran’s nuclear programme on Monday in Switzerland on 30 June.

Under a November 2013 accord with the six, Iran halted its most sensitive nuclear activity in exchange for some easing of sanctions.

Teheran says its atomic programme is peaceful but the West fears it is aimed at developing the capability to produce nuclear weapons.

Legal history of the divided world is not just how people think and do things through education, research and service. The University of Singapore intends to transform the single, stronger entity, and research, within a dynamic “no-walls” environment.

In its vision, the university intends to transform the ways people think and do things through education, research and service. The NUS mission comprises three mutually reinforcing thrusts:

1. Transformative education that nurtures thinking individuals who are alive to opportunities to make a difference, are valued members and leaders of society, and global citizens effective in diverse settings.
2. High-impact research that advances the boundaries of knowledge and contributes to the betterment of society.
3. Dedicated service, as a national university, that adds to social, economic and national development.

Regulating the strategy, the NUS outlines eight key components:

1. Nurture, recruit and retain best quality people, the single most important determinant of the quality of education and research.
2. Attract the best students, who are academically strong, and who have passion, commitment, leadership potential and come from diverse backgrounds.
3. Provide a high quality educational experience that stretches students, is globally-oriented, and develops skills and values to enable them to reach their full potential.
4. Focus on high impact research that advances knowledge and its application, and which is of high international quality and impact.
5. Inject a spirit of enterprise into education and research, and develop impactful synergies in education, in research, and between education and research, within a dynamic “no-walls” environment.
6. Nurture committed alumni to be key members of the NUS community, who will actively support NUS towards its Vision and Mission.
7. Develop global profile and reach as a leader among universities.
8. Adopt and adapt best practice governance and management, for optimal administration, management of resources and facilities, and faculty, staff and student services.

Interesting History of NUS

In September 1904, Tan Jik Kim led a group of representatives of the Chinese and other non-European communities, and petitioned the Governor of the Straits Settlements, Sir John Anderson, to establish a medical school in Singapore. Tan, who was the first president of the Straits Chinese British Association, attracted the best students, who were academically strong in medicine, and managed to raise $7,077, Straits dollars, of which the largest amount of $12,000 came from him. The Straits dollar was the currency of the Straits Settlements from 1898 until 1939. At the same time, it was also used in the Federated Malay States, the Un-federated Malay States, Sarawak, Brunei, and British North Borneo. On 3 July 1905, the medical school was founded, and was known as the Straits Settlements and Federated Malay States Government Medical School.

In 1912, the medical school received an endowment of $120,000 from the King Edward VII Memorial Fund, started by Lim Boon Keng. Subsequently on 18 November 1913, the name of the school was changed to the King Edward VII Medical School. In 1921, it was again changed to the King Edward VII College of Medicine to reflect its academic status.

In 1928, Raffles College was established to promote arts and social sciences at tertiary level for Malayan students.

Establishment of the university

Two decades later, Raffles College merged with the King Edward VII College of Medicine to form the University of Malaya on 8 October 1949. The two institutions were merged to provide for the higher education needs of the Federation of Malaya and Singapore.

The growth of University of Malaya was very rapid during the first decade of its establishment and resulted in the setting up of two autonomous divisions in 1959, one located in Singapore and the other in Kuala Lumpur.

In 1960, the governments of the then Federation of Malaya and Singapore indicated their desire to change the status of the divisions into that of a national university. Legislation was passed in 1961 establishing the former Kuala Lumpur division as the University of Malaya while the Singapore division was renamed the University of Singapore on 1 January 1962.

Present form of NUS

The National University of Singapore was formed with the merger of the University of Singapore and Nanyang University in 1980. This was done in part due to the government’s desire to pool the two institutions’ resources into a single, stronger entity, and promote English as Singapore’s only main language. The original crest of Nanyang University with three intertwined rings was incorporated into the new coat-of-arms of NUS.

Residential Colleges

National University of Singapore University Town

The NUS University Town (UTown) opened in August 2011. Located across the NUS Kent Ridge campus; this is where some 2,400 undergraduate students, 1,700 graduate students and 1,000 researchers will work, live, and learn in close proximity. There are four residential colleges, Cinnamon and Tembusu Colleges, College of Alice and Peter Tan, and Residential College 4 - initially named Cinnamon, Tembusu, Angsana and Khaya, an Education Resource Centre and a Graduate Residence.

