- Secretary-1 on Cultural Policy [CULTURAL]
- Myanmar Joins Ozone Pact [DIPLOMATIC]

POLITICAL CRISIS

Slogans

Recurrent Slogans: See January 1993 issue; notably, the bottom of each front page continues to bear the slogan: Emergence of the State Constitution is the duty of all citizens of Myanmar Naing-Ngan.

Variable Slogans: Since August 1991, each issue has included a changing religious slogan at the top of each front page:

Dec. 1-2: Brahmachariyanca, chastity; this is the way to auspiciousness.

Dec. 3-15: Ariyasaccana dassanam, to discern the noble truths; this is the way to auspiciousness.

Dec. 16-31: Nibbanasacchikiriya ca, to realize the Nibbana; this is the way to auspiciousness.

Cartoons

[There were a number of cartoons this month, but with Burmese legends. In addition, Burmese-language cartoons on safe driving continued.]

Political Articles

Following the pattern begun in October 1988, many issues contain lengthy feature articles, translated from Burmese, designed to bolster government views and policies. Editorials sometimes touch on similar themes. We note them briefly, with excerpts of typical or particularly significant portion:

Dec. 3: A golden opportunity, by Yebaw Thit Maung. ["The principal reason for Myanmar's lack of progress and development is...internal strife.... Beginning 1989, some armed groups...returned to the legal fold one after another. National armed groups from Kokang and Wa Areas, overthrew the Burma Communist Party and joined hands with the Tatmadaw.... As of today, nine armed groups of national peoples have returned to the legal fold and have been engaged in developing border regions. The KIA, bearing arms outside of the law for over thirty years is now getting ready to return to the legal fold. Darkness has vanished from Kachin State and rays of peace have appeared instead.... Armed groups in the jungles really are desirous of their people's and their land's welfare as they say so, they should not miss this golden opportunity. They need only to come without any worry when they are now being welcomed with bouquets of peace."]

Dec. 4: Most Providential Time, by Warazein. [Dialogue between Thet Lai and Shwe Thway. "We now have up to ten groups, including U Brang Seng's group, from among our brethren in the jungles, who had trust in the Tatmadaw's invitations and come to have discussions and are now serving the Union.... The first group is called Myanmar Nationalities Democratic Alliance Tatmadaw. And that is the Kokang Group. No 2 Group is the 'Myanmar National Solidarity Party". That is the break-away Wa Group. The No 3 Group is 'The Union of Myanmar Democratic Alliance, Eastern Shan State". The No 4 Group is the Group known as the KDA or the Kachin Nationals Progress and Development Party. No 6 Group [sic] is the Group known as PNO or the Pa-oh National Organization.... The No 7 Group is known as the NDA or the New Democracy Army. The No 8 Group is known as the PSLA or the Palaung State Liberation Army.... The No 9 Group is called the KNG or the Kayan National Guards. So the No 10 group is the KIO or the Kachin Independence Organization.... Did we not read in the newspapers and see on TV that the [SLORC] Secretary-1 Lt-Gen. Khin Nyunt...on 1 October 1993, cordially met with a KIO General Staff group led by U Zaw Mai in Myitkyina?..."]

Dec. 6: If development and progress of our land, our peoples and our Union is desired, by Myo Chit Thu. [Then armed groups still in the jungle should return to the legal fold.]

Dec. 7: The blazing trail, by Ko Kyi (Pyin Oo Lwin). [Student boycott of Dec. 7, 1920, recalled.]

Dec. 8: Strive to achieve National Day objectives, by Hla Tun (Twantay). ["Neocolonialism is ever on the alert to interfere in Myanmar's internal affairs whenever opportunity occurs. The mass of the people should therefore be constantly vigilant."]

Dec. 8: Lest we forget, by Min Kyaw Min. ["Beginning with the East India Company, a cover with which colonial rule was established, there was the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company, Bullock Brothers, Ellerman's Arracan Rice and Trading Company, Burmah Oil Company, Mawchi Mines and others which exploited and fleeced us. The first echelon executives in those establishments were from the nation which overran us, the second echelon from a neighbouring country which they had overrun, and, the third, or a paltry few among the chosen few were local nationals who had been trained to serve the colonial bureaucracy.... {Colonial} education...was not to the benefit of the vanquished, but of the victor. It was all very cleverly designed. Our ancestors, who were aware of what was being done, shunned it, calling it 'slave education'. The standard of literacy in those days, by Myanmar standards, was that accomplished by the monastic education, the education of the royalty, the education that was our own.... Let us reaffirm our resolve to combat any and all attempts to divide this nation and see that we win, as we did always when we stood united."]

Dec. 20: Editorial: For regional harmony. [Today, we, as well as our neighbours immediate and distant, strive to maintain regional harmony. There are external forces who would benefit from disunity trying to sow discord, but the more they try, the greater the cohesion within nations and in the region because all of us are aware of the dire consequences. Peaceful co-existence, either in accord with the Five Principles agreed to in Bandung, or under any other formula, is sacred to us. To achieve that, each and every nation must contribute toward it. We do our best. Non-interference in the internal affairs is considered as much a sin as blasphemy. Each nation around here has done the best to prevent such acts as might be construed as interference. This way, faith and trust in each other is also further strengthened.... We are achieving much, regardless of the various wedges that are being driven by forces which cannot bear to see unity and harmony within the region...."]

