Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Senior General Than Shwe inspected Upper Buywa, Buywa, Mone and Kyeeohn-Kyeewa dam projects in Magway Division the other day.

During the inspection tour of Kyeeohn-Kyeewa Multi-purpose Dam Project, the Senior General gave guidance to the officials, calling for completion of the projects for progress of the regions on the western bank of the Ayeyawady River ahead of schedule. In the process, it was needed to utilize machinery in combination and effectively to achieve the targets, he said.

The projects are also designed to generate electricity. Of them, Mone Creek Multi-purpose Dam Project has been completed. It generates 75 megawatts and supports water to Kyeeohn-Kyeewa Dam downstream the former.

Iran says US report a “declaration of surrender”

TEHERAN, 17 Dec— Iran’s President said on Sunday the publication of a US intelligence report saying Iran had halted a nuclear weapons programme in 2003 amounted to a “declaration of surrender” by Washington in its row with Tehran.

President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad also dismissed in an interview with state television the prospect of new UN sanctions against Iran over its refusal to halt sensitive atomic work.

“It is too far-fetched,” he said when asked whether he expected the UN Security Council to impose fresh sanctions on Iran following two such resolutions since last December.

Ahmadinejad, who often rails against the West, told a rally earlier this month that the 3 December publication of the US National Intelligence Estimate was a “victory” for Iran.

He said on Sunday: “It was in fact a declaration of surrender... It was a positive action by the US Administration to change their attitude and it was a correct move.”

Russia test-fires intercontinental missile

MOSCOW, 18 Dec— Russia successfully conducted a test launch on Monday of a new intercontinental ballistic missile, the Navy said.

A statement said the missile was launched from the Tula nuclear powered submarine in the Barents Sea in the Arctic and hit a designated area in the Kura testing ground on the Kamchatka Peninsula on Russia’s Pacific coast. “The launch was conducted from an underwater position as part of training to test the readiness of the marine strategic nuclear forces,” the statement said.

A Navy spokesman would not say what type of missile was tested. ITAR-TASS news agency said the Tula submarine carried Sineva missiles commissioned by a decree from President Vladimir Putin in July.

Missile tests have become regular occurrences in the Russian Armed Forces in the past few years.

US lawmakers say will not be deterred on CIA probe

WASHINGTON, 17 Dec— US Congress members vowed on Sunday to investigate the CIA’s destruction of interrogation videotapes despite Justice Department advice that the agency not cooperate.

The top Republican member of the House of Representatives Intelligence Committee and a leading Democratic voice on security joined in a blistering attack on the CIA and on the complex network of US intelligence agencies in general, which they described as arrogant, incompetent and unaccountable.

“We want to hold the (intelligence) community accountable for what’s happened to these tapes,” Republican US Representative Pete Hoekstra of Michigan said on “Fox News Sunday.” “We will issue subpoenas. Our investigation should move forward.”

“It is believed that the tapes, destroyed in 2005, depicted the use of a simulated drowning technique called waterboarding.”

Winter storm pounds N-E United States

BOSTON, 17 Dec— A snowstorm that blanketed parts of the Midwestern United States barreled into New England on Sunday, bringing snow, freezing rain and high winds that grounded flights and made driving treacherous.

Roads were slick with snow and ice, and local airports reported hundreds of flights canceled across New England. Upstate New York received as much as a foot (30 centimetres) of snow, while the storm spared New York City, leaving only a coating of icy slush. In New England, about 8 inches (20 centimetres) of snow fell around Boston, though the precipitation changed to rain across coastal areas by afternoon, according to the National Weather Service.
Zawahri says British “fleeing” from Iraq

DUBAI, 17 Dec—Al-Qaeda’s second-in-command, Ayman al-Zawahri, has said Britain’s handover of security in southern Iraq shows that insurgents are gaining the upper hand there.

“Reports from Iraq point to the increasing power of the mujahideen (holy war fighters) and the deteriorating condition of the Americans,” Zawahri told an off-camera interviewer from As-Sahab, al-Qaeda’s media arm, in a video posted on the Internet on Sunday.