(from page 8) in addition to resident faculty, distinguished visiting scholars, and a few graduate fellows. Freshmen (matriculating first-year students) enrolling in any NUS faculty or program apply to the College at the same time they apply to NUS. Entry is competitive (an essay-based application followed by an interview) as only 200–230 students can be enrolled in any given year. Some students from non-modular faculties (whose course requirements may be reduced or waived) and students from overseas exchange programs add to the residential mix. Students from any NUS faculty are eligible to apply.

The College offers five multi-disciplinary modules fulfilling the “University-Level Requirements” (2 General Education modules, 2 Breadth modules, and 1 Singapore Studies module) which most NUS undergraduates must read to graduate. Students read the rest of their modules in their home faculties. A University Town Residential Program Certificate is issued to eligible students along with the regular degreeScroll. Students from non-modular faculties (i.e., Law, Medicine, and Dentistry) also belong to the College, but with course-work tailored to their specific programs.

In international politics, the school has produced the Director General of World Health Organization Margaret Chan, former President of United Nations Security Council, Kishore Mahbubani and S Jayakumar and Vice-President of the International Olympic Committee, Ng Ser Miang.

The FAQ (Frequently Asked Question) is always there with regard to the ranking of educational institutions.

How good is the National University of Singapore compared to other top universities?

The 2010-11 Times Higher Education World University Rankings ranked NUS at the 34th in the world. Do you think NUS is that good/bad?

It depends on what you mean by good; and what do you mean by bad.

As I am not well versed in this realm of educational institutions, and therefore, I did some casual research work. I have done some inquiries and in combination with some personal experiences as a Myanmar diplomat served in four neighboring countries for (16) years. I came up with the following list of questions that students most probably try to find the answer for, before making their life-changing decision on where to study in this world.

(1) Which country does the student wants to study?
(2) What is the quality of the university?
(3) Is the right study program available in a language that the student speaks fluently?
(4) How much does it cost?

Yemen suffers power vacuum after president, premier quit

SATURDAY, 24 JANUARY, 2015

Yemen’s President Abdu Rabu Mansour Hadi

SANA‘A, 23 Jan — Yemen drifted deeper into political limbo on Friday after President Abd-Rabu Mansour Hadi resigned in exasperation at a Houthi rebel takeover of the country, a move that appeared to catch the Iran-backed group off balance.

Hadi, a former general, blamed the Houthis’ control of the capital Sanaa for impeding his attempts to steer Yemen towards stability after years of secessionist and tribal unrest, deepening poverty and US drone strikes on Islamist militants.

His resignation on Thursday startled the Arabian Peninsula country of 25 million, where the Shi‘ite Muslim Houthis emerged as the dominant faction by seizing Sanaa in September and dictating terms to a humiliated Hadi, whom they had held as a virtual prisoner at his home residence clashes with security guards this week.

Chanting “we are the revolution”, a small group of activists gathered at Change Square, the focus of 2011 pro-democracy protests which forced long-ruling president Ali Abdullah Saleh to step down under a Gulf power transfer deal.

“We’re here in rejection of the events that are happening. We came out to build a state and our demand is still to have a state,” said activist Farida al-Yareemi. “We went out against Ali Abdullah Saleh and he had all the weapons.”

Washington, which has relied on Hadi’s cooperation to stage the drone strikes on the Yemeni branch of al-Qaeda, said it was concerned by the departures of the president and Prime Minister Khaled Bahah, who also quit on Thursday.

“The United States is troubled by reports of President Hadi and his cabinet’s resignation.” State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki said in a statement.

“At this time, it is critical that all sides avoid violence.”

The Yemeni parliament is scheduled to meet on Sunday to discuss Hadi’s resignation and can accept or reject it. Under the constitution, parliament speaker Yahya al-Ra’i, who comes from Saleh’s General People’s Congress party, takes office for an interim period while new elections are organized.

Some Houthi officials have welcomed Hadi’s resignation but the group said an official position had yet to be taken.

It urged the army to uphold its responsibilities and called on Houthi fighters to be on alert.

Witness said Houthi fighters were seen surrounding the homes of a number of senior officials from Bahah’s government, including the defense minister, in Sanaa.

A senior Yemeni official said the Houthi had proposed the creation an interim presidential council to run the majority Sunni Muslim country, but an alliance of parties rejected the idea.

Hadi, who led a United Nations-backed attempt to make political reforms and bury the autocracy and graft of the past, stood down shortly after Bahah offered his government’s resignation, saying it did not want to be dragged into “an unconstructive political maze”.