Dec. 31: Another outright fabrication, by Nay Wun Thi. [An article in the Nov. 28 London Sunday Telegraph, headlined "Burma road to the latest shameless animal trade," [photocopy of article published in NLM] shows two pictures of animal trophies (elephant tusks, tiger skin, pangolin skin) being sold in Tachilek. The article reads, in part: "These pictures show how an astonishing open market in some of the world's rare and endangered animals has sprung up in just a few months. Barely yards across a narrow bridge from Thailand, Western tourists can enter Burma and buy tiger skins, elephant ivory tusks an bears' gall-bladders, among an assortment of wildlife products in which international trade is illegal.... Tom Redford, who works for several Thai animal welfare and conservation charities, visited the area earlier this year. 'The thing that most astonished me was how quickly things had grown,' he said. 'Before there were two or three stalls selling. Now there are 18. I was amazed at the sheer quantity of wildlife products that were on sale, and at the lack of concern that the traders showed while I was photographing their stalls. They told me anything I wanted could be delivered to my hotel in Thailand.' Observers fear the Mai sai market will open up a new trade for those dealers and smugglers who trade with China, South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong and other Asian countries where animals are still prized for their medicinal or ornamental value. Burma, they fear, could become an important conduit for animals killed--or, in the case of young tigers and monkeys, captured alive for the pet trade--across South East Asia....'" The worst thing about this article, says Nay Wun Tin, "is in the title of the news item. It reflects the malevolence of the author and of The Sunday Telegraph directed on Myanmar." In fact, "we adore and preserve nature as a heritage of our forefathers.... The author has also been to Tachilek.... Downtown and suburbs alike did I roam, but there never was a shop resembling the ones mentioned in the news item. It is rather difficult for me to believe that the photographs printed were really taken near Tachilek."]

Returnees from Bangladesh

[Articles reporting the return of refugees from Bangladesh list the cumulative total since Sept. 22, 1992. Not all returns are mentioned in NLM.]

Dec. 1: 464 persons from 103 households arrived back from

Bangladesh on Nov. 29, under the Myanmar-Bangladesh agreement, bringing the total since Sept. 22, 1992 to 50,455 (NLM 12/2)

Dec. 24: 57 persons from 10 households returned to Kanyinchaung camp on Dec. 23, bringing the total to 51,848. (NLM 12/25)

Union Solidarity & Devel. Ass. (USDA)

[Throughout the month there were almost daily reports of the activities of Union Solidarity and Development Associations (USDA) at the local, township, district, and state/division levels, including establishment of new branches, erection of signboards, etc.]

Dec. 9: As of November 25, State/Division Union Solidarity and Development Associations have been formed in Kachin, Kayah, Kayin, Chin, Mon, and Rakhine States, and in Sagaing, Tanintharyi, Bago, Magway, Mandalay, Yangon, and Ayeyarwady Divisions, and Shan State (North), (South), and (East) [i.e., all 14 States & Divisions]. 55 district and 303 township Associations have also been formed around the country. USDAs are also being formed at Ward and village level. (NLM 12/10)

Dec. 12: Speaking to the Panel of Patrons of the Union Solidarity and Development Association, Yangon Commander Lt-Gen. Myo Nyunt "clarified points on the USDA at the City Hall."

"He elaborated that the first basic principle is the one concerning national affairs in which the USDA is to accept Our Three Main National Causes as a national duty as handed down by history and to strive, with unity, for it.

"The second basic principle, he said, is the one concerning national races. He said lasting unity of national races will be ensured if there is mutual respect, flourishing of customs, cultural traditions, literature and arts as well as economic development among them. Efforts should be made towards that end, he said.

"The third is religious affairs in which the USDA will enable all the people to practise the religions of their choice, he noted.

"The fourth principle, he further clarified, is social affairs. The association will sponsor or take part in welfare, security, peace and tranquillity, unity, education and health activities among the public, he added.

"He explained that financial affairs is the fifth basic principle. He said funds of the association will be raised and expended through collective efforts of the members....

"Next, Lt-Gen Myo Nyunt clarified the fourth aim of the USDA-- promotion and vitalization of national pride. He said this aim is very important. He said the Myanmar people, during their time, should not allow loss of independence which was regained from the aliens with much sacrifice. He said EC members of the USDAs are to repulse alien cultures and inclinations to rely on foreigners by having the people imbued with patriotism.

