

F. Safety Determination

1. U.S. population. The use of products containing yeast extract hydrolysate, which lacks toxicity and is used in such low concentrations, is compatible with EPA's objectives to register reduced risk pesticides. Based on its lack of toxicity and the fact that yeast extracts are already present in the diet, there is reasonable certainty that no harm will result from aggregate exposure of the U.S. population, including infants and children, to residues of yeast extract hydrolysate. This includes all anticipated dietary exposures and all other exposures for which there is reliable information. Yeast extract hydrolysate is applied at low rates and with its lack of toxicity and its history of safe use, it does not pose a safety concern.

2. Infants and children. Based on the lack of toxicity of yeast extract hydrolysate, there is a reasonable certainty that no harm to children or adults will result from aggregate exposure to yeast hydrolysate. Exempting yeast extract hydrolysate from the requirement of a tolerance should pose no significant risk to humans.

G. Effects on the Immune and Endocrine Systems

Yeast extract hydrolysate is a naturally occurring biochemical. To date there is no evidence to suggest that yeast extract hydrolysate functions in a manner similar to any known hormone, or that it acts as an endocrine disruptor.

H. Existing Tolerances

There are no existing tolerances for yeast extract hydrolysate in the United States.

I. International Tolerances

There are no known approved Codex maximum residue levels established for residues of yeast extract hydrolysate.