This was a reference to a standoff between the Houthis and Hadi, who had been held in his residence.

Albania supports Macedonia’s accession to NATO

SKEPO, 23 Jan — Albania supports Macedonia’s NATO accession and wishes that the neighbouring country will soon become a full rights member of the Alliance, Albanian minister of defence Mimi Kodheli said on Thursday.

Kodheli was paying an official visit to Skopje where she met with her Macedonian counterpart Zoran Jolevski, according to local media.

Both ministers underlined that Albania and Macedonia remain committed to their fight against terrorism and any other threat to peace, safety of citizens and democratic values of both countries.

Meantime in the meeting with Macedonian President Gorge Ivanov, Kodheli stressed that Albania has clearly played a constructive role in the relations with Macedonia even in times of inter-ethnic tensions.

Ivanov welcomed the joint efforts until now regarding the integration processes, especially within the Adriatic Charter and expressed that he expects an active support from the Republic of Albania regarding NATO membership.

Security chief in violent Mexican state steps down

MEXICO CITY, 23 Jan — Mexico’s Interior Ministry said on Thursday that a top security official appointed to restore order in a restive western state has stepped down, a few weeks after new outbreaks of violence.

Interior Minister Miguel Angel Osorio Chong said the federal government’s security commissioner for Michoacan state, Alfredo Castillo, would take on a new role in the government, without giving any more details on the reasons for his departure.

Castillo was appointed commissioner a year ago in a bid to crush a powerful drug gang known as the Knights Templar which had taken control of large swathes of Michoacan, and later became embroiled in bloody clashes with vigilante groups.

After forming an uneasy alliance with the vigilantes, the government captured or killed several Knights Templar leaders, but the gang’s boss, Servando Gomez, has eluded Castillo.

Saudi Arabia to bury King Abdullah on Friday

RIYADH, 23 Jan — Saudi Arabia will bury King Abdullah in an unmarked grave on Friday, hours after it moved to ensure a smooth transition by appointing a new king and crown prince to quell fears of dynastic instability at a time of regional turmoil.

Abdullah’s successor, King Salman, now takes over as the ultimate authority in a country that faces unprecedented tumult in the region and difficult long-term domestic challenges compounded by the plunging price of oil.

Salman must navigate a white-hot rivalry with Shi‘ite Muslim power Iran playing out in Iraq, Syria, Yemen, Lebanon and Bahrain, open conflict in two neighbouring states, a threat from Islamist militants and bumpy relations with the United States.

Reportedly pragmatic and adept at managing the delicate balance of clerical, tribal, royal and Western interests that factor into Saudi policy making, Salman appears unlikely to change the kingdom’s approach to foreign affairs or energy sales.

But by immediately announcing the appointment of his youngest half-brother Muqrin bin Abdulaziz as Crown Prince, King Salman decisively moved to end speculation about the direction of the royal succession and splits in the ruling family.

Many Saudis in a country with a young population will be unable to recall a time before King Abdullah’s rule, both as monarch from 2005 and as de facto regent for a decade before that.

His legacy was an effort to overhaul the kingdom’s economic and social systems to address a looming demographic crisis by creating private sector jobs and making young Saudis better prepared to take them.

Bomb explodes near Turkish delegation in Somalia day before president’s visit

Unarmed UN forces were acting in the name of Islam.

There has been a terrorist attack today in Somalia. What is this attack carried out for? If they are doing it in the name of Islam, there is no such thing in Islam,” he said at Addis Ababa University, where he was receiving an honourary degree.

Turkish Prime Minister Ahmet Davutoglu, speaking at the World Economic Forum in Davos, said an investigation was underway to see if the Turkish delegation was deliberately targeted.

Al Shabaab, which has carried out attacks across East Africa including a 2013 raid on a Nairobi shopping mall that killed 67, claimed responsibility for the assault but did not mention the delegation or Erdogan.

“We attacked the hotel and killed several of the Somali police officers who were meeting there,” al Shabaab’s military operations spokesman, Sheikh Abdiqasim Abu Musab, told Reuters.

US, Iraq preparing for assault to recapture Mosul

A Kurdish Peshmerga fighter takes his position ahead of an offensive by Peshmerga forces to recapture the city of Mosul, which was taken by Islamic State militants last June, the Wall Street Journal reported on Thursday.