"He said unity is the backbone for lasting existence of the USDA and two methods should be applied to achieve this. The first method, he said, is to carry out organization in conformity with the form and content of the objectives. The second method, he said, is to step up activities of the association through constant contacts at wards and villages in order to increase the number of volunteers. He noted that four outlooks namely, political, military, administrative and economic, should be applied to realize the aims of the association. Never losing sight of the machinations of the colonialists, efforts should be made for the emergence of defenders and builders of the State, he said. Joining hands with the Tatmadaw all are to expose the minions of the colonialists, he added...." (NLM 12/13_

Meetings with National Race Leaders

Dec. 1: North-East Commander Maj-Gen. Aye Kyaw met Nov. 27 with Wa national leader U Pau Yu Chan from Special Region 2. (NLM 12/2)

Dec. 8: SLORC Secretary-1 Lt-Gen. Khin Nyunt met with Leader U Sai Nawnt and members of the national races of Shan State (North) Special Region 3. (NLM 12/9)

Special Refresher Courses

Dec. 7: Special Refresher Course No. 5 for Senior and Junior Assistant Teachers began at the Central Institute of Public Service, Hlegu, was addressed by SLORC Secretary-1 Lt-Gen. Khin Nyunt. "He said that subjects of the course will enable them to come to discern the invented stories and falsehood designed to cause disintegration of the Union of Myanmar, to realize the endeavours made with goodwill by the government and to share the knowledge with their pupils and the people." He said, inter alia, that "At basic education level, [the colonialists] suppressed monastic education system which had originated since the time of Myanmar kings. He elaborated on subjects, arts and crafts being taught at monastic schools in the past. In serfdom, the colonialists smothered the masculine spirit and pride and patriotism finally putting an end to the monastic education, he said. Instead, he added, they introduced an education system that would turn out clerks and retinue who would serve in colonial administration. When they had to open a university they planned to introduce a University Act to open one which would be accessible to a minority.... Neo-colonialist countries which wish to interfere in Myanmar's affairs, are providing assistance to so-called Myanmar citizens of within and without to use them as their minions in belittling Myanmar's efforts and in destroying national unity...." (NLM 12/8)

Dec. 24: The four-week Special Refresher Course No. 2 for People's Police Force Officers concluded, and was addressed by Minister for Home Affairs Lt-Gen. Mya Thin. The course was attended by 6 police colonels, 17 police lieutenant-colonels, 31 police majors, and 195 police captains, totalling 249. (NLM 12/25)

Dec. 8: Speaking at the Fourth Literary and Photo Competition sponsored by the [SLORC] National Mottos Compiling Leading Committee, SLORC Secretary-1 Lt-Gen. Khin Nyunt reviewed the 1920 Student Boycott [commemorated by National Day] said, inter alia: "In order to prolong their rule...the colonialists applied the administrative system of divide and rule over national races .... Economically, they purchased paddy at extremely low prices to worsen the very poor condition of Myanmar farmers, brought in chettyars from India enabling them to take hold of the land unless the borrowers repaid. There have been clear evidence in history such evil schemes were applied to suppress the economy of Myanmar peoples ...." (NLM 12/8)

NATIONAL CONVENTION

Preparations

Dec. 15: The National Convention Management Committee and sub-committees met, under Chairman Brig-Gen. Tin Aye, who said the National Convention is to resume Jan. 18, and called for good management. "He pointed out that as all are aware destructionists are out to weaken and jeopardize the National Convention. Mindful of their presence, all appropriate measures are to be taken to ensure that the National Convention can be convened undisturbed, he said."

(NLM 12/16)

Myanmar Joins Ozone Pact

Dec. 29: The Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued the following Press Release [full text]:

The Government of the Union of Myanmar has become a party to the following Convention and Protocol by accession and acceptance on 24 November 1993:

--Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer, concluded in Vienna on 22 March 1985;

--Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer, concluded at Montreal on 16 September 1987;

--Amendment to the Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer, adopted at the Second Meeting of the Parties at London on 29 June 1990.

The Vienna Convention provides a framework containing an agreement in principle to cooperate in protection of the ozone layer, and the Montreal Protocol specifies actions to phase out the ozone-depleting substances such as Chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) by the end of the century. As a party to the Protocol, Myanmar would be spared from the trade restrictions imposed by the Protocol and would be allowed to import controlled substances within a ten-year grace-period for limited domestic use for refrigeration and air conditioning. Additionally, the Protocol would provide Myanmar access to ozone-friendly technologies and financial assistance to effect the necessary adjustments. Furthermore, Myanmar's accession to these important instruments underscores the commitment and responsibility in the protection of global environment.

Since the establishment of the National Commission for Environmental Affairs in February 1990, the Union of Myanmar has signed the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change and the Convention on Biological Diversity in June 1992.

Human Rights Statement

Dec. 9: At the Third Committee of the UN General Assembly on Dec. 6, Alternate Chairman of the Myanmar UNGA Delegation U Kyaw Min delivered a statement in response to Draft Resolution A/C.3/48/L.70 on Myanmar. The Draft Resolution was subsequently approved without a vote. "The statement of the Alternate Chairman...is presented here as some news agencies carried the speech of the US delegate confusing it with the draft resolution" [full text]:

Mr Chairman

I thank you for giving me this opportunity to place on record my delegation's position on draft resolution A/C.3/48/L.70. Our position can be stated very simply; the draft is totally unacceptable to us. Let me explain why.