“The deteriorating condition of the Americans,” Zawahri said on the video, which carried English subtitles.

The Web sites invited sympathizers to send in questions during the next month for Zawahri to answer in an “open interview”. — MNA/Reuters

Spanish police arrest 63 in child pornography swoop

MADRID, 17 Dec—Spanish police said on Sunday they had arrested 63 people across the country in five investigations into child pornography being posted, viewed and paid for on the Internet.

It is the second huge swoop this year after police arrested 66 people on charges of child pornography in July. Last year, the state attorney said the number of under-age pornography investigations had risen 48.4 per cent. The police said some of the people they arrested this time had produced child pornography material that was then posted on the web.

They also arrested four Russians who had made about 200,000 euros (290,600 US dollars) from selling access to pictures.

In one of the investigations, police found footage of a 10-year-old being abused by an adult which led them to evidence of eight other minors being mistreated. — MNA/Reuters

London plot suspect escapes in Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 17 Dec—A Pakistani-British man suspected of involvement in an al-Qaeda plot to blow up US-bound airliners over the Atlantic has escaped from custody in the Pakistani capital, a senior official said on Sunday.

Rashid Rauf escaped on Saturday from outside an Islamabad court where police had escorted him for an extradition hearing.

“We’re trying our best to re-arrest him,” said Interior Ministry spokesman, Brigadier Javed Iqbal Cheema, speaking more than 20 hours after Rauf’s disappearance.

Cheema gave no details on how Rauf escaped but he said the government had set up an inquiry to investigate the incident and report back within 48 hours.

“This has to be sorted out, how it happened and who were involved in it,” he said.

Rauf’s lawyer said his client’s flight was a mystery.

“What made him do that when there was no major case against him and secondly, how did he manage this as 10 or 12 armed policemen were guarding him,” he said.

It is a mystery,” lawyer Hasmat Habibtold Reuters.

Arrested in Pakistan in August 2006, Rauf was identified by Pakistanis officials as a key figure in a plot to blow up airliners travelling from London to the United States.

But his case ran into a legal quagmire and was being handled by higher and lower courts simultaneously.

An anti-terrorism court dropped terrorism charges against him, citing a lack of evidence, and referred lesser charges, including the possession of explosives, to the civil court. — MNA/Reuters

Measles deaths in Africa plunge by 91%

GENEVA, 17 Dec—Measles deaths in Africa fell by 91 per cent between the years 2000 and 2006, from an estimated 396,000 to 36,000 reaching the United Nations 2010 goal to cut measles deaths by 90 per cent four years early. The spectacular gains achieved in Africa helped generate a strong decline in global measles deaths which fell 68 per cent worldwide—from an estimated 757,000 to 242,000—during this period.

“The clear message from this achievement is that the strategy works,” said CDC (US Centre for Disease Control and Prevention) Director Dr Julie Gerberding.

Bolton criticizes Bush foreign policy

BERLIN, 17 Dec—US President George W. Bush’s foreign policy is in free fall and puts the nation’s security at risk, former ambassador to the United Nations John Bolton told a German magazine on Sunday.

Bolton, who was a leading hawk in the US Administration and favoured a tough stance against Iran, North Korea and Iraq, told the Der Spiegel weekly that Bush needed to re-in in Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice.

“His foreign policy is in free fall.

“The president is acting against his own judgment and instincts (and) under the influence of Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice,” he was quoted as saying.

Bolton said Rice’s was the dominant voice on foreign policy and that she was a channel for the views of liberal career bureaucrats in the foreign ministry.

“(Bush) does not supervise her enough.”

That is a mistake,” he was quoted as saying, adding that a moderate foreign policy was a threat to US security.

“North Korea will, for example, now keep its nuclear weapons. And the Iranians have got a signal from our own intelligence services that they can do whatever they want.” —MNA/Reuters

Russia expels journalist critical of Kremlin

MOSCOW, 17 Dec—Russia expelled a journalist on Sunday who had alleged Kremlin malpractice in this month’s parliamentary elections, according to officials from the FSB security service.

Natalia Morar, a Moldovan national who works in Moscow for the small Russian magazine New Times, said she had been told at Moscow’s Domodedovo Airport that she was being refused entry to Russia on the orders of the FSB security service.