Preparations include selecting and training military units for the planned assault, cutting supply lines to Islamic State fighters, General Lloyd Austin, head of the US military’s Central Command, told the Journal.

Mosul is the largest city in a self-declared Islamic State caliphate straddling the border between northern Iraq and eastern Syria.

A senior Iraqi official told Reuters in November that Mosul was the focus of government efforts to defeat Islamic State, because of the city’s size and symbolic status. The US-led forces have been conducting air strikes against Islamic State targets in Iraq and Syria, including 16 since Wednesday that were centred on Mosul.

The journal quoted Austin as saying that Iraqi forces must be ready before the offensive could begin.

“If we did things alone or with some of the other allies on the ground, it could move faster,” he told the newspaper. “But the Iraqis have to do this themselves.”

Austin said he had not yet determined whether to recommend that US ground troops accompany local units pushing into Mosul but added that the military would “do what it takes,” the Journal said. He told the paper that two Iraqi divisions were expected to lead the force fighting to retake Mosul. The newspaper quoted military officials as saying those forces would receive four to six weeks of US training.—Reuters

UN condemns attack on Libyan central bank, demands inquiry

Tripoli, 23 Jan — The United Nations on Thursday condemned a reported attack on an office of Libya’s central bank in the eastern city of Benghazi, calling for an inquiry into the incident that was on a cratered talks between the country’s warring parties. The UN last week brought together in Geneva some of Libya’s rival factions in an attempt to negotiate an end to their fight for control of the country four years after the ousting of Muammar Gaddafi.

On Wednesday, a rival parliament based in Tripoli said it would suspend its talks with the government in Tripoli, accusing troops loyal to the internationally recognized government of attacking the bank.

The incident, which has been forced to work out of the east since an armed faction called Libya Dawn seized Tripoli last year, involved 400,000 people have killed in Syria’s conflict, which began in March 2011 with popular protests against President Bashar al-Assad and spiralled into civil war after a crackdown by security forces. TEPCO to miss March target for
Fukushima toxic water cleanup

TOKYO, 23 Jan — Tokyo Electric Power Co said on Friday it will fail to fulfill its commitment to process by the end of March all highly radioactive water stored at the crippled Fukushima Daiichi nuclear plant due mainly to equipment troubles, causing further delay in the decommissioning process.

Currently, some 280,000 tons of water needing treatment is stored in tanks, while around 350 tons of toxic water is newly generated every day in the process of cooling reactors that suffered meltdowns in the 2011 earthquake-tsunami disaster. When Prime Minister Shinzo Abe visited the plant in September 2013, TEPCO President Naomi Hirose pledged that the company would filter all the plant in September of some 100 tons in February last year. The delay in the plan also comes as TEPCO has halted all de-commissioning work at the Fukushima Daiichi complex since Wednesday after two workers died on Tuesday in separate accidents at the Daini site and the nearby Daini plant. —Kyodo News

Indonesian divers recover bodies from near crashed AirAsia jet fuselage

ABOURGI KRI BANDA ACEH, 23 Jan — Indonesian divers on Thursday found six bodies near the fuselage of an AirAsia (AIRA. KL) jet that crashed last month into the Java Sea, but were unable to enter the wreckage where most of the victims are believed to be trapped, a navy official said.

Days of rough weather and poor underwater visibility have hampered navy divers’ efforts to recover bodies and lift the main part of the plane off the sea bed.

“It was very dark, visibility was very limited so our diving teams could not enter,” said Rear Admiral Widodo, commander of the navy’s western fleet, told reporters aboard the warship KRI Banda Aceh. “However we still predict we can evacuate all the bodies from there.” Widodo added rescuers expected to attach giant air bags to the fuselage to lift it to the surface by Friday.

Indonesia AirAsia Flight QZ8501 lost contact with air traffic control in bad weather on 28 Decem ber, less than halfway into a two-hour flight from the Indonesian city of Surabaya to Singapore. There were no survivors among the 162 people on board the Airbus (AIR.PA) A320. A multinational search and rescue operation has recovered 59 bodies so far but were unable to enter the wreckage where most of the victims are believed to be trapped, a navy official said.