First, the draft resolution constitutes a flagrant attempt to interfere in the internal affairs of my country in violation of the principle set forth in Article 2(7) of the Charter of the United Nations. Indeed it is an assault on this fundamental and time-tested principle whose absolute inviolability and over-riding importance for a world order of peace, freedom and justice has been recognized and reaffirmed not only in innumerable United Nations resolutions and declarations of principle, but also in a great number of historic, legal and political instruments, adopted at the bilateral, regional and global levels. Member of the Committee are fully familiar with these instruments. I will therefore refrain from recapitulating them today. Let me simply say that the draft, reduced to its essentials, seeks to dictate to Myanmar how it should run its own affairs.

Second, the draft resolution, both in substance and in tenor, runs counter to the letter and spirit of the Vienna Declaration and Programme of Action adopted by the World Conference on Human Rights. In particular, it completely ignores the principles reaffirmed in the Vienna Declaration, namely, the principles of impartiality, objectively and non-selectivity, in the promotion of all human rights worldwide.

Third, the draft resolution deliberately places the most negative construction possible on the historic and significant changes now underway in my country, principally the National Convention which my Government has convened with a view to fulfilling the aspirations of the Myanmar people for an enduring and prosperous democratic State.

I shall point out these serious flaws in commenting on the various paragraphs of the draft.

Operative paragraphs 2 and 7 read together with preambular paragraph 7. Allegations of torture, summary and arbitrary executions, forced labour, abuse of women etc. are unsubstantiated and emanate invariably from anti-Government sources. We categorically reject them. It is neither the policy of the Government to repress its own people nor to condone such violations of human rights. Violation of human rights is against our tradition and culture. The Government of Myanmar has provided detailed replies to these allegations and I should like in this connection to invited distinguished members of the Committee to refer to paragraph 26 of document A/48/578.

As for allegations concerning "oppressive measures" directed at ethnic and religious minorities, it bears to be repeated that the efforts of the Myanmar Government to secure national reconciliation through dialogue is bearing fruit. There is no oppression against any national race or religious group in my country. The Myanmar Government treats all national races as brethren and all religions on an equal footing. I should again like to draw the Committee's attention to the report submitted by Mrs Sadako Ogata who visited Myanmar in 1990 as the Independent Expert appointed by the Chairman of the Commission on Human Rights in which she stated categorically that in the matter of religious tolerance Myanmar society may be regarded as a model society.

Operative paragraphs 3 and 6 read together with preambular paragraph 6, represent an ill-disguised attempt to dictate to Myanmar that it should abandon its chosen path to democracy through the mechanism of the National Convention, and instead to transfer power to the representatives elected in the 1990 elections. As we have explained time and again in various United Nations bodies including this Committee the mandate of those representatives is not to form a government but to draft a new constitution based on the broadest possible national consensus. Through a process of free and open deliberations and mutual accommodation at the National Convention significant progress has been made and such a consensus is now in sight. To turn a blind eye to this historic national undertaking and instead to keep insisting that State power be turned over to the representatives-elect will not serve the cause of democracy in my country. It amounts not only to grossly interfering in the internal political matters of my country but even to encouraging dissent and division among the delegates participating in the National Convention.

Preambular paragraph 8 read with operative paragraph 14. Since many significant and positive developments have taken place in my country during the past 12 months, the paragraph does not reflect the current situation in the country. Thanks to the policy of national reconciliation which my government have actively pursued during this period peace and tranquility has been restored to 97 per cent of the country. As a result the number of border inhabitants crossing frontiers to seek temporary shelter from hostilities has greatly diminished.

Operative paragraph 4. I should like to point out that nowhere in his introductory statement did Professor Yokota, the Special Rapporteur, say that "in regard to the National Convention no evident progress has been made towards turning over power to a freely elected civilian government". What he said was, "the composition, procedure, and other measures taken in connection with the National Convention seem to indicate that the constitutional process is not heading towards multi-party democracy as announced by the Government". Needless to say, we consider this assessment to be wholly erroneous. Professor Yokota did emphasize that since he had no time to study carefully the information which he had gathered during his visit to Myanmar his observations were still preliminary in nature. I am confident that after careful reflection he will see the National Convention in its true perspective and that this will be reflected in his final report to the Commission on Human Rights.

Operative paragraph 5. As explained by my delegation in this Committee, the delegates to the National Convention include representatives of all the national races, representatives of the ten legally-standing political parties, representatives elected in the 1990 elections as well as delegates from all strata of Myanmar society. It may be pointed out that representatives of the political parties were nominated by their own parties and that other delegates were selected through a systematic procedure to ensure fair and equitable representation. My Government has provided the details on the procedure regarding the participation of delegates to the National Convention, which are reproduced in extenso in document A/48/578.

With regard to the leading role to be played by the Tatmadaw (The Myanmar Defence Services) in the future political life of the State, I should like to stress that the role envisaged for the Tatmadaw is a role in keeping with Myanmar's historical traditions. As stated by my Foreign Minister in his address to the General Assembly: "The history of modern Myanmar nation is synonymous with the history of the Tatmadaw. Since the time of our struggle for national independence it has been in the forefront of national politics." The Tatmadaw has always stayed above party politics. But it has always shouldered its primary responsibility of ensuring the non-disintegration of the Union, the non-disintegration of national solidarity and the consolidation of national sovereignty. It will and must continue to do so in the future.

