

Tar Heel MUG

Tar Heel Macintosh Users Group

UNC's Fastest Growing Technology Organization.

The second-largest campus-based MUG in North Carolina, established in September 2002 and composed of more than 100 Apple technology users including students, faculty, and staff.

Diversify.

While most campus organizations focus on specific groups of individuals, Tar Heel MUG's members represent a broad range of fields and age groups ranging from Freshmen, to Grad Students, to Professors. You don't even have to own a Mac.

Have a Blast.

Our meetings are held on the first Tuesday of each month and focus on a wide range of topics including presentations from campus and industry professionals. Special events are also held and focus on having fun with the Mac platform and getting the most out of it.

Benefits Galore.

All members are consistently informed and educated on all Apple technology so everyone is always up to date. Members also support each other with specific technical issues. Serving on the MUG Board of Directors is an excellent way to build resumé-enhancing skills such as teamwork, management, vendor relations, presentation, task delegation, marketing, public relations, and event planning.

Our Mission:

To enable the faculty, staff, and students of UNC to better integrate technology in the interest of improving education, communication, and collaboration. Tar Heel MUG strives to help develop improved teaching, learning, and communication on campus through the utilization of technology.