Indonesia’s first fatal crash is not yet known, though investigators have ruled out foul play. Transport Minister Ignasius Jonan on Tuesday told a parliamentary hearing that radar data showed the plane had climbed faster than normal in its final minutes, and then stalled. Three days after the crash a source familiar with initial investigations had told Reuters the plane appeared to have made an “unbelievably steep climb” that may have pushed it beyond its performance envelope. The National Transport Safety Committee (NTSC), which is responsible for the crash investigations in Indonesia, is set to release some initial findings next week, but its full preliminary report will not be made public. The final report on the investigation, which will be made public, must be filed within a year.—Reuters

10 Chinese missing in fishing boat collision off S Korea

SEOUL, 23 Jan — A Chinese fishing boat collided with an unidentified cargo ship on Friday morning in seas near South Korea’s southern resort island of Jeju, leaving 10 Chinese fishermen missing, the Jeju coast guard and safety agency said.

The 138-ton fishing boat sank in waters about 160 km south of an uninhabited island near Jeju at around 2:30 am on Friday after the cargo ship crashed into the flank of the fishing boat, the agency said in a statement.

Among 13 crew members aboard the sunken boat, three have been saved by other fishing boats sailing near the site, but 10 others, including a captain and a chief engineer, have been unaccounted for.

Chinese maritime rescue authorities reported the incident to South Korea, which sent two patrol ships to search the missing crewmen, the Yonhap news agency reported, adding China dispatched two rescue ships to the area for the search operation, and five Chinese fishing boats were also helping the rescue efforts.—Xinhua

Finland supports Serbia’s EU path

BELGRADE, 23 Jan — Interior Ministers of Serbia and Finland Nebojsa Stefanovic and Paivi Rasanen signed on Thursday an agreement on police cooperation, preventing and combating crime, which will also speed up Serbia’s progress in the EU integration process.

Finland backs Serbian EU aspirations and supports the European Union’s enlargement policy, Rasanen said at a joint press conference with Stefanovic, stressing that it is “important that enlargement continues accordingly to the agreed membership criteria.” “One of the purposes of my visit is to support Serbia in its effort toward EU membership,” said Rasanen, who previously signed a police cooperation agreement with Stefanovic, adding that they also discussed current issues. She underlined that Serbia, moving towards the EU, should continue implementing reforms and strive to achieve positive results, pointing out that the support for the much needed and often very difficult reforms is provided through the strong mandate of the current government.

Rasanen also commented Serbia’s approach to the European integration process, noting particularly its “seriousness and capacity to take things further”. Commenting on the agreement signed with her Serbian counterpart, the Finnish minister of the interior said that the topics they discussed included high-tech crime, border control, illegal migration, and citizens fighting in foreign wars.—Tanjug

More Chinese airlines to fly to Australia under new plan

SYDNEY, 23 Jan — More Chinese airlines will be allowed to offer services to Australi ans under a new plan announced on Friday.

Australian and Chinese airlines will be able to operate 26,500 seats a week between the major gateways immediately, with a further 7000 weekly seats to be phased-in over the next two years, according to the new agreement announced by Deputy Prime Minister Warren Truss and Trade Minister Andrew Robb. The new agreement will allow Chinese airlines to almost triple their services to Australia over the next two years and offer cheaper flights to Australians bound for Europe and North America.

The plan is also designed to cater to the growing number of Chinese tourists coming to Australia. Chinese airlines had reached the previous cap of 18,029 weekly one-way seats at certain times of the year, meaning no new services could be added by existing carriers or launched by new ones looking to enter the market. By October 2016, 33,500 seats each way will be available each week. These second-tier Chinese carriers include Hainan Airlines, Shenzhen Airlines and Xiamen Airlines and the deal will allow them to increasingly target Australian passengers by using their home cities as hubs for European flights in competition with airlines such as Qantas, Emirates, Singapore Airlines and Cathay Pacific. —Xinhua
Nicolas Cage joins Osama bin Laden satire movie

Los Angeles, 23 Jan — ‘Ghost Rider’ actor Nicolas Cage is collaborating with ‘Borat’ director Larry Charles in the movie ‘Army of One’ which focuses on a regular guy, who tries to find Osama bin Laden. The satire movie is loosely based on a Q&A article about a Colorado man named Gary Faulkner who tries to catch Osama bin Laden. Armed with a sword, night-vision goggles and little else, Faulkner sneaks into Pakistan and Afghanistan over a dozen times to carry out his mission, according to The Hollywood Reporter.

‘Army of One’ is set to start production in late March. The movie written by Scott Rothman and Rajiv Joseph (‘Draft Day’) is targeting a 2016 release date.