Operative paragraph 8 appeals to Myanmar to consider becoming a party to the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and the Convention Against Torture and other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment. Although Myanmar is not yet a State party to the Covenants I should like to reaffirm that we are abiding by those provisions and principles embodied in the Covenants which are taken from the Charter of the United Nations and the Universal Declaration on Human Rights, or have attained the status of rules of customary international law.

Operative paragraphs 9, 13 and 14. To repeat what I stated last year, Myanmar has an unbroken record of fulfilling all its obligations arising from agreements and international treaties to which it is a party. We resent any insinuation to the contrary.

Operative paragraph 10 claims that recent sentences meted out to a number of persons were harsh. My government has provided detailed information regarding the nature of the offenses committed by the persons in question and the laws under which they were sentenced. This information is reproduced in paragraph 26 of document A/48/578. Given the nature of the offenses the sentences meted out to them can in no way be considered harsh.

Operative paragraphs 11 and 12. There can be no gainsaying that democracy can prosper only when law and order prevails. In this time of transition when we are laying down the foundations for a democratic society, care must be taken to ensure a peaceful and tranquil environment. It is the primary responsibility of every Government to uphold the rule of law and to maintain public peace and civil order in the country. As we have explained on numerous occasions, a certain individual has been placed under restraint for infringing the law and that this is the most lenient action permissible under the law. Hundreds of persons serving prison terms who no longer pose a threat to the security of the State have been released. The Government has been constrained to take legal action against some other persons, including a few delegates to the National Convention, not because of their political beliefs but because of their actions which, if left unchecked, would derail the constitutional process.

Operative paragraph 15. If I may put it bluntly, I completely fail to understand the intent and purpose of this paragraph. We already have the Special Rapporteur of the Commission of Human Rights to deal with those portions of the draft concerning human rights issues. Likewise, under the Memorandum of Understanding signed between Myanmar and the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, we have agreed to the presence of representatives of the UNHCR to deal with those paragraphs of the draft resolution concerning refugee questions. In these circumstances, it is the intention of the co-sponsors that the Secretary-General should play a role in the implementation of those paragraphs of the draft dealing with the internal political matters of my country-- paragraphs which as I have stated earlier are in gross violation of Charter principles --I must make it absolutely plain that my government will have nothing whatsoever to do with it. Mr Chairman,

I believe it is quite clear from what I have stated that draft resolution A/C.3/48/L.70 is totally unacceptable to my government. However, in deference to the sentiments expressed by a great many delegations representing governments which bear goodwill and understanding towards my country, and not least to the wishes expressed by you, Mr Chairman, my delegation has decided not to ask for a vote on the draft. I must however make it abundantly clear that my delegation will have no part in the adoption of this draft resolution and will not be a party to it.

Thank you, Mr Chairman.

National Day Message

Dec. 8: SLORC Chairman Senior General Than Shwe's National Day Message [full text]:

Today is the 73rd Anniversary of National Day. On this auspicious day which marks a day of historic significance and achievement reawakening national pride and national spirit among the entire Myanmar people, I greet you with this message.

Since National Day fuelled the flames of national spirit and national pride at a time when darkness of colonialism reigned in Myanmar Naing-Ngan, it will ever remain an unforgettable and significant day for each and every Myanmar citizen.

The Union of Myanmar has its own culture since time immemorial. It has stood tall in the world as an independent and sovereign nation with its successive national rulers; ancient palace sites, moats and walls as well as stone inscriptions and palm-leaf manuscripts stand witness to the existence of different eras characterized by glory and victory starting from Hanlin, Beikthano and Thraykhittara, to Bagan, Pinya, Innwa, Toungoo, Nyaungyan, Konbaung and so on.

Observing Myanmar Naing-Ngan's geographical conditions endowed with treasures and resources, European colonialists got very greedy. Hence, the colonialists waged three aggressive wars, once in 1824, once in 1852 and once in 1885 thereby finally annexing the entire Myanmar Naing-Ngan and enslaving Myanmar people.

Myanmar national pride is in our blood and Myanmar nationals remained unbowed and engaged unceasing struggles against the colonialists. In suppressing Myanmar people economically, the colonialists applied all possible means to exploit the people through unfair practices of extraction and production, commerce and trade in rice, teak, oil and gems. Moreover, they allowed cultivation of opium poppy, import of drugs and consumption to get the Myanmar nationals degenerated. They also made the schools teach the colonialist victories so that those taught would think highly of them, invented stories harming fraternal relations among the national races and tried to tarnish the glorious history of Myanmar.

The colonialists enforced colonial education aimed at furtherance of their rule and prolonging Myanmar's serfdom. At that time, one was allowed to attend the Calcutta University in India only after passing in the Rangoon College or Judson College.

As the Rangoon College gradually developed Myanmar nationals desirous of a full-fledged university made demands to the colonial government. Then came the Rangoon University Act of 1920.

True, Myanmar citizens wished to establish a university in Myanmar but they rejected and opposed the Act because it was designed to prolong the servitude of Myanmar citizens. Regarding themselves as 'masters' the colonialists unilaterally promulgated the Rangoon University Act on 1 December 1920 against the wishes of Myanmar people who they regarded as slaves.