Having returned from a Press trip to Israel, she found herself put on a plane to the Moldovan capital Chisinau. “I am more than confident that the reason for my expulsion is my occupation,” she told Reuters from Domodedovo before boarding her flight.

“This final straw, I think, was my article on ‘black money’ in the Kremlin, which has been financing parties during the election campaign.”

New Times’s political editor, Ilya Barabanov, said Morar may have been expelled for an article about the murder of the deputy central bank governor, Andrey Kozlov, in September 2006.

“Morar wrote some material about the inquiry into the death of Kozlov that described the withdrawal of large sums of money by senior Russian officials through Discount Bank and Raiffeisen Bank,” Barabanov said. —MNA/Reuters

Top official says Iraq plans mass detainee pardon

BASRA (Iraq), 17 Dec—Iraq’s Government is planning to release thousands of detainees from custody as part of efforts to forge national reconciliation between Shiite and Sunni Muslims, a top Iraqi official said on Sunday.

The issue of detainees in both US and Iraqi jails is some of the most sensitive in the country, especially as detentions have soared since military operations were stepped up this year. Rubaie said the Iraqi Government was now holding 24,000 detainees and US forces are holding 26,000.

Broken hose causes oil spill in North Sea

STOCKHOLM, 17 Dec—The oil spill from a platform operated by Norwegian oil company StatoilHydro in North Sea Wednesday was the result of a broken underwater hose, the Norwegian broadcaster NRK reported on Saturday.

This was determined when a mini-sub was sent down to try to find the cause of the leak by StatoilHydro.

The hose, which is used to bring the crude oil from the buoy to the tanker, is a 19-inch steel reinforced rubber hose, but the cause of break was not immediately determined, it added.

About 4,000 standard cubic metres of crude oil was spilled into the sea Wednesday, when a tanker was loading oil from the platform, about 200 kilometres west of the Norwegian second largest city Bergen, StatoilHydro said.

So far, the spilled oil has been forced northward by the wind, and no oil has reached the coast. The spill was the second worst in Norway’s offshore history.

The Norwegian Institute for Nature Research has been assigned to investigate the environmental impact by means of water column samples and mapping of bird life in the area.—MNA/Xinhua

China issues warrants for 13 over mine disaster

BEIJING, 17 Dec—China has issued arrest warrants for 13 people in connection with a coal mine blast that killed 105 miners earlier this month, state media reported on Sunday.

The 5 December gas explosion tore through a shaft in northern Shanxi Province where 128 miners were working, far more than the maximum 60 allowed, Xinhua news agency said.

"It was reported that the colliery managers delayed reporting the accident to local authorities while sending another 37 workers down the shaft for rescue operations," it said.

The rescuers never resurfaced, state media reported earlier. China has the world’s deadliest mining industry, with thousands dying in coal blasts, collapses and floods every year. Scores die in rescue attempts launched by mine bosses seeking to cover up accidents at illegally-run mines. Eleven people have gone on trial in northeast China in connection with a coal mine blast that killed 171 people two years ago, Xinhua said in a separate report. —MNA/Reuters

Japan Tamiflu study inconclusive, will probe more

TOKYO, 17 Dec — Over half of influenza patients in Japan showing abnormal behaviour had taken the drug Tamiflu, but it is not clear if there was a causal link between the drug and their actions, a government report showed on Monday.

Japan is investigating whether there is any link between Tamiflu, made by Roche Holding AG, and neuropsychiatric problems after more than 100 people, mostly young, showed erratic behaviour such as jumping from buildings after taking the drug.

There have been eight cases of deaths after abnormal or possibly abnormal behaviour.

Tamiflu can treat symptoms of regular seasonal influenza and is seen as one of the best defences against a possible bird flu pandemic.

The Health Ministry report said that of 137 patients who had shown abnormal behaviour, 82 had taken Tamiflu, while 52 had not.

But the report, compiled by a group of doctors and other health experts, said their figures were difficult to assess because it was not clear what percentage of all influenza patients had been prescribed Tamiflu.