Keira Knightley voted most stylish mum-to-be

Los Angeles, 23 Jan — Pregnant actress Keira Knightley has been voted most stylish mother-to-be. The 29-year-old ‘Atonement’ actress, who is expecting her first child with her husband James Righton, fought off tough competition from the Duchess of Cambridge Kate Middleton in a poll by baby brand My1’Years.com, reported Hello! magazine.

“We were surprised that Keira beat Kate in this poll as usually the Duchess is so popular with the nation. However Keira has more than proved herself the top spot with her effortless Chanel chic on the red carpet and with her recent Oscar nomination, we can’t wait to see what she wears on the night,” a spokesperson said.

Actress Jacqueline Jossa, who stars on the BBC One soap ‘EastEnders’ and is expecting her first child with The Only Way Is Essex’ hunk Dan Osborne, was voted third. The Saturdays’ Frankie Bridge came in fourth place after announcing she is pregnant with her second child with footballer Wayne Bridge, while Abbey Clancy, the wife of footballer Peter Crouch — who is also expecting for the second time — came fifth.

‘Sherlock’ star Benedict Cumberbatch’s fiancée Sophie Hunter received seven per cent of the vote to take the sixth spot.

Pulitzer winner Lahiri scoops $50,000 DSC Prize for South Asian fiction

New Delhi, 23 Jan — Pulitzer Prize winning author Jhumpa Lahiri won the DSC Prize for South Asian fiction on Thursday, the third straight year a writer of Indian origin has carried off the annual $50,000 (33,142 pounds) prize that recognises the region’s top literary talent.

Lahiri, who won a Pulitzer Prize in 2000, was the best-known author on a shortlist of five writers with her entry “The Lowland,” a tale of Indian brothers bound by tragedy. The novel had been shortlisted for the Man Booker prize in 2013.

The winner was announced at an evening session of the annual literature festival in the Indian city of Jaipur, with Lahiri the only writer among the shortlisted authors not present.

Keki Daruwalla, the chair of judges, described “The Lowland” as a partly political and partly familial novel about the difficulty of love in complex circumstances, by a writer at the height of her powers.

“It is a superb novel written in restrained prose with moments of true lyricism,” Daruwalla said in a statement.

This year’s shortlist for the DSC Prize, awarded to the best novel about South Asia published or translated into English, included Pakistani writer Kamila Shamsie and London-based Romesh Gunesekara, a finalist for the Booker prize two decades ago. Rounding out the list were first-time novelist Bilal Tanweer from Pakistan and India’s Shamsur Rahman Faruqui, nominated for his novel which he translated from Urdu.

The jury selected the finalists from 75 novels submitted for the award, now in its fifth year. Lahiri’s win extended a winning streak for Indian-origin writers at the DSC Prize, won by Jeet Thayil and Cyrus Mistry in preceding years.—Reuters

Los Angeles, 23 Jan — The Hunger Games: Mockingjay, Part 1 is now 2014’s highest-grossing movie in the US. The Jennifer Lawrence-starring film snatched the title from the previous holder ‘Guardians of the Galaxy’ following a battle at the box office.

Per Wednesday, on 21 January, “Mockingjay” collected USD 333.2 million while “Guardians” garnered USD 333.17 million domestically, reported Ace Showbiz. “Mockingjay” was released on 21 November and so far has collected over USD 700 million worldwide. It opens in China on 8 February.

In 2013, “The Hunger Games: Catching Fire” also faced off a Marvel movie in a similar battle. Back then, the Lionsgate project toppled “Iron Man 3” from its top position as the highest-grossing movie. It eventually garnered USD 424.7M, passing Robert Downey Jr-starring superhero film at USD 409M.

“The Hunger Games: Mockingjay, Part 2” is set for release on 20 November. Also featuring Josh Hutcherson and Liam Hemsworth among others, the action adventure movie is directed by Francis Lawrence.—PTI

Brazil World Cup venue closed for urgent repairs

One of Brazil’s sparkling new 2014 World Cup stadiums has been closed for urgent building work less than a year after it opened.

The Arena Pantanal in Cuiaba will be shut for “emergency repairs to resolve diverse construction problems with the aim of offering safety to users,” the state government that owns the stadium said in a statement on Thursday.

It added that officials had visited the 600 million reals ($233.07 million) venue and noted that “immediate construction repairs are necessary”.

Officials said some elevators and air conditioning broke down and that seasonal wet weather had caused water to leak through the roof.

Although Cuiaba is used to almost daily downpours in the rainy season “the architectural project did not take the strong rains into account,” state secretary of strategic projects Gustavo de Oliveira told Reuters.