Myanmar nationals firmly established themselves as "We, the masters" and eleven senior students with strong patriotism led the Boycott Movement on the 10th Waning of Tazaungmon, 1282 Myanmar Era (5 December, 1920) against the alien colonialists in protest at the promulgation of Rangoon University Act.

Thanks to the 1920 boycott, the spirit of nationalism had awakened at a tremendous rate throughout the nation. There emerged national schools and national universities. Teachers at these national schools etched in the minds of their pupils spirit of sacrifice in the interest of the nation and the people. The colonialists were in no position to resist the rapidly rising tide of nationalist movement which led to freedom struggle. The nationalists were convinced that it would not be possible to continue to withhold the independence of the Myanmar national races.

The National Day had repeatedly brought into being revolutionary forces that fought for independence and so the day is a day of historic significance concerned with all the nationalities of the Union or the entire people of the nation. Similarly, national spirit and national duty are national values of all the national races of the Union and nationalist spirit and Union spirit are essential values which all the national races can [sic] live without, for they live on the same land, drink the same water, travel in the same boat and head the same way sharing weal and woe.

All the national races will have to be mindful of the fact that colonialists are always waiting for a chance to interfere. All the national races should be in full alert that there are possibilities starting with the armed aggression of the past to the crooked means using their minions inside the country in order to harm unity among the people and cause disintegration of the nation.

On this National Day worthy of honour and reverence, the people of all national races are to always keep in mind the three National Day objectives.

1. to rekindle and strengthen nationalist fervour,
2. to consolidate national unity, and
3. to perpetuate the nation's independence and sovereignty.

To be in accordance with the motto "There will be prosperity if there is unity", I urge all the people of the national races to fully accept the leadership of the State Law and Order Restoration Council and exert efforts in unison for the flourishing of genuine democratic system and emergence of an enduring constitution.

World AIDS Day

Dec. 1: Full page article entitled AIDS--A Global problem "Time to act": What you should know about AIDS, reprinted from WHO/UNESCO materials. [Detailed questions and answers about AIDS, its transmission, etc.]

Dec. 1: Editorial: World AIDS Day 1993. ["Time to fight denial, discrimination and complacency, among governments, communities and individuals. With no cure or vaccine in sight, prevention and education must remain absolute priorities.... Myanmar recognizes AIDS as a national concern and has set up her own AIDS Project and has been working in concert with UN agencies and NGOs and others who must share the burden of fighting the problem for only by forging alliance against it can it be combated. Let us all redouble our efforts in this direction."]

Dec. 1: World AIDS Day was observed at the Institute of Nursing in Yangon, with an address by Minister for Health Vice-Adm. Than Nyunt. After citing international AIDS statistics, "He said 5,862 persons have been found HIV positive in Myanmar up to September this year and 135 are suffering from AIDS.... He stated that work for prevention and control of the epidemic has been included as the third priority health problem in the tasks of the National Health Plan to be implemented from 1993 to 1996, and related programmes have been formulated for extensive execution of the work countrywide, with the formation of AIDS Prevention and Control Committees at central, States/ Divisions and township levels.... With funds spent increasingly on AIDS prevention work --K3.84 million in 1991; K6.06 million in 1992; and K7.17 million in 1993, the State has raised the momentum of efforts for the control of the epidemic, he said.... In our country, he said, seven tasks for AIDS prevention have been laid down--carrying out health education; preventing the spread by screening blood for transfusion; sterilizing needles and syringes; conducting constant observations and surveys; providing proper medicare to AIDS patients with talks for encouragement and education; conducting educative courses for those interested in social services including health personnel; and carrying out research.... He said 17 courses on prevention and control of the disease have been conducted--two for doctors of Drug Dependency Treatment Unit; eight for heads of Township Health Departments to enable them to conduct multiplier courses; one for doctors of General Hospitals for medical care and treatment to AIDS patients; four for encouragement and educative talks to be given to the patients; and two at schools....

Myanmar Cultural Policy

Dec. 29: At the opening of the LJO Conference [see above] SLORC Secretary-1 Lt-Gen. Khin Nyunt delivered the following speech outlining Myanmar cultural and literary policy [full text]:

I wish all the Ministers, departmental heads, guests and delegates present here blessed with auspiciousness and wish the literary workers to be able to serve the interests of race, the language and religion through literature.

The opening day of the First Conference of Literary and Journalists Organization, which was formed anew during the time of the State Law and Order Restoration Council with the objective of serving the interests of State, is a day to serve as a milestone in the history of Myanmar.

I am delighted to see literary workers of States and Divisions united and happy. Myanmar is an independent nation for millennia with own literature, own cultural traditions and own national character. The nation has had its own literature and own language since the city states of Pyu and Mon eras. There are stone inscriptions stating that in the period of Bagan what is known as the First Myanmar Naing-Ngan, languages such as Myanmar, Pali, Pyu and Mon were of high standard.

Myanmar literature, like other fine arts, is based on Buddhist culture and it is rich in significant thoughts and concepts since early history.

