COURT SERVICES AND OFFENDER SUPERVISION AGENCY FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Privacy Act of 1974; Notice of Amended Systems of Records

Pursuant to the provisions of the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a), the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency for the District of Columbia (CSOSA) gives notice of effective dates, nomenclature changes, minor amendments, and corrections for the systems of records which it had published in the Federal Register on March 15, 2002 (67 FR 11816), for itself and for the Pretrial Services Agency, an independent entity within CSOSA.

The nomenclature changes consist of replacing the phrase "DC City Council" with the phrase "DC Council" and using the broader term "community corrections" as a replacement for phrases using the terms "probation" and "parole" in various CSOSA systems of records.

Systems of records CSOSA-9 through CSOSA-12 and CSOSA-14 through CSOSA-16 are being amended to incorporate a technically more correct description for the data element "Categories of Individuals Covered by the System." These systems of records will now use the phrase "Individuals currently or formerly under Agency supervision." This phrase replaces various formulations using the term "offender." These formulations would not cover an individual under supervision by virtue of a civil protection order. As a conforming change, other references in these systems of records to "offenders" are changed to "individuals."

CSOSA-9 is amended to include an additional routine use covering disclosures to law enforcement agencies for the purpose of assisting in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency, to limit disclosure to courts to the extent necessary to accomplish assigned duties in any criminal matter, and to broaden the reference to legal authorities that prohibit release of information by replacing the phrase "by 42 CFR part 2" with the phrase "by law or regulation." The broader reference to legal authorities is necessary to cover pertinent District of Columbia statutes governing confidentiality of HIV/AIDS and mental health records. CSOSA-15 and CSOSA-16 are also amended to broaden the reference to legal authorities that prohibit release of information.

CSOSA-11 is amended to include three additional retrieval elements, an additional routine use covering disclosures to law enforcement agencies for the purpose of assisting in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency, to replace the term "client" with the term "individual," and to remove typographical errors.

CSOSA-14 is removed and reserved. The information to be maintained under that system of record is now maintained under CSOSA-11.

CSOSA-18 is amended to include an additional routine use covering disclosures to law enforcement agencies for the purpose of assisting in the general crime prevention and detection efforts of the recipient agency or to provide investigative leads to such agency. In addition to the various nomenclature changes noted above, CSOSA-18 is also amended to replace the phrase "under CSOSA supervision" with the phrase "listed on the Sex Offender Registry" in paragraph A of the routine uses data element. Because an individual listed on the Sex Offender Registry is not necessarily under CSOSA supervision, it is more accurate to use the revised phrase.

CSOSA/PSA-1, CSOSA/PSA-2, and CSOSA/PSA-6 are amended by adjusting the retention period to five years (rather than 20 years) after disposition of charges, by adding a routine use allowing disclosure in certain instances where PSA becomes aware of a violation or potential violation of civil or criminal law or regulation (the same routine use is being added to PSA-3 as discussed below), and by revising the routine use for providing information to courts, court personnel, prosecutors, defense attorneys, and certain others. This routine use is being revised to make it clear that the disclosure is being made to permit the recipient to accomplish his or her assigned duties in any criminal matter and to replace specific excluded information with a more general prescription ("* * * unless otherwise precluded by law or regulation"). The routine use for law enforcement agencies for these same three systems is being modified to clarify that disclosures may be made to criminal law enforcement agencies rather than to civil and criminal law enforcement agencies. CSOSA/PSA-1 is further amended by correcting the reference to "attorney of record." CSOSA/PSA-6 is further amended by removing the phrase, "Probation and Parole" from the System Name and by removing redundancy from the description of the categories of individuals covered by the system.

CSOSA/PSA-3 is amended by correcting a reference to the attorney of record, by amending the routine use for disclosures in paragraph B to make it clear that such disclosures are made to criminal law enforcement agencies rather than to civil or criminal law enforcement agencies, and by adding a new routine use permitting disclosure to the appropriate Federal, state, local, foreign, or other public authority responsible for investigating, prosecuting, enforcing or implementing a statute, rule, regulation, or order where PSA becomes aware of a violation or potential violation of civil or criminal law or regulation.

In accordance with title 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4) and (11) CSOSA provided the public with a 30-day period in which to comment on the routine uses of a new system; the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), which has oversight responsibilities under the Act, was given a 40-day period in which to review the system. No comment was received. The routines uses for the published systems of records accordingly became effective April 26, 2002.
