

FDA has based these estimates on conversations with industry and trade association representatives and from internal FDA experience and estimates.

The total number of medical device manufacturers regulated by FDA is estimated to be 70,000. Because most of the medical devices which might be needed in a terrorist attack are available through regular commercial channels, FDA focused this collection of information on the 250 manufacturers who manufacture 17 medical devices. Therefore, FDA estimates that approximately 150 manufacturers would be contacted in a 1-year period. It is also estimated from FDA experience that the survey will take approximately 20 to 30 minutes to complete over the telephone.

Administrative Detention and Banned Medical Devices (OMB Control Number 0910-0114)—Extension

FDA has the statutory authority under section 304(g) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the act) (21 U.S.C. 334(g)), to detain during establishment inspections devices that are believed to be adulterated or misbranded. FDA issued a final rule that published in the Federal Register on March 9, 1979 (44 FR 13234 at 13239) on administrative detention procedures, which includes, among other things, certain reporting requirements § 800.55(g) and (k) (21 CFR 800.55(g) and (k)) and recordkeeping requirements. Under § 800.55(g), an applicant of a detention order must show documentation of ownership if devices are detained at a place other than that of the appellant. Under § 800.55(k), the owner or other responsible person must supply records about how the devices may have become adulterated or misbranded, as well as records of distribution of the detained devices. These recordkeeping requirements for administrative detentions allow FDA to trace devices for which the detention period expired before a seizure is accomplished or injunctive relief is obtained.

FDA also has the statutory authority under section 516 of the act (21 U.S.C. 360f) to ban devices that present substantial deception or an unreasonable and substantial risk of illness or injury. The final rule for banned devices that published in the Federal Register of May 18, 1979 (44 FR 29221) contained certain reporting requirements §§ 895.21(d) and 895.22(a) (21 CFR 895.21(d) and 895.22(a)). Section 895.21(d) states that if the Commissioner of Food and Drugs (the Commissioner) decides to initiate a proceeding to make a device a banned device, a notice of proposed rulemaking will be published in the Federal Register, and this document will contain the finding that the device presents a substantial deception or an unreasonable and substantial risk of illness or injury. The document will also contain the reasons why the proceeding was initiated, an evaluation of data and information obtained under other provisions of the act, any consultations with the panel, and a determination as to whether the device could be corrected by labeling or change of labeling, or change of advertising, and if that labeling or change of advertising has been made. Under § 895.21(d), any interested person may request an informal hearing and submit written comments. Under § 895.22, a manufacturer, distributor, or importer of a device may be required to submit to FDA all relevant and available data and information to enable the Commissioner to determine whether the device presents substantial deception, unreasonable and substantial risk of illness or injury, or unreasonable, direct, and substantial danger to the health of individuals.