Initial repairs are to start this week and the stadium will be reopened for three months between February and May because state championship games will be held there and heavy rain makes building work difficult.

The government said it had contacted builders Construtora Mendes Junior and hoped by mid-February to know how long the repairs would take.

Brazil held the World Cup last year for the first time since 1950 and Cuiaba was one of the most controversial of the 12 host cities, in part because it does not host a top-flight football team.

Local authorities failed to build the tram system they promised for the city and the Arena Pantanal was one of the last of the venues to be handed over.

There was added concern over its readiness following a fire there in October 2012. Officials said the fire was not serious but Reuters saw an unpublished report by local prosecutors that said the blaze caused “structural damage” that “could compromise the overall stability of the construction”.

The 41,000-seater arena hosted four matches in the World Cup.

The state government recently announced plans to lease the arena to a private consortium, tacitly acknowledging financial difficulties in administering the ground.

That ground was opened in 2007 before being closed in 2012 after engineers said the roof was in danger of collapse.

UN asks countries for climate plans after record warm 2014

The United Nations asked governments on Thursday to submit plans to cut greenhouse gas emissions as the building blocks of a deal due in Paris in December to limit global warming, after scientists said 2014 was the hottest year on record.

Governments have agreed an informal deadline of 31 March to submit plans as the basis of the UN deal to slow climate change, which nearly all climate scientists say is mainly due to rising emissions of man-made greenhouse gases.

Climate neutrality means net zero emissions, or that any emissions from burning fossil fuels are offset by measures such as planting trees that soak up carbon dioxide as they grow.

Both NASA and the US National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said last week that 2014 was the warmest year since records began in the late 19th century.

Alden Meyer, of the Union of Concerned Scientists, said record heat was “yet another indication of the severity of the climate problem” and should add urgency to government plans to be submitted to the United Nations.

He said the lower oil price might spur the use of fossil fuels but could also make it “more politically palatable” for some countries to cut fossil fuel subsidies.

Top emitters China, the United States and the European Union have outlined plans for Paris but many details are not yet clear.

Billiards, snooker want spot in Tokyo 2020 Games

Berlin, 23 Jan — Billiards and snooker on Thursday launched an unexpected bid to win a spot at the Tokyo 2020 Olympics sports programme, saying sharp global rise in popularity helped their case.

The programme for the Tokyo Games has already been agreed with organizers and the International Olympic Committee and any late inclusion would have to be preceded by a request from the organizer.

The IOC changed its rules in December to allow new sports to enter the Games more easily to freshen up the programme.

Tokyo is set to benefit from the rule change, with baseball and softball seen as favorites to be named for inclusion due to the sports’ popularity in Japan.

“Four years ahead of its original target, the World Professional Billiards and Snooker Association has engaged heavily in working alongside the World Confederation of Billiard Sports on a bid for inclusion in the 2020 Olympics in Tokyo,” snooker’s world governing body said in a statement.

“The WPBSA and WCBBS have this week submitted a bid outlining their case as to why billiards sports should be part of the programme for 2020 Tokyo,” it said. Tokyo Games chief Yoshiro Mori told reporters in December he would not drag the issue out to avoid speculation and would have some indication of which sport or sports to propose for inclusion by the time of an IOC project review in February.

Holdes Japan crash out of Asian Cup after shootout defeat to UAE

Japan coach Javier Aguirre kept faith with the same side that started three group-stage wins against Palestine, Iraq and Jordan in the group stage.

“Once it goes to penalties, anything can happen,” Aguirre said. “We made two mistakes in the shootout and could only overcome one. You did not play well in the first 10 minutes, but after that we did much better. They played very defensively, but if you can’t find a way to score you won’t win. That’s soccer.”

Japan did not concede in the first round, but the alarm bells started ringing at the back after just three minutes, with goalkeeper Eiji Kawashima thwarting Mabkhout at his feet after the striker had found himself clean through.

Kawashima did little to prevent the opener after seven minutes, however, as Mabkhout controlled a clever pass from Amer Abdulrahman and rifled home his fourth goal of the tournament.

Japan enjoyed plenty of possession after going behind but were left wanting in the final third. Masato Morishige’s header failed to trouble UAE keeper Majed Nasr and Yasuhito Endo and Honda both fired off target just before halftime.