In addition to Buddhist literature such as Abhidhamma, jataka and nipatta there were other treatises on codes of conduct or civics, those on rulings and those on duties and obligations to be observed from the monarchs, the monks, the teachers and their pupils to the parents and their children. A study of these will highlight the high standard of Myanmar literature. There were also chronicles documenting the customs and dynasties. Documentary evidence also shows that literature has been the source of rich knowledge in the fields of secular and mundane affairs, administration and judicial affairs and social affairs derived from chronicles and fables of the ancestors.

Historical evidence also shows that Myanmar literature constitutes a treasure trove of numerous styles of writing either in prose or in verse.

Myanmar people brought up under the influence of such literature are sound in body and mind, cultured and law-abiding.

Though literature and culture had been high in standard at the time of own monarchs, they had been suppressed during the colonial period. For that reason and because of the lackeys of the colonialists, Myanmar literature, culture and Myanmar identities diminished.

That was why everything Myanmar, patriotism and national pride and nationalist fervour had to be revived at the beginning of the freedom struggle.

At one time, there emerged a slogan "Myanmar literature is our literature, Myanmar language our language" followed by revitalization of the Myanmar literary heritage. This is a good lesson to be drawn that one's native literature and language can disappear under servitude.

Lesson

On the other hand, a lesson can also be drawn that success had been achieved in efforts to revive national pride and prestige by promoting religion, culture and literature.

There has been clear evidence that Myanmar literati put up resistance, through literature, when Myanmar lost its independence and was under alien rule. Patriotic writers like His Ban Ni Sayadaw and Achoktan Saya Pe pointed out the people's abject conditions in servitude and strongly criticized the colonialists.

Moreover, journalists and cartoonists also exposed the colonialist rulers' injustices against the people, the race and the religion.

Even writers like Theikpan Maung Wa, an official in the colonial bureaucracy, revealed the plight of the people under the colonialists.

Writers like Sayagyi Thakin Kodaw Hmaing, Ledi Pandita U Maung Gyi and Deedok U Ba Choe produced literary works and novels based on the historical background depicting the glorious past of the Myanmar people. Writers like Sayagyi P Mo Nin and Sayagyi Maha Swe produced works for the emergence of youths with a sound mind in a sound body, were inspired with national pride and nationalist fervour and overwhelmed with anti-colonialist spirit and self-reliance. Their literature was effective.

It is a fact that thanks to the patriots in the literary and journalist world, Myanmar people were politically awakened and there emerged selfless heroes who fought for independence. An instance is that when literature of poor quality reigned and patriotism was at an ebb, alien cultures and destructionists penetrated and influenced. Then anarchistic activities followed and the nation was pushed to the verge of collapse. That was what we have already experienced.

Black mark

It is unforgettable that during the 1988 disturbances, certain journalists in disregard of code of conduct and dignity and influenced by leftist and rightist interferences instigated the rabble rousers. This is not to be forgotten. Bogus news and periodicals that emerged to take advantage of the time published false and concocted reports to please the neo-colonialists. This will ever remain in the history as a black mark which cannot be erased in any way.

Resulting from this, foreign publications and some news agencies under the influence of the colonialists continue to discredit Myanmar to this day by concocting various reports about the Union of Myanmar.

This being so, the State Law and Order Restoration Council, since its assumption of duties of State, has been publishing accurate news and making arrangements to vitalize patriotism. Literary workers truly desirous of serving national interests, therefore, are to guide the people through literature to enable them to resist all instigations directed at harming national interests.
One mind

It is believed that with the determination to serve national interests with one mind and in close cooperation, literary workers will be able to implement the government's objectives of providing a clear outlook for the people and vitalizing patriotism through their skills.

The initiation in the formation of literary workers organization and observance of Sarsodaw Day reflects that there is clear evidence of the will of literary workers of Myanmar Naing-Ngan to vitalize patriotism and national pride.
Sarsodaw Nay

About the early stages of the Second World War during the colonial era, some literary workers formed a writers association. They observed a day for U Ponnya, Myanmar poet, in 1944, the way Shakespeare Day is observed in the West. The 1st Waxing of the Myanmar month of Nadaw was designated to be observed as Sarsodaw Nay, Writers Day, as outstanding men of letters were honoured and titles conferred in this month during ancient Myanmar kings. The first Sarsodaw Day was observed in 1944 during the Japanese regime to honour Myanmar writers. Sarsodaw Day had since been observed every year under the auspices of the Writers Association.

During the post-independence period, there was difference of opinion and views among the people putting party politics in the fore resulting in rivalry and struggle for power. Writers were also split into different groups. Writers and journalists were then united and organized under one organization, Literary Workers Organization, during the time of the Revolutionary Council.

After assuming duties of State, the State Law and Order Restoration Council permitted formation of social organizations which will serve the interests of the nation and the people. Myanmar literary workers and journalists then formed the Literary and Journalist Organization. There is now a total of 127 Township LIOs with a membership of over 2,000 throughout the country. Today, it is delightful to see the First Conference of the Literary and Journalist Organization.

The State, on its part, is organizing literary competitions and presenting higher prizes. In presenting National Literary Awards, the cash prize was increased to K 50,000 in 1990 compared to K 20,000 previously. There were 13 genres then. One more award for general knowledge (applied science) was added, thereby bringing it to 14 genres.