The report also said that the number of patients showing abnormal behaviour did not drop after the government warned in March against prescribing Tamiflu to those aged 10 to 19. — MNA/Reuters

British scientists pinpoint key to ovarian cancer drug use

LONDON, 17 Dec — British scientists have discovered why a treatment for ovarian cancer only works in half of the patients who have it, according to BBC on Sunday.

Paclitaxel, part of a family of drugs called taxanes, originally derived from yew trees, shrinks ovarian tumors, but researchers found that patients lacking a specific type of protein tend to be immune. The researchers examined ovarian cancer cells and data from 20 patients and found those who did not respond to paclitaxel had lower levels of a protein called TGFBI in their pre-treatment samples.

Further analysis revealed that cancer cell death rate was higher following treatment where levels of TGFBI were high.

“TGFBI is lost in one third of primary ovarian cancers and it is possible that this protein could be used as a biomarker for selecting patients likely to respond to this class of drug,” lead researcher James Brenton said. The researchers said their work reveals that some proteins that surround cancer cells such as TGFBI send messages to microtubules, the backbone of the cell, sensitizing them to paclitaxel.

Canada reopens nuclear reactor

OTTAWA, 17 Dec — Canada’s state-owned nuclear company announced Sunday that it had reopened the only nuclear reactor in North America to supply radioactive isotopes worldwide.

“The National Research Reactor (NRU) was safely returned to service at 3:44 am on Sunday,” said Atomic Energy of Canada Limited (AECL) in a statement. Medical isotopes will start being collected from the reactor for processing and distribution “within four days,” added the statement.

The reactor, the only one in North America on Chalk River, Ontario, produces half of the world’s medical isotopes for cancer diagnosing and treatment.

It was shut down for maintenance on 18 November and was ordered by the Canadian Nuclear Safety Commission for an indefinite stoppage, after the organization found out the reactor had been running for a year without the emergency power system being connected to two cooling pumps.

The closure caused a severe shortage of medical isotopes, resulting in postponement of treating cancer patients in many countries.

Bali climate deal paves way for hotter US debate

WASHINGTON, 17 Dec — A breakthrough deal forged by delegates from 190 countries has revived world efforts to fight global warming and may help push the debate to the front and centre of the US political debate.

The United States joined the deal reached on the Indonesian island of Bali in a dramatic U-turn.

But significantly, the accord sets late 2009 as the target for a climate treaty, months after US President George W Bush leaves office.

Senator Barbara Boxer, a California Democrat who heads the Senate’s environment committee, noted the Bush Administration’s lonely position after the Bali deal was reached on Saturday.

“In Bali, the president tried to treat the world the way he treats Congress — my way or the highway,” Boxer said in a statement. “The difference is that in Congress he has supporters but in Bali he had no supporters.”

The debate is largely over for the American public, according to Karlyn Bowman, a polling expert at the American Enterprise Institute. Americans view climate change as the world’s top environmental problem, although few followed the Bali debate.

Americans are relying on policymakers, including the next president, to tackle climate change, Bowman said. — MNA/Reuters

Liverpool rethinks stadium plans

LONDON, 18 Dec — Liverpool's new stadium in Stanley Park will not be “as dramatic” as first planned, the Premier League club said on Monday.

The five-time European champions unveiled plans in July for a futuristic 70,000-seater home, complete with an 18,000 single-tier Kop to replicate the famous end at their existing Anfield Stadium.

Chief executive Rick Parry said two new schemes were now being considered but told fans it would still be a 70,000-seater arena and that the Kop would be retained.

“The new stadium will be a significant improvement on the original plans,” Parry said on the club’s Web site (www.liverpoolfc.tv).

“It will be a massive improvement on where we were 12 months ago, if not quite as dramatic as the plans unveiled in the summer.

“The single-tier Kop remains fundamental to the design and we are not expecting any delays, it should be on schedule for 2011.” —MNA/Reuters

ZURICH (Switzerland), 18 Dec — Barcelona coach Frank Rijkaard will sit out his team’s first Champions League knockout stage match after being handed a touchline ban by UEFA.

