

[7.33] Local functions must be declared as local variables

You can define programs and functions within a program in TI Basic. This is convenient, in that very specialized functions are included with the calling program, which simplifies distribution and maintenance. However, those local functions must be declared as local variables with a `Local` statement. This might seem obvious, and it is in the manual, but I tend to forget it, anyway.