In the Sarpay Beikman Manuscript Awards, the previous cash award of K 7,000 was raised to K 25,000 since 1990, and another award for the Poems genre was added, making a total of 12 genres.

Literary competitions to stir up a keen sense of patriotism, to commemorate Armed Forces Day and Independence Day and to portray National slogans and mottos are being held on a nationwide scale as befits the occasion, and deserving prizes are being awarded.

Such competitions not only offer writers chances to show their literary talent, but also enable them to analyze and assess the historic past and the present era of the Union of Myanmar, and at the same time provide a training ground for the upbringing of a future generation of writers who will serve the literary sphere. The increasing number of entries in these competitions is also very promising for the country.

Dutybound

I would therefore like to urge all those present here, that since the government is giving due support to the Literary and Journalist Organization, members are dutybound to do their best to perform the functions of the organization in harmony, bearing in mind the wise saying "Unity brings Prosperity".

It is obvious that other forms of art such as stage, screen and music are not totally independent of literature, which performs the paramount function of preserving and propagating national culture. Literature is also responsible for correcting the misconceptions of the people. I will again emphasize the importance of the LJO to perform the above duties in addition to working for the realization of the objectives of the organization, which are providing mutual assistance among members of the organization, striving for the prosperity of the literary sphere and playing a multi-faceted role in working for the benefit of the Union.

Perceptive senses

As writers, journalists and cartoonists are the perceptive senses of a country, they play a leading role in society. It is therefore essential that such individuals are duty-conscious, that they observe their ethics, and that they are sincere to the Union. Cartoonists can do much in guiding the general public to be disciplined, industrious and correctly oriented. Newspapers, journals and magazines are instruments which record everyday events, inform the public and reflect their opinions. In fact they are contemporary chronicles of a country. News reports prepared by journalists, reporters and editors are the most effective means to bring into public notice the nation-building activities that are being carried out.

I would, moreover, like to remind the literary stalwarts here today to be imbued with correct attitudes and cherish noble objectives and to create literary works which are factual as well as artistic in content and style.

As there exist rules in grammar and syntax, there also should be literary ethics indispensable for strengthening the foundation of Myanmar literature which has flourished since time immemorial. Only then will we be able to hand down the nucleus of invaluable literary heritage to our successors of generations to come.

Literature is the chief driving force that serves the spiritual enhancement of the people. It is the duty of literary workers to instil patriotism and nationalist spirit among the public, to impart civic duties and good citizenship, to elicit the conviction of self-reliance and to convey correct attitudes into the minds of the people. It is their duty to add pages to the national archives and to carry out wide-ranging information services to bring to public notice the relentless endeavours and the genuine goodwill of the government in all round development of the country.

Furthermore, literature is connected with the field of education. Academic subjects, prescribed texts, lexicon and dictionaries are the works of the literati. Therefore, they are requested to do their best in the upbringing of the youth by teaching them moral virtues, with the aim of producing a patriotic generation of technocrats and intelligentsia who will be the true sons of the nation.

Torch-bearers

I would also make a point that literary workers, being the torch-bearers of the public, are to organize and lead the entire people to realize the ultimate need of an enduring constitution which, in turn, lies in the success of the National Convention.

It is known to all that the 104 State principles that serve as a base for the Constitution have emerged from the National Convention.

The National Convention, comprising delegates of the diverse social strata and the national races, have laid down the aforesaid State principles. Literary workers, therefore, are to the public understand [sic], making sure they appreciate the noble objectives encompassed in these principles.

In leading the people by virtue of your talent, literary workers are to perform the national tasks of non-disintegration of the Union, non-disintegration of national solidarity, perpetuation of sovereignty, promotion of national pride and nurturing of a keen sense of patriotism to the best of your ability. In other words, literary workers are responsible for the material as well as spiritual wellbeing of the entire people, and you are to preserve our cherished cultural traditions while taking part in the making of a modern and prosperous Union.

Guiding role

All members of the LJO, while serving the public in the interest of the Union, the race and the religion, are to play a guiding role and to take active part in the formation of the Union Solidarity and Development Association.

The overwhelming success of the national festivals such as the Equestrian Festival, the National Sports Festival and the Regatta Festival are inevitably due to the ardent participation of artistes, the intelligentsia and intellectuals, non-government organizations and students. I also call on the LJO to put in their earnest efforts in such festivals held under State sponsorship to make them even more successful.

In today's conference, I advise you all to direct your discussions to the production of constructive literature that would instil patriotism and stir love of one's country. In electing EC members for the coming term, priority should be given to the dignified, duty-conscious and patriotic personages who would serve the Organization and the Union.

I will now conclude by reminding you to serve your country and your people with the might of your pen, and I wish you all to -- enlighten the people with your talent and serve the interests of the Union while upholding Our Three Main National Causes.

-- guide the entire people to acquire advanced and updated attitudes and concepts while preserving Myanma cultural heritage.

-- indulge in consolidated endeavours for the prosperity of the LJO, and -- effectively contribute towards the flourishing of Myanma literature.
