

after the effective date of the cancellation. Although in its original voluntary cancellation letter, Bayer requested 18 months to address any remaining stocks, in subsequent communication with the Agency, Bayer accepted a 12-month period for sale and distribution of the existing stocks.

Existing stocks are those stocks of registered pesticide products which are currently in the United States and which have been packaged, labeled, and released for shipment prior to the effective date of the cancellation action. Unless the provisions of an earlier order apply, existing stocks already in the hands of dealers or users can be distributed, sold, or used legally until they are exhausted, provided that such further sale and use comply with the EPA-approved label and labeling of the affected product. Exception to these general rules will be made in specific cases when more stringent restrictions on sale, distribution, or use of the products or their ingredients have already been imposed, as in a Special Review action, or where the Agency has identified significant potential risk concerns associated with a particular chemical. In this case, the Agency does not see a need to deviate from these general rules. Unless the Agency receives substantive comments during the comment period that would merit further review of this matter, the Agency intends to permit existing stocks already in the hands of dealers or users to be distributed, sold, or used until they are exhausted, provided that such further sale and use comply with the EPA-approved label and labeling of the affected product.