European soccer’s ruling body said on Monday that Rijkaard would serve a two-match touchline ban after being sent off for arguing with the referee during their group game against Olympique Lyon on 27 Nov.

Ferguson says beating Liverpool big step in title race

LIVERPOOL (England), 18 Dec — Manchester United manager Alex Ferguson hailed the team’s 1-0 win over Liverpool at Anfield on Sunday as a significant step towards retaining the Premier League title.

“It was a massive win. I said beforehand, the games between the top sides would be significant and that is one today,” Ferguson told MUTV.

“If we are around the top in the first part of January we will have a real chance of winning the league. We will know we have a chance and we will know who our challengers are going to be.”

Carlos Tevez scored in the 43rd minute to move United nine points clear of Liverpool, who are fifth in the table. Arsenal, who beat third-placed Chelsea 1-0 on Sunday, top the Premier League on 40 points, one ahead of United.

Bolivian President raps FIFA’s new altitude ban

LAPAZ, 18 Dec — Bolivian President Evo Morales has criticized FIFA’s decision to introduce a ban on international soccer matches over 2,750 metres above sea level with out acclimatisation.

“I want to express my surprise at this decision by FIFA. It’s discrimination...against people who live at high altitude,” Morales told state news agency ABI after a kickabout with police officers in La Paz, which lies 3,600 metres above sea level.

“It’s not right that they don’t understand the situation of Potosi, Oruro or La Paz,” he added, referring to two other Andean cities with leading national teams.

World soccer’s governing body announced its latest altitude ruling on Saturday in Japan. It said players would need sufficient time to acclimatise if playing above 2,750 metres, though it didn’t say how much.

Earlier this year, FIFA banned matches at over 2,500 metres, a decision which caused an outcry in Bolivia and elsewhere in South America. —MNA/Reuters

Colo awarded win after Chilean derby halted by riot

SANTIAGO, 18 Dec — Colo Colo reached the Chilean championship final on Monday after the league ruled the result of their derby with Universitario de Chile would stand, despite the game being abandoned due to crowd violence in the second half.

Coco Colo, 2-0 ahead from their first leg of their semi-final tie, were winning Sunday’s return 1-0 when Universitario de Chile supporters hurled stones, plastic seats and parts of a torn-down fence onto the field.

“The league absolutely agrees with the referee’s decision...to suspend the game in the 22nd minute of the second half due to the seriousness of the incidents...the rules,” it said in a statement.

The trouble was blamed on a hardcore group of Universitario de Chile supporters known as Los de Abajo (The Ones from Below).

Wenger delighted by jubilant Arsenal’s perfect response

LONDON, 18 Dec — Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger praised his side for their 1-0 victory over Chelsea on Sunday, saying it was the ideal way to recover from last week’s first Premier League defeat of the season at Middlesbrough.

“It was very important, the perfect response. If you lose a match and then lose the next match at home, it can undermine your confidence, so I am delighted with the spirit we showed.

“The first half was a bit locked tactically but the goal from William Gallas changed the game. We had four or five counter-attacks and opportunities to score after that but we don’t do that, it gets harder. But in the end I think we deserved the three points.” —MNA/Reuters
Russia warns Kosovo can become “uncontrollable crisis”

MOSCOW, 18 Dec — Russia has on Monday warned that the Kosovo situation was at a critical point and could become an “uncontrollable crisis.”

“The situation in the Kosovo settlement has approached a critical point,” the Foreign Ministry said in a statement.

“The current situation is the direct consequence of serious slants in the Kosovo settlement process, which the Russian side constantly paid attention to... The situation could evolve in an uncontrollable crisis if the settlement is not preserved within the international legal framework,” it said.

Kosovo, the independence-seeking province of Serbia, has been under UN administration since 1999. Its 90-per-cent Albanians majority insist on independence, but Serbia only agrees to offer substantial autonomy.

A four-month negotiations mediated by the troika of United States, European Union and Russian envoy officially ended earlier this month without any result on the future status of Kosovo.

Kosovo Albanian leaders said there is no point in talking further with Serbia and they are ready to declare independence before May next year in coordination with US and EU backers.

Russia has repeated opposition to Kosovo’s independence.