Aguirre took off Takashi Inui and replaced him with Yoshinori Muto at the break but Japan got another big scare five minutes into the second period, when Mabkhout took a pass from Omar Abdulrahman and had his shot beaten away by Kawashima.

Muto fired wide and then missed a golden chance to equalize with a header on 54 minutes and with Japan starting to show a real sense of urgency, Kagawa brought a crucial stop out of Naser.

Japan continued to pile on the pressure, and captain Makoto Hasebe had a header cleared off the line by Abdulaziz Haikal before substitute Yohei Toyoda sent a free header wide. But the Blue Samurai finally made their pressure pay off when Shibasaki, on for Endo in the 54th minute, drilled home a superb strike from the edge of the box after a one-two with Honda.

Honda nearly won it with two minutes left in regulation with a free kick that Naser did well to keep out before two more near misses from Toyoda and Kagawa.

It was the same story in extra time with Japan holding on for the win after the UAE’s 5-4 penalty shootout loss.

Sydney, 23 Jan — Espanyol close to King’s Cup semis after 3-1 win over Sevilla

Espanyol close to King’s Cup semis after 3-1 win over Sevilla

Madrid, 23 Jan — Espanyol secured a commanding lead in their King’s Cup quarter-final tie against Sevilla when Felipe Caicedo, Sergio Garcia, with a penalty, and Lucas Vazquez scored in a 3-1 first-leg home win on Thursday.

In-form Ecuador forward Caicedo cracked a superb shot into the top corner in the 23rd minute to put Espanyol ahead at their Power8 stadium in Barcelona, and captain Garcia put away a spot kick in the 74th after an Alejandro Arribas handball.

As Sevilla pressed in an attempt to force their way back into the game, Garcia sped forward and set up Lucas Vazquez to slot in the hosts’ third goal nine minutes from time.

Sevilla, the 2010 winners, slightly improved their chances of overturning the deficit in next Thursday’s second leg when substitute Carlos Bacca pulled a goal back after a goalmouth scramble in the first minute of added time.

The winners of the tie will play Athletic Bilbao or Malaga, who drew 0-0 in Wednesday’s first leg on the south coast, for a place in the final.

On the other side of the draw, Barcelona, the record winners, took control of their last-eight tie against Athletic Madrid when Lionel Messi’s last minute strike secured a 1-0 first-leg success at the Nou Camp on Wednesday.

Villarreal won by the same scoreline at home to Getafe thanks to a free kick from captain Bruno Soriano. Reuters

Real Madrid agree to sign Brazil midfielder Lucas Silva

Sao Paulo, 23 Jan — Cruzeiro have agreed to sell defensive midfielder Lucas Silva to Real Madrid, the Brazilian champions said on Thursday.

Spanish media reported the fee would be around 15 million euros ($17.4 million).

Silva, 21, is considered to be one of Brazil’s most promising young players and has represented his country at junior level.

“We have been in touch with Real Madrid since last year and we’re now discussing a fee,” Cruzeiro’s director of football Valdir Barbosa told ESPN radio. “I think a deal should be complete by the start of next week.”

Silva was released from training on Thursday to have a medical with the European champions, said reports.

His arrival could prompt the departure of Aser Illarramendi who is believed to be a target for Real’s struggling La Liga rivals Athletic Bilbao.

Federer knocked out by Seppi in Australian Open

Melbourne, 23 Jan — Second seed Roger Federer was bundled out of the Australian Open third round by Italian Andreas Seppi on Friday, suffering his first career defeat in 11 meetings between the pair in the 6-4, 7-6(5), 4-6, 7-6(5) loss.

The 17-times grand slam champion has not lost this early in the season-opening grand slam since his second trip to Melbourne Park in 2001, when he also lost in the third round.

“I just tried to enjoy playing on centre court again,” Seppi said in a courtside interview after his victory. “It’s not often you get the chance to play on centre court. I just tried to play my best and I did because I was playing Roger.”

“You never feel comfortable playing against Roger, but I was focusing on my service game, I didn’t have many chances on his serve.” The 33-year-old Swiss struggled with his first serve early in the match, while the 30-year-old Seppi took advantage of three of his five break points to take a two sets to love lead.

Federer broke in the third game of the third set to begin what many on Rod Laver Arena thought would be a successful fight back.

Seppi, however, forced a tiebreak in the fourth and clinched victory with a desperate languish forehand past the charging Swiss at the net to set up a fourth round clash with either Australian Nick Kyrios or Tunisia’s Malek Jaziri.”